Tokio Says Incident Is Closed.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Nov. 30 (Monday).—(AP)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese charge d'affaires in China, has been instructed to confer with Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese foreign minister, at Nanking on the question of creating a neutral zone in Manchuria, and the hope prevailed in official circles here that this would lead to direct negotiations for a settlement of the whole Manchurian problem.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A band of 30 men attacked the Japanese embassy tonight and tried to force an entry, but escaped as police arrived. Windows of the embassy were broken in the attack. The embassy staff was absent at the time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 30.—[Monday.]—The Japanese ministry of war and the high command of the Japanese army today unleashed an attack on Baron Shidehara, foreign minister, on the heels of a retraction by the foreign office of its criticism of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for his misconstrued statements on the Manchurian situation. The foreign office at the same time declared the incident between the two governments is closed in the most complete possible way.

While American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes described the situation between Mr. Stimson and the foreign office as "entirely cleared up" and as "a comedy of errors," Japanese military officials today directed the full force of their anger at Baron Shidehara.

Military Secret Revealed.

According to the newspaper Nichi Nichi, the foreign minister is charged by military leaders with being guilty of revealing military secrets, pointing to Secretary Stimson's statements of his negotiations with Shidehara in support of their accusations. They allege that Mr. Stimson's statements revealed that the foreign minister had disclosed to the United States that the Japanese minister of war and the chief of staff had pledged that Japan would not attack Chinchow.

According to Nichi Nichi, this "offense" is regarded as serious matter inasmuch as military officials allege Shidehara revealed military secrets of the army as well as of the chief of staff. The war ministry further asserts that if this information had leaked out to China it would have resulted seriously for Japan.

It is understood that Shidehara will be questioned at the cabinet meeting on the matter today. The foreign office admits that Secretary Stimson's revelation of "a confidential matter" is seriously embarrassing their chief.

Situation Clarified: Japan.

TOKIO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Japanese foreign office today revoked its criticism of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for statements on the Manchurian situation which had been misconstrued as his, and said the situation had been entirely clarified.

"Mr. Stimson assures that he did not make any such statement as I thought from press dispatches," said a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office, who yesterday accused the American secretary of state of "losing his head" and "flying into fulminations."

"Incident Is Closed."

"Therefore I consider my impulsive expressions yesterday entirely unfelled for," the spokesman continued today. "I desire to state that any part of my statement which was not proper is hereby revoked. The assurance given by Mr. Stimson to Ambassador Debuchi clarifies the situation entirely to our satisfaction. The incident is closed."

(The American secretary of state Friday made public portions of an exchange of notes on the Manchurian situation between Japan and the United States. Japan had disclaimed any intention of attacking Chinchow and in view of this Secretary Stimson said it was difficult for him to understand press reports that the Japanese were advancing toward Chinchow. Other statements in an Associated Press dispatch distributed in Japan by the Kokusai News agency were misconstrued in Japan as coming from him.)

Mr. Stimson's categorical denial that he made the statements erroneously attributed to him and a cable of explanation from Ambassador Debuchi

U. S. IN 2 YEARS LOSES HALF ITS MILLIONAIRES

Remainder's Income Cut Two-Thirds.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—That there are 23,496 fewer millionaires in America now than there were before the stock market crash is one of the striking revelations of the disastrous effects of the business depression made by the internal revenue bureau's statistics of income for 1930 issued today.

If a millionaire be defined as a person with not less than a million dollars worth of property, the income from which is 50 thousand dollars or more, there were 43,184 millionaires in the heyday of the boom times in 1928. The stock market cracked in October, 1929, leaving 38,650 persons reporting incomes of 50 thousand dollars or more for that calendar year. In 1930, however, the number of millionaires had fallen to 19,688.

Fewer Rich to "Soak."

The figures showing less than half as many millionaires with about one-third of their former income will have an important bearing upon tax legislation in the approaching session of congress to meet the 2 billion dollar treasury deficit looming for this fiscal year.

With the radicals raising the cry of "Soak the rich," and administration leaders in congress proposing to double surtaxes on millionaires, it would appear from the treasury figures that there is about as much chance of getting any large amount of additional revenue from this source as there is of getting blood out of a turnip.

The statistics disclose that there were 511 persons in 1928 with incomes of one million or more, nearly double the number the previous year. In 1929 there were 504 but in 1930 only 149. In 1929 there were 38 persons with incomes of five millions or more of whom 21 were in New York, 2 in Illinois, 3 in Michigan, of whom Henry Ford presumably is one, and 3 in Pennsylvania, of whom Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon presumably is one.

How Income Dropped.

What hard times have done to the millionaires is disclosed the statistics that the aggregate income of persons with incomes of one million dollars or more in 1930 was $355,661,694 compared with $1,185,135,330 in 1929. Those with incomes of $500,000 or more in 1930 had an aggregate income of $207,742,387 compared with $663,450,463 in 1929. A similar proportionate decline of income prevails in all of the other millionaire classes. The tax yield from all millionaire incomes for 1930 is about one-third of the yield for 1929.

The number of all individual income tax returns for 1930 was 3,376,652, a falling off of 574,705 from the number for 1929. The aggregate net income of all income tax payers for 1930 was $17,220,703,620, a decrease from that of the previous year of $7,073,856,119, or more than 29 per cent. The tax liability for 1930 was $473,689,563, a decrease of $517,247,417, or 52 per cent, compared wtih 1929, in which year the normal tax rates were 1 per cent lower than in 1930.

In 1930, compared with 1929, aggregate wages and salaries in all returns fell off nearly 2 billions of dollars, business income nearly 1 billion, partnership income 800 millions, profits from sale of real estate, stocks, etc., 1½ billions, capital net gains nearly 2 billions, dividends 700 millions, rents and royalties 260 millions, interest and other income 435 millions.

Corporations Show Big Drop.

In 1930 of 498,110 corporations filing income tax returns 214,412 showed net income aggregating $5,627,312,995 on which taxes of $618,246,431 were assessed. Compared with 1929 this was a decrease of $4,633,994,149 in net income and $428,739,406 in tax. In 1929 there were 269,430 corporations showing net income. Corporations showing no net income numbered 186,591 in 1929 and 231,287 in 1920.

The figures show that the 40,573 taxpayers with incomes of between $25,000 and $50,000 obtained a larger percentage of their income from selling real estate, stocks and bonds than did any other class. Those with incomes under $5,000 got more proportionately from this source than did the millionaires who got far more than did other classes from capital net gains from sale of assets held more than two years.

Adam Wolf, veteran member of the Cook county board of assessors and a former city treasurer of Chicago, died early this morning at his home at 3500 Sheridan road. He had been ill for six months. Peumonia was the immediate cause of death.

The death of Mr. Wolf removed an important figure from local and state Republican politics. He had been for many years a member of the Cook county and state central Republican committees. He was a popular leader in his party and consistently polled heavy votes. His term still had another year to run.

Born in Germany in 1857.

Mr. Wolf was born in Stadecken, Germany, Jan. 5, 1857. He came to America with his parents seven years later, settling in Chicago. He was educated in the public schools here and in manhood entered the dry goods business, which he eventually relinquished for politics. From ward politics he rose to larger fields. In 1893 he was elected to his first office, that of collector for West Town.

Mr. Wolf boasted often that as West Town collector he was the first city collector to turn over interest on public funds voluntarily. In 1895 he was elected city treasurer, and three years later was elected to the board of assessors, where he remained continuously until his death.

Member of Numerous Clubs.

Mr. Wolf was a member of various clubs and organizations, the principal ones among them being the Royal Arcanum, the Royal League, the National Union, the North American Union, the Illinois Athletic club, and the German club.

He was a widower. Surviving him are four children—Mrs. Frank Gaskell and Robert N., Herbert C., and Mary Louise Wolf. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

KNOCKED DOWN BY BICYCLE; DIES; "DRIVER" SOUGHT

Louis Martin, 73 years old, 1108 Harvard avenue, Evanston, died yesterday at the Lake View hospital of injuries received Nov. 18 when he was struck by a "hit and run" bicyclist.

Mr. Martin was the owner of the Pioneer laboratory, a material testing concern at 2340 Belmont avenue. He stepped out of the door of the laboratory on the day of the accident, and was knocked down by a small boy riding his bicycle on the sidewalk. The boy fled and police have been unable to locate him.

Mr. Martin suffered a concussion of the brain and other injuries which caused his death yesterday.

SLAIN IN AUTO; BODY IS TOSSED OUT ON STREET

John Alessi, 35 years old, who roomed at 1953 Jackson boulevard, was taken for a ride early this morning and shot to death. His body with two bullet holes in the head was tossed from an automobile at Damen and Ogden avenues. He was identified at the county morgue by Carmen Gnolfo, a son of Mrs. Catino Gnolfo, 1119 South Racine avenue, widow of Philip Gnolfo, member of the Genna gang, who was slain May 31, 1930. Mrs. Gnolfo declared that Alessi was a "friend of the family."

Witnesses told of hearing several shots shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. Then a large automobile, which had been racing southwest in Ogden avenue, slowed down at Damen avenue and the body was thrown out.

Mrs. Gnolfo was brought into the case when a letter from the office of United States District Attorney G. E. Q. Johnson informing her that Joe Gallella had been convicted in federal court, was found in Alessi's pocket. The letter indicated that Mrs. Gnolfo and James Torry had posted $600 surety for Gallella's automobile, presumed by the police to have been seized in transporting liquor. A demand was made in the letter that the automobile be returned to the government or the $600 would be forfeited. Mrs. Gnolfo said she did not know what the letter was about, and gave it to Alessi to investigate. He was said to be a barber.

Edward Hines Reported Seriously Ill at His Home

Edward Hines, the lumberman, is seriously ill with heart trouble, according to information from his home, 1456 Ridge avenue, Evanston, this morning. Mr. Hines has been suffering from a heart ailment for a long time, and yesterday his condition took an alarming turn.

Tear Gas Routs Hunger March at Hammond

Participants in the communist "hunger march" on Washington were repulsed and scattered by police and citizens in Hammond yesterday when they tried to hold a demonstration there, a few hours after they had started their pilgrimage from Chicago.

The motor caravan in which the "marchers" are traveling was split into four columns after police had thrown several tear gas bombs which blinded members of their own department and their citizen supporters, as well as the communists whom they were dispersing. The columns continued their four separate ways eastward.

When the party, recruited principally in Chicago but including a number of representatives from northwest and Pacific coast states, reached Hammond it was met by 35 policemen, who warned the leaders not to make a demonstration in the city.

They ignored his order and stopped at State and Fayette streets. Several hundred citizens gathered as a communist speaker began a verbal attack on the police. A member of the communist party, it was charged, opened the fight by throwing a brick at the police. The police charged the group, using their clubs freely.

Citizens swarmed about the cars of the communists, stripping their banners from them and smashing several headlights. The fight ended when the tear bombs were thrown, sending both parties choking from the field.

One column of communists reached Gary and held a peaceful demonstration there before proceeding to South Bend. A second was reported south of Hammond on the Lincoln highway, and the other two could not be found.

Their Swords to Be Beaten Into Mashies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—"They shall beat their swords into mashie irons and their spears in niblicks."

Two of three of the leading defenders of the country, who retire at midnight tomorrow night were asked what they intended to do and replied thus:

"I am going to play golf as I always have wanted to play it and as I always knew I could play it if I had plenty of time."

The three men who reached 64 this month and will retire as the month ends are Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, Maj. Gen. Fred Sladen and Rear Admiral Thomas Magruder.

Swings a Mean Driver.

Ely who retires as commandant of the second corps area based at Governors Island, N. Y., swings a mean driver. His ambition is to "crack eighty" as he now shoots ninety or under consistently. He is a robust golfer of great enthusiasm, admits "a small bet or two" adds to the pleasure of the game and is willing to wager on any or each hard shot as it comes up.

Gen. Ely also should do well in the social end of his golfing. In one month recently, he attended 23 formal dinners.

He expects to move to Washington and practically live on the Burning Tree and Chevy Chase courses.

Gen. Sladen's game is not so hot. His heart's desire is to "crack ninety." He now is a "95 and up" golfer, but with the eternal optimism of "95 and up," he knows relief from martial worries will lop off at least ten strokes.

Fought in World War.

Gen. Ely retires after forty-four active years in the army during which he missed becoming chief of staff only because he was a contemporary of Gen. Charles P. Summerall. As a colonel Ely commanded a combat regiment, the 28th infantry, in the battle of Cantigny. After being cited for bravery in this action, Maj. Gen. Ely took command of the regular army brigade of the 2d division, participating in the fighting at Chateau Thierry.

Gen. Sladen participated in the Aisne defensive, the Château Thierry offensive and at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. He commanded the first brigade of American forces in Germany until July, 1921. During that same year he went to Fort Sheridan, later being assigned to West Point where he was commandant.

Rear Admiral Magruder leaped into prominence in 1927 when he printed a series of magazine stories criticizing the administration of the navy. He charged that the navy was over officered and expended millions annually which did not aid national defense.

2 CHINESE DIE, ONE WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Two Chinese were shot and killed last night and a third, an innocent bystander, was probably fatally wounded during a gun fight in the Chinese quarter at 22d street and Wentworth avenue.

The slain men were Moy Choon Nie, 36 years old, and Moy Him, 38, both of 2240 Wentworth avenue. The wounded man, Moy Tong See, 32, also of the same address, is in the People's hospital with a wound in the neck.

From Moy Jung, 2221 Wentworth avenue, Pekin police learned details of the double murder and wounding. He said that he, Moy Choon Nie, Moy Him and Chu Chuck Saong, had just left a meeting of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent association, 225 West 22d street, when the other three men became involved in an argument. Chu drew a gun and killed Moy Choon Nie, and fled. He and Moy Him caught Chu in front of 226 West 22d place, and seized his gun. Another Chinese, Cheung Min Yen, appeared and shot and killed Moy Him, permitting Chu to escape.

Moy Tong See later was found wounded in 22d street. He had been shot in the first fire.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE WANT AD SECTION

Official of Law and Order League.

Daniel L. Gilday, vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league and a foremost prohibition agitator, was arrested last night with a half pint of moonshine liquor in his pocket after he had shot and probably fatally wounded a boy 17 years old. The boy, who was accompanied by another boy, had offered to assist Gilday to his home when they met him at 70th and Green streets.

Gilday, in addition to his activity as vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league, is a director of the Better Government association. He has been a member of the board of the Pilgrim Congregational church for more than forty years. This latter statement was made by E. J. Davis, also a reformer and superintendent of the so-called Better Government association. The Book of Chicagoans states Gilday has been a deacon of the church since 1913.

Bullets and Badges in Pockets.

In Gilday's pockets, aside from the pint of moonshine, the police found the loaded pistol with which the boy was shot, a tear gas throwing device constructed in the form of a fountain pen, a police badge describing the holder as a member of the staff of former Chief of Police Collins, and also the badge of an investigator of the state's attorney's office. There was also a pawn ticket and some .3 exploded pistol cartridges.

After Gilday had shot the boy he fell to the sidewalk beside his victim and was still there, apparently in a stupor, when the police arrived several minutes later to arrest him. Eight persons who saw Gilday on the street or in the Englewood police station asserted that he was intoxicated. Gilday is 65 years old. He lives at 6731 Perry avenue.

Wounded Youth Near Death.

The wounded youth is Herman Knoll of 6938 South May street. Gilday's bullet struck him in the abdomen. He was taken to the Englewood hospital by a man who witnessed the shooting. An operation was ordered in the hope that his life could be saved.

Knoll and his friend, Herman Alkema, 18 years old, 7210 South Sangamon street, were on their way to services at the Open Door mission, 7014 South Halsted street, when they saw the reformer. According to Alkema, Gilday was staggering uncertainly and in danger of falling.

In Boy Scout fashion the two youths decided, Alkema said, to do a good deed for a man who needed help.

"We went up to him," Alkema told the police, "and asked him where he lived. Knoll said that if he told us we would take him to his door. He was so drunk we had to hold him up by the arms.

Sees Gilday Draw Pistol.

"But he didn't want help. He jerked away from us and pulled a pistol out of his pocket. I saw him in time and I ran. But Knoll was too slow. He tried to take the pistol away from this man. I turned around when I heard a shot fired. Herman was falling down and the man was, too."

Alkema ran to a telephone and summoned the police.

His statement was verified by three other youths who were across the street from the scene of the shooting, which was the northwest corner of 70th and Green streets. These witnesses are Peter Wessles, 7422 Aberdeen street; Daniel Klosterman, 7109 South Morgan street, and Francis Hannon, 6946 South May street.

Tell Version to Police.

All went to the police station to relate that they had seen Knoll and Alkema walk up to Gilday and try to assist him. After the shooting, seeing the two men on the sidewalk, they ran over to them and Hannon took Knoll to the hospital, they said.

In the police station Gilday told a somewhat incoherent tale of two large, powerful men who had tried to hold him up. He described the assailants as about 27 or 28 years old and declared he had shot in self-defense. He pointed to a scratch on his nose and declared he had been slugged by one of the attackers.

Alkema asserted that Gilday had the scratch when he and Knoll first met him and that this injury was one of the things that caused them to feel sympathy for the reformer.

Pastor Praises Two Youths.

The Rev. Peter Epma, pastor of the Open Door mission, told the police that Knoll and Alkema were youths of good character and regular in their attendance at the mission.

Gilday vehemently defended his action. He declared he was the victim of a frameup.

"I've got a right to carry a gun," he said. "I'm an investigator. Yes, vice president of the Englewood Law and Order league and director of the Better Government association. Call Roche gave me the badge. Send for him. Send for E. J. Davis, the Better Government association superintendent. They'll get me out. Somebody slipped that liquor in my pocket."

Davis Makes Statement.

Mr. Davis appeared at the station and became angry when Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan refused him permission to talk privately with the prisoner.

"There is no more estimable citizen in Englewood than Gilday," declared Davis. "He never took a drop of liquor in his life. Recently he has been suffering from arterial trouble and he may have dropped unconscious on the street from this cause.

"This shooting is an inexpressible tragedy. Gilday was a volunteer in the work of cleaning up vice and booze. He has always been at war with the police. It is not unlikely that the bottle of liquor was planted on him. They wanted to get him and they had a motive to say he was intoxicated."

When he was asked if he would back Gilday in a fight for freedom, Davis said he would.

Statements by Witnesses.

Statements concerning the condition of Gilday after the shooting were taken by Lieut. Michael Vaughn and Mr. Coghlan.

Frank Fenerman, 6958 Green street, who ran out of his house when he heard the shot that wounded Knoll, said:

"Before the police arrived we moved Gilday up so he could sit on the curb. He was too intoxicated to get up himself. There was a strong odor of liquor on his breath."

Sergt. Walter Lyons, of the detective bureau, took Gilday to the Englewood hospital, where he was viewed by Dr. Leo Jacobsen. Lyons said the doctor declared Gilday intoxicated. The same opinion prevailed with the sergeant and with Policeman Edward Galbright of his squad.

Drunk, Other Policemen Say.

"He was drunk," said Lieut. Vaughn and the lockup keeper, William Crossey.

"Gilday staggered as he was being brought up to the desk," declared Desk Sergt. Daniel L. Stokes.

Lieut. Vaughn said that Gilday had appeared in his office at about 4 p. m. yesterday, boasting that he was going to make a real cleanup of vice and liquor resorts in Englewood.

"I'm taking the place of John Lyle now," he told the officer.

Judge Lyle, while a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, had promised a cleanup of gangs all over the city.

After Gilday's arrest Lieut. Vaughn ordered that he be taken to the police bureau of identification for finger printing, pictures, and measurements. Assistant State's Attorney Coghlan announced that the case would be investigated and prosecuted by the state's attorney's office "in the usual manner."

Swanson Disclaims Badge.

In regard to the badge of the state's attorney's office found in Gilday's possession State's Attorney Swanson said he had no knowledge of its being issued to Gilday. He said he did not believe it had been given to the reformer during the Swanson administration. Mr. Swanson said that two badges had been missing since the police graft investigation and that a search was being made for them. He expressed disbelief that Roche had appointed Gilday an investigator.

"Gilday is an insurance broker. He has been in charge of the Englewood Law and Order league since 1924. For several years he was a vice president of the Better Government association. He resigned that office about two years ago, but retained his directorship. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

In 1925 the Gilday home was bombed, the blast tearing away a part of the front porch. In January, 1929, Gilday reported to the police that he had found another bomb in his front hall. He attributed these attempts at damage to the enmity of lawbreakers whose places he was having closed. He claimed that forty-three Englewood speakeasies had been put out of business through information his league furnished prohibition agents.

Accuse Vivian of Permitting Juggling of Liquor Permits

Denver, Colo., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Another charge arose tonight to harass John F. Vivian, federal prohibition administrator, as his chief, Amos W. W. Woodcock, sped westward to take personal charge of an investigation that started after one of Vivian's agents clubbed to death a youth in an effort to obtain possession of three ounces of wine.

The newest charge is that Vivian countenanced the "juggling" of alcohol permits while their distribution was under his jurisdiction in 1929. It was made by Miss Velma J. Peddicord, former clerk in the prohibition bureau here, who claims she was "railroaded" out of the bureau by Vivian because she questioned his actions.

Vivian tonight said he thinks "something has been lost sight of" in the statewide indignation that has arisen over his administration.

Thinks Something Wrong.

"Something seems to have been lost sight of in this matter," he said. "That is the law itself. The prohibition law must be enforced."

Thus does he answer charges that his agents "framed" innocent men and women, were brutal, that they used young girls as procurers of whisky, that they staged parties and drank confiscated liquor.

Miss Peddicord charges that her complaint against irregularities in the alcohol permit division was never fully investigated by Washington authorities. She forwarded to Washington a list of twenty-three alcohol permittees, including prominent Denver physicians and businessmen, whose records, she charged, would show violations of federal alcohol statutes.

Facts in this case have been presented Woodcock's two special intelligence officers, Perry A. Shirley and George S. Taylor, who will confer with Woodcock immediately after his arrival here tomorrow morning.

Shirley and Taylor came here after Woodcock learned the facts regarding the death of Milford G. Smith, Englewood youth, killed by Dierks. Vivian submitted to him only statements of Dierks and an agent with him, ignoring complaints of Englewood citizens.

Negotiating for Loan.

Several days ago it was learned that in December, 1930, two months before Dierks became an agent and while he still was an undercover man, Vivian was negotiating with him for a $4,000 loan which he said in letters bearing his signature he expected to receive before May.

Still another phase in the character of Vivian was revealed today through records of the Jefferson county court in Golden, his home city, where it is shown he threatened to take bankruptcy to avoid payment of $1,300 to the estate of a life-long friend.

Hand Injured as Bomb He Found in Lot Explodes

Mit Ito, 42 years old, said by police to be a Japanese, suffered cuts and burns on his hands last night when a powder device described as a bomb, exploded in his room at 6635 Ellis avenue. He was treated at the Woodlown hospital, where it was said his right hand was virtually paralyzed. Ito told police that he found three short lengths of pipe in a prairie near his home, and was prodding one of them when it exploded.

KIDNAPED AND ROBBED.

Plymouth, Ind., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Ralph Miller, a filling station attendant, was kidnaped tonight by two men driving an Ohio car, robbed of $60 and released eight miles west of here. The same station was robbed Thanksgiving night

DAN SERRITELLA'S TRIAL SCHEDULED TO BEGIN TODAY

State Senator Daniel Serritella, city sealer under the last city hall régime, is scheduled to go to trial today in Judge Phillip Sullivan's Criminal court. Harry Hocksteln, 20th ward politician and former chief deputy sealer, is a co-defendant with the state senator on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the public by allowing short weighting by merchants, especially in the poor districts.

Assistant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyfarth announced yesterday that they are ready and anxious to proceed to an immediate trial. They pointed out that they have been fighting for more than six months to bring the case to trial.

In view of the special session of the legislature on the tax situation, it is expected by the prosecutors that a request for another continuance will come from the attorneys representing Serritella.

LEGION LEADERS SEEK ACTION IN HOME BREW CASE

Congressman Will Appeal to Hoover Today.

While awaiting the outcome of a personal appeal to President Hoover today by Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, who will ask a pardon for Bolesiaw Lidikewicz, the home brewing janitor, American Legion members announced yesterday that they are pressing for a decision regarding Charles L. Wiley. Although Lidikewicz and Wiley got into trouble over the same batch of home brew, their cases are separate because Lidikewicz is now serving a 60 day sentence and Wiley, a Legion member, is awaiting action by a federal grand jury.

Ask Hoover for Clemency.

A committee of representatives of foreign born Americans sent a petition to Hoover asking clemency for Lidikewicz. Congressman Schuetz, representing the 7th Illinois district in which Lidikewicz and Wiley live, will follow that petition by outlining the case to President Hoover. Wiley's case is summed up in a letter sent to Prohibition Administrator A. W. Woodcock by Charles West, one of the leaders in the Cook County Council of American Legion Posts and a Republican candidate for congress in the 10th district. The letter said:

"Another illustration of the misguided manner in which your supernumeraries are behaving—in the name of the law—has been shown right here in Chicago. C. L. Wiley, a war veteran with a highly commendable record, was made the scapegoat of a campaign of terrorism which a record seeking assistant United States attorney is attempting to institute as a curb to so termed minor violations of the 18th amendment. Wiley, seeking to show that another person [Lidikewicz], who was on trial, had not really violated the law, was himself in turn placed under arrest as an accessory.

Assails Dry Tactics.

"We advise you to take heed. Unless the unrestricted warfare instituted by your supernumeraries upon war veterans is stopped, you may bring about a revolt among the taxpayers."

SPECIAL JERSEY ELECTION AUGUR OF 1932 FEELING

Base Race on National Issues.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—In New Jersey, which recently surprised the nation with a record Democratic gubernatorial puirality, political events of wide interest will take place next Tuesday.

On that date the special election in the Fifth congressional district, which hinges almost entirely on national issues, will be held, and Gov. Morgan F. Larson has promised to appoint a successor to the late United States Senator Dwight W. Morrow by then.

On Tuesday the governor also will confer with Republican leaders on the special legislative session on congressional redistricting, which may reveal whether Democrats or Republicans may hope to gain two new votes in the house next year.

Call Aid From Outside.

Both Donald H. McLean of Hillside, the Republican candidate, and Percy H. Stewart of Plainfield, the Democratic candidate to succeed the late Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, at the election in Union and Morris counties, have called upon national figures in their parties to aid them in the campaign.

Mr. Stewart's array, which began with Gov. Elect Moore and included Senators Wagner and Copeland of New York, closed tonight with Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee.

Hoover Made an Issue.

The Democratic campaigners have held to one issue: That the Hoover Republican administration, by refusing to face the facts of the depression and by vacillating in taking steps toward recovery, was responsible for the severity of the depression. With equal consistency Mr. McLean and his Republican aides have defended the administration, pointed to its actions for business stabilization and aid for the victims of economic circumstance.

Swedish Liquor Monopoly Will Not Buy for 3 Months

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 29.—The Swedish wine and spirits monopoly which supplies liquor to all Sweden today announced it would make no more purchases for at least three months as it has a large supply on hand. France will be chiefly affected, but Scotch whisky distillers and many English wine merchants will also suffer.

RIO GRANDE TRIP GIVEN AS PRIZE IN BRIDGE PLAY

Woman Makes Offer to Aid Relief Funds.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Somebody's score cards, handed in at the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel on Thursday night of this week, will win for two persons a trip to the Rio Grande country, with the opportunity of spending New Year's eve in old Mexico. Now then, bridge players, what about those reservations for the Golden Cards tournament?

LAWRENCE SALERNO.

One flash after another, emanating yesterday from the office in the hotel, where preparations for the tournament fairly bowled along, even despite the Sunday lull, were climaxed by the announcement of the generous contribution for this trip. The donor is Mrs. O. J. Rabe, one of the best known clubwomen in the city, whose diverse interests and numerous philanthropic activities are indicated in her many organization allegiances. She has held the presidency of several important groups and is enthusiastically behind the Golden Cards tournament.

Wants to Help Funds.

"I want to do whatever I can to promote the work of the Hungry School Children's and the Joint Emergency Relief funds," she said in making the offer. "I've visited old Mexico and the Rio Grande country and I love it, so I can't think of anything nicer than to provide a week's trip down there as the prize for the games at the Blackstone. It's a wonderfully picturesque country. And there's no more marvelous town on earth than Matamoros, just across the border. It has all the lure of old Spain—bull fights, pretty senoritas, cabarets, and an atmosphere all its own."

Enthusiasm was shown in the office of Miss Virginia de la Court, who is directing plans for both the Drake and the Blackstone hotels. Her telephone rang as constantly as though this were political headquarters during a hot campaign.

Movie Star in Charge.

Herbert Rawlinson, stage and screen star, it is now assured, will be master of ceremonies for the musical program to be staged following the bridge games, and will introduce the celebrities who have been invited.

Moreover, the program of music to be presented under the Rawlinson directorship is to be headlined by Lawrence Salerno, whose Neapolitan serenades over station W-G-N are the delight of a vast army of fans. The popular Italian baritone will bring with him another radio star, Allen Grant, whose dexterous fingers on the ivory keys of a piano have evolved into one of the best liked features of W-G-N. He will provide the accompaniments for the Salerno songs.

Nonplayers Can Attend.

Nonbridge players who wish to attend as spectators and to witness the program afterwards may do so, it was emphasized yesterday by Miss de la Court, at the admittance price of $2 per individual. Seats will be arranged on the balcony of the ballroom during the tournament, and afterward on the dance floor.

Reservations for tables may be made by any club or private group, free of charge for the service. They of course are requested to make their arrangements in advance, so that singles, twosomes and threesomes may be fitted into the tables without undue loss of time and effort. Mrs. Lydia Thomas Rayle, well known Chicago bridge expert, is in charge of the table lists.

"One thing more," Miss De La Court added. "Those who wish to take advantage of the special Golden Cards dinner that will be served in the main dining rooms of the Drake and Blackstone Thursday evening, are asked to make their reservations early, as serving will begin at 6 o'clock to be sure every one is accommodated by 8. The decks of Golden Cards must be shown by diners to secure the special dinner."

Other Hotels Prepare.

Other large hotels also were deep in preparations yesterday for the tournament. At the Shoreland, Miss Jessie Bradshaw, hostess, is completing an elaborate program for the fete, which is to include a fashion promenade with a half dozen debutantes, members of the Service club, as models. Theatrical stars also will contribute to the merriment. Mrs. Virginia Tubbs, widely known as a bridge player and instructor, is prominent on the evening's schedule.

At the Knickerbocker hotel, Edward J. Tobin, an outstanding Chicago bridge player, is supervising the arrangements. Refreshments will be served to the auction and contract sharks—and amateurs—who participate in the tournament. Charles True Adams, bridge editor of THE TRIBUNE, will come to the Knickerbocker following his radio address on W-G-N, for a brief talk.

Mr. Adams is also scheduled to appear downstairs at the Drake after his broadcast to address the players. He will go from there across the street to the other group of players directed by Mr. Tobin.

Woman Praises Funds.

Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations, made a radio talk last night endorsing the tournament and its beneficiaries, the Hungry School Children's and the Joint Emergency Relief funds. Tonight at 10:15 o'clock Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin will make a similar appeal.

Co-eds in Drive Today.

Sorority houses on the campus of Northwestern university will send forth this morning a band of attractive co-eds who have offered their services to help out the tournament. Shortly after noon this energetic group will set out from the Tribune Tower, in special cars, bound for the loop district. There they will be assigned various large buildings as territory for the various teams, to enlist as many additional bridge players and dispose of as many decks of the Golden Cards as possible during the afternoon.

Decks of cards for the tournament cost $2 apiece, or $8 for a box of four, which constitutes one table. Individual decks may be purchased from any of the Public Service offices of THE TRIBUNE, or in the lobby of Tribune Tower. Mail orders and checks should be directed to the Golden Cards Editor, at Tribune Tower.

Play will begin at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening, Dec. 3, in hotels, private homes, clubs and anywhere else a table is set up for the purpose. Proceeds will be divided between the two philanthropies mentioned above.

REVEAL CAPTIVE AS MAKER OF PRISON STILL

Frank Placek, 1900 West 19th street, was arrested Friday night after an automobile chase by Sergt. John Hanrahan's squad. He had four bags of brown sugar in his car and refused to tell the detectives what use he was going to make of it. Yesterday at the detective bureau showup Sergt. William Bergen, who was formerly a guard at the Pontiac reformatory, recognized the prisoner.

"He served 56 months at Pontiac," Bergen said, "and while there he and another prisoner tried to make a still in their cell. They were nearly ready to make moonshine when we discovered it. He must have a still some where in Chicago."

No still was found at Placek's home.

AARON FOX HERE AS HEAD OF NEW MOVIE COMPANY

Aaron Fox, formerly associated with his brother, William Fox, in the operation of the Fox film enterprises, yesterday announced the launching of a new company to be known as the Aaron Fox Film corporation. Mr. Fox and his associate, Ralph Lewis, were in Chicago to negotiate the lease or purchase of a site for a new loop theater, he said.

The new company, recently incorporated in Delaware, contemplates the production, distribution and exhibition of films, Mr. Fox said.

No site has been selected for the Chicago house, he said. The plan, however, is to spend $2,000,000 for the erection of a new house, somewhere downtown, with a seating capacity of 4,000, he said.

SCIENTIFIC BODY BACKS DOGS' USE IN MEDIC WORK

The Chicago Scientific association, meeting yesterday at the University of Chicago, voted to support the Arvey amendment to the dog pound ordinance which is to be voted upon by the city council tomorrow, according to the president, Prof. A. C. Ivy of Northwestern university. The amendment will allow medical schools to use impounded dogs for experiments.

Copies of a statement prepared by the association were sent to all the aldermen. It pointed out that the dogs would be killed by fumes from a gas engine if they are not given to the medical schools, that the schools would not subject them to inhumane treatment, and that only through experiments on animals have great advances in medicine and surgery been achieved. The statement was also signed by Prof. A. J. Carlson and Prof. A. B. Luckhardt of the University of Chicago.

FIGURES SHOW STEADY CLIMBING OF TAX RATES

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The present special session of the legislature will be unusual if it fails to boost taxes on Chicago property. One must go back farther than 30 years to find a regular session which did not pass laws to increase the cost of local government, which in turn has shoved up taxes.

Until recently, when the property owners became tax conscious, the legislators have been able to justify their acts. They have pointed with technical accuracy to the fact that the tax rate in 1913 was $5.01 on the west side in Chicago. In 1918 it went up to $5.67 and in 1919 it dropped down to $5.36 and is now only $4.03. As between 1913 and 1929 the west side rate has advanced only $1.01—a boost of 20 per cent.

The Increase in Taxes.

Officially those figures are correct, but actually they are misleading. The legislature in this period has boosted the tax rates a minimum of 240 per cent, instead of 20 per cent on any reasonably comparable basis.

The $5.01 tax rate of 1913 was on a tax valuation of one-third of the full value. The tax valuations were boosted from one-third to one-half in 1919 by an act of the legislature, and from one-half to full value in 1927. A rate of $5.01 in 1913 is the equivalent of a rate of $1.67 on the present basis of valuing property.

The rate for the west side for 1929 was not $1.67 but $4.03. That represents the increase in tax rates which the legislature has authorized between 1913 and 1929. That is a boost of 141 per cent.

The present "full valuation" is only 37 per cent of the market value, but the records indicate that during the years when only one-third or one-half of the "full value" was taken, the "full value" was never more than 37 per cent.

Authorize Further Increases.

The legislature has already passed laws which authorize an estimated west side rate of $6.80 for 1930 and a rate of $6.93 for 1931. As between a rate of $1.67 in 1913 and $6.93 for 1931 the legislature has authorized a boost in taxes of 321 per cent—not 20 per cent.

A comparison of the tax rates authorized by the legislature for the west side, on a comparable basis of assessed valuations, is shown in a table which follows. The 1930 rates are official and have been applied to the full valuation. The rates for 1919, 1913, and 1913 are on the same basis of reckoning. The tabulation follows:

State	$6.70	$0.50	$0.333	$0.126
County	.45	.243	.18	.173
City	1.59	1.54	.553	.418
Schools	2.84	.702	.503	.563
Forest preserve	.09	.063	....	....
Sanitary dist...	.27	.115	.175	.163
Totals	$6.80	$3.53	$1.80	$1.67

The legislature has boosted the tax rates by different methods. Often it has openly authorized an increase. At other times it has created new services or functions which have called for more taxes. At still other times it has increased the assessed valuation, which in turn permitted the issuance of more bonds, and these have required more taxes to pay off the bonds and interest on them.

Figures on West Side Rates.

Year.	Tax rate.	Year.	Tax rate.
1913	$5.01	1923	$4.95
1914	*4.50	1924	4.90
1915	5.03	1925	5.02
1916	5.18	1926	5.78
1917	4.90	1927	2.68
1918	4.61	1928	2.07
1919	4.30	1929	1.89

*Estimated.

A number of legislators have said they desire to reduce taxes. So far there have been two votes which indicate how the legislature feels on that subject. One was in the senate, when Senator Harold Kessinger of Aurora offered a resolution to reduce a few state salaries in 1932. His resolution received only 14 votes out of 51 to place it upon the calendar for consideration.

In the house a bill was passed authorizing the Chicago board of education to operate the Crane Junior college, which it is expected will eventually increase expenditures. There were only three or four votes against that bill.

MAYOR TO HOLD PAY RELIEF CONFERENCE WITH CITIZENS TODAY

Mayor Cermak today will hold a conference with some of the largest taxpayers of the city in an effort to get financial relief for municipal employés. The mayor is to ask the taxpayers to purchase 1930 tax anticipation warrants to provide funds with which to meet payrolls.

After tomorrow, Dec. 1, there will be no cash in the treasury to pay the 25,000 city employés, Comptroller Szymczak has announced. The employés are divided as follows: 10,000 police and firemen, 2,500 employés of the election board, public library and the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium; and 11,000 in other departments. The city's 18,000 school employés have been paid for only one month since April.

Among the taxpayers who have been invited to the conference are: D. F. Kelly, James Simpson, Philip R. Clarke, Charles A. Stevens, John T. Pirie, James R. Leavell, Henry A. Blair, Sewell L. Avery, Samuel Insull, Britton I. Budd, Melvin A. Traylor, P. K. Wrigley, E. J. Buffington, Ernest R. Graham, W. R. Abbott, and George M. Reynolds.

TAX RELIEF PLAN INADEQUATE, SAYS REALTY LEADER

Mark Levy, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, in a statement yesterday said that the proposals of the governor's tax conference before the legislature do not give real estate adequate relief for its pressing obligation of meeting the 1930 general taxes. He said there will be no relief for the taxpayers unless the program of the board is adopted.

"The program of the board is that of lifting the 1930 taxes, with the exception of the state's share, by means of a bond issue spread over a period not to exceed twenty years, which bond issue shall become a lien not upon real estate and its tax rolls, but upon the assets of the commonwealth of Cook county and its various municipalities," Mr. Levy said.

"Even if the bills of the commission are passed, their effectiveness is too far in the future, in my opinion, to do any good now. The payment of 1930 taxes cannot be affected by the proceeds of an income tax, a tobacco tax, or an automobile truck tax. We have given months of study to our plan as well as to other plans and have been assured of the constitutionality of our bills by many eminent attorneys."

Mr. Levy and H. H. Haylett, business manager of the board, will go to Springfield today in the interest of the realty board's revenue program.

HUNGARY JAILS 120 SUSPECTS FOR PLOT TO REVOLT

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 29.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty suspects arrested in connection with a purported conspiracy to overthrow the government and establish a dictatorship were huddled in the Budapest military prison tonight.

It was widely believed they were awaiting arraignment before a military court, but this depends on the decision of the public prosecutor. If their activities are found to have been directed at the state itself rather than against the public only, such a course surely will be followed.

The prisoners may include many innocent of active participation in the plot, it was pointed out in official quarters, but their testimony is expected to help to clear up the case. Many of them are described by police as plunderers or other irregulars of the counter-revolutionary period.

SEEK TO ASSESS MANY MILLIONS IN CAPITAL STOCK

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The assessors have a plan to add between $363,000,000 and $1,736,000,000 of capital stock values to the 1931 tax assessment, if the legislature will give the board power to subpoena and question witnesses under oath.

CHARLES FOX. [Kaufmann & Fabry]

With this added fact finding power, the assessors say they can reduce the taxes on real estate 23 to 25 per cent, whereas they say the governor's tax conference has proposed a cut of only 11 per cent. They also assert that if they are given the power to find taxable values there is no reason for income, tobacco and bus taxes, as recommended by the governor's tax conference.

Abolition of Board Asked.

The governor's conference has recommended the abolition of the board of assessors with its five members and the substitution of one assessor appointed by the county board. The assessors and some of their employés have been lobbying at Springfield against this program.

But judging from the views expressed at a five hour session of the council finance committee recently the aldermen are likely to support the plan to abolish the board of assessors. Most of the aldermen who expressed opinions favored the elimination of the present board, but they want the single assessor to be elected instead of appointed.

View of Appraiser Fox.

"A survey of the report of the secretary of state," explained Charles Fox, chief appraiser of the assessors, yesterday, "shows that the corporations of Cook county are authorized to issue in excess of $7,000,000,000 of capital stock. Some of that stock has not been issued.

"The law provides that the value of real estate and personal property shall be deducted from the value of a corporation's capital stock and the remainder assessed as capital stock.

"We do not need any new taxes, if the assessors are given power to get the facts regarding taxable wealth. Capital stock comes close to escaping taxation altogether at present."

The Assessors' Contention.

The argument of the assessors for their plan is this: assuming that only one-third of the capital of Cook county corporations could be assessed as capital stock, and that one-third were reduced to 37 per cent to obtain a tax valuation, $863,000,000 would be added to the assessment roll.

Personal property and capital stock would then be 38 per cent of the tax roll, instead of 17 per cent, as at present. Therefore real estate and railroads, which now pay 83 per cent of the taxes, would pay only 62 per cent—a tax saving for these classes of property of 23 to 25 per cent.

The assessors say that an income tax with estimated revenue of $30,000,000, tobacco tax of $18,000,000, and bus and truck tax of $800,000 would reduce real estate taxes less than 11 per cent.

They also intend to charge that the Illinois Manufacturers' association instructed its members last year how to "beat a capital stock tax." The assessors have a copy of the association's circular, which in effect, it is said, tells the manufacturers they can value their capital stock at the total of their real estate and personal property, so that there will be no capital stock to assess.

CALLS EDUCATED MOST HELPLESS IN A DEPRESSION

Says There's Too Many College Trained.

The survey recently compiled by the association on the effects of the industrial depression upon its own membership had indicated that in that particular group of 2,000 the woman with the post-graduate degree had survived the perils of unemployment better than any others, and that she belonged to the group with the highest medium salary, $4,105.

Field Is Saturated.

Mrs. Beard warned the gathering against being unduly optimistic about the value of college degrees.

"It is likely that this country has reached the point of saturation for the college trained woman as for the college man," she said. "If we had any more women Ph. D.'s we could not assimilate them.

"There is a great deal of evidence that college education is not only negative but is a liability in the business world. I am told that the waiting benches in Wall street are filled with curly haired college boys who want to become messengers, ordinarily a menial job and one which they cannot do so well as the uneducated persons because of psychological handicaps. Educated people cannot compete with the peasant types. They suffer from repressions and live too much by rule."

History showed, Mrs. Beard continued, that the educated person always has been "up against it" in a crisis, and that the peasant was the one who survived.

Suggests New Fields.

Mrs. Beard besought the women to open up new fields of activity for their sex instead of competing with men. She suggested the field of housing reform, saying Americans were the "worst housed" people in the world.

Dr. Kathryn McHale, director of the American Association of University Women, called attention to the plight of the young alumna, "just an infant psychologically," who today finds herself unable to get a position even in the professions normally open to women. The older women whose savings for old age have shrunk are also among the distressed at this time.

Irene Lockbaum, 17 years old, 219 South Utica street, Waukegan, died in the Victory Memorial hospital there yesterday, the fifth victim of the grade crossing crash Saturday night in North Chicago in which her sister and three other companions were killed instantly.

The small coupe in which six young people were riding was struck at the Fort Park avenue crossing by an interurban car on the shore line of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad. The sixth occupant of the car, Laura Myrick, 18 years old, 102 South West street, Waukegan, is in a critical condition in the Victory Memorial hospital.

List Four Killed.

Those killed were Arthur Beshel, 18 years old, who was driving the car, purchased ten days ago by his father, a well-to-do farmer at Gurnee; John Habjan, 21 years old, 1022 South Jackson street, North Chicago; Thelma Lockbaum, 15 years old, sister of Irene; and Dorothy Olson, 16 years old, 1002 Cummings avenue, Waukegan.

Conflicting stories of the accident are expected at the inquest called for today by Coroner John Taylor of Lake county. It was charged by a railway official that the automobile was traveling 50 miles an hour without lights and ran into the train.

Policeman's Story Differs.

Policeman Ralph Smith of North Chicago charged that the automobile was traveling at a reasonable rate with its lights on, and that it was struck by the car, which was going at high speed. There are no warning signals at the crossing, which has been the scene of several accidents in recent years, and a watchman on duty there goes home at 10 p. m., police said.

The accident is the second fatal one in which North Shore line trains have been involved in the vicinity recently. On Oct. 11 four youths were killed by a train on the Skokie Valley route at Eighth street in Waukegan. Three coroner's inquests were held in that case before a jury returning a verdict holding the railroad responsible for the accident.

Gary Fireman Killed.

George L. Fisher, 45 years old, a Gary city fireman, died in Mercy hospital in Gary yesterday of injuries received in an early morning automobile crash at 35th avenue and Jefferson street in Gary. His wife, Martha, 43 years old, received a fractured skull. Russell Denny, 20 years old, driver of the other car, was charged with manslaughter and released on $5,000 bonds.

Three deaths in Cook county yesterday raised in 1931 motor toll to 1,170. The victims:

Thomas McDermott, 50 years old, 316 South Green street. Died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at Washington boulevard and Green street. Maurice Bold, 23 years old, 4307 West 13th street, driver of the car, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Anton Kec, 50 years old. Struck and killed by a hit and run driver at 18th street and Ogden avenue, Cicero. From papers in his pockets Cicero police said that Kec was a lumberjack from Wisconsin.

Joel N. Sturgis, 79 years old, 7200 Ridge avenue, died at St. Francis hospital, Evanston, of injuries suffered Saturday when hit by the car of Robert H. Sewall, 7543 Ridge avenue, at Howard street and Ridge avenue. Mr. Sturgis was a pioneer Rogers Park resident.

Truck and Street Car Crash.

Thomas Fraher, 25 years old, 537 West 32d street, a truck driver, was critically injured last night and five passengers on a street car were cut and bruised when Fraher drove his vehicle into the side of a 35th street car at Parnell avenue. The passengers hurt are John Tovich, 42 years old, 3025 Wentworth avenue; Agnes Lustro, 16, of 2731 Congress street; May Appner, 35, of 6601 Cottage Grove avenue; Leo Stewart, 25, of 83 East 31st street, and Nanette Burke, 25, of 3520 South Park avenue, the latter two colored. All were taken to St. Paul's emergency hospital.

A man believed to be Joe Krause, 3027 Cheltenham place, was probably fatally injured when he veered his machine into the side of a street car in Brandon avenue at 79th street. He was taken to the South Shore hospital.

CAPT. FRIED TO COMMAND NEW AMERICAN LINER

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Capt. George Fried, one of the best known skippers in the American merchant marine, will command the new United States liner Manhattan when that vessel enters service early next year, according to announcement today by the steamship company. The Manhattan, largest merchant marine ship ever built in America, will be launched from the Camden yards of the New York Shipbuilding company at 10:20 a. m. Saturday.

Capt. Fried achieved fame in several rescues. He has received many decorations for his courage and seamanship.

Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim F. Hamilton, 5438 Ferdinand street, were driving past the place in their automobile, when they noticed the sputtering fuse. They were about to halt, when the blast occurred. Their car was rocked and the windows broken. Brick and glass showered upon them, but they were not hurt. The car was damaged to the extent of $125.

Total damage by the blast amounted to $3,000, and was confined chiefly to windows in the dye plant, in the plant of the Continental Baking company at 2015 Lake street [across the way], and in stores and residences nearby. The dye company employs union labor. F. W. Crowley, 904 North Oak Park avenue, president, and his son, W. R. Crowley, 2226 Rosemont avenue, manager, said they had no labor or other troubles and could not account for the attack.

GANDHI PREDICTS 'HELL IN INDIA' UPON HIS RETURN

'Holy Man' Reveals Plans to Battle Britain.

London, Nov. 29.—(AP)—From behind a curtain of cold, raw fog, Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, before dawn today revealed as he walked the streets his plans to renew the struggle against Great Britain for India's freedom.

"There is going to be hell," he said.

The little man, head bowed, shoulders drooping and his homespun shawl pulled tightly around his body, said: "I leave Saturday for Bombay. There we shall take up again our weaponless battle against England."

Leaves "With Nothing."

From behind him came the solicitous words of Miss Madeline Slade, his devoted disciple, "This way, Baaboo [Father]," and Gandhi paused while the daughter of a former admiral picked up the end of his trailing shawl and put it around his shoulder as if he were a child.

"We must again go through a Calvary of suffering," he continued, after a moment's silence. "It is God's will that we must take up our heavy cross again and carry it to the end."

"How soon after your return to India will you begin the battle?" he was asked.

India's Masses Await Signal.

"The masses of India are only awaiting my signal," he replied, "but I think I shall study conditions awhile before I give it."

"Do you expect the British to put you in jail again?" was the next question.

"Yes, I expect to be the guest of the government again at Yerovda jail," he answered with an almost joyful air, "or they may deport me—but the fight will go on."

Asked what effect a possible resort to arms would have on India he countered: "What effect can these toys have upon people who are starving for their liberty?"

Gandhi Not Sorry He Came.

"Are you sorry you came to England?" the correspondent queried.

"No," he said firmly, "I was only a myth and a mystery to many Britishers until I came."

On the walk home the little party almost ran into a milk wagon and the driver flashed his lantern hardly two inches from the mahatma's face. Then he spoke apologetically. "O, good morning, Mr. Gandhi. It's rotten weather."

"Yes, quite British," was the reply.

ILLNESS MAY DELAY WALKER'S PLEA FOR RELEASE OF MOONEY

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Mayor Walker's prospective appearance on Tuesday to plead for a pardon for Tom Mooney from Gov. Rolph was seriously threatened today when he was confined to his hotel by orders of a physician, who found him suffering from the symptoms of influenza, of which there now is an epidemic in San Francisco.

The mayor has been suffering all week from a severe head cold, but he has not permitted it to interfere with his engagements. He retired early last night, feeling extremely fatigued, but was unable to get much sleep. This morning upon waking he complained of a severe congestion in his chest and said he thought he might be getting pneumonia. His voice was hoarse and his eyes red, and his general appearance was that of a sick man.

ROB BANKER'S DAUGHTER BUT IT ENDS WELL

Three armed men held up Miss Janet O'Leary, 1700 Waukegan road, Lake Forest, and her fiancé, Rufus Brown of Oshkosh, Wis., in front of 321 Ridge avenue, Evanston, early yesterday.

From Miss O'Leary, who is the daughter of John W. O'Leary, vice chairman of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, the robbers took a diamond and emerald ring valued at $1,500, and from Brown a watch and $5.

The couple, who were driving from Chicago to the O'Leary home after a dance, proceeded on their way. Shortly before noon Brown reported the loss to the Evanston police and went with Detectives Feeley and Rouland to the scene. Kicking around in the leaves piled up at the curb, they found Miss O'Leary's ring. The robbers had dropped it in their haste to get away.

IOWA COLLEGE CAPTURES PRIZE AT STOCK SHOW

Team Wins in Animal Judging Contest.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Five agricultural college students from Iowa yesterday won over similar teams from nineteen other states in the intercollegiate live stock judging contest which featured the second record breaking day for the 32d International Live Stock exposition at the stockyards.

A crowd of thousands packed the judging arena during the afternoon horse show and prize animal parades, the largest Sunday attendance the exposition has ever had.

The Iowa State college judging team, coached by Prof. T. R. Shearer, won by a close margin over last year's winning school, Oklahoma A. and M. college, 4,542 being Iowa's score and 4,528 Oklahoma's. The Kansas team won third place; Ohio, fourth, and Texas, fifth. The judging included classes of draft horses, beef cattle, fat hogs, and sheep.

Iowa Wins Lipton Trophy.

The Iowa college by yesterday's victory won a silver trophy awarded by Sir Thomas Lipton, the English sportsman, who made provision for this annual prize before his death.

The Iowans also gained a "leg" on the bronze bull trophy offered by the Union Stock Yard and Transit company for the college team which wins the judging a third time. Oklahoma and Purdue university each have a similar claim to this permanent prize.

Russell Turner of the Oklahoma team was individually the highest scoring college judge, with a score of 942 points. R. C. Munson and F. D. McCammon, both of Kansas, were second and third, respectively.

Starting today—Illinois day at the show by proclamation of Gov. Emmerson—the arena where the premier farm animals of the world are selected will be occupied by veteran judges who will begin the careful elimination process toward naming the grand champions of the show.

In another section of the twenty acre expanse of displays the judging of grain will be carried on. Much interest attached yesterday to the entries of wheat and corn, the former including many Canadian growers' offerings. It is expected that the wheat king and corn king will be named tomorrow, although widespread competition this year has made the selection more difficult.

Horse Show Draws Crowds.

Yesterday afternoon's horse show was a departure in the annals of Chicago's great agricultural exposition. At the close, Manager B. H. Heide declared "the response has been so great that the show will likely be continued on Sundays in succeeding years." Always before the arena has been dark on Sunday.

A novel event during the afternoon was the privilege given the visitors of selecting winners by popular acclaim instead of having the selection done by official judges. Another attraction was the showing by Wendell Morgan, 16 years old, of Aledo, Ill., of his junior champion fat steer. This stocky, jet black little animal, an Aberdeen Angus called Coalie, won by a narrow margin on Saturday over another Angus calf which was shown by Wendell's 10 year old brother, Lawrence.

Housewives attending the exposition have shown particular interest in the extensive exhibits of the state agricultural colleges and the national live stock and meat board. Here in glassed coolers are shown the modern styles in meat cuts, how to select the most desirable as well as economical meats, and how to serve them.

Another unusual sight attracting crowds of Chicagoans is the wool show, where each step in wool making from the fleece on the sheep's back to the finished product, is shown. A reproduction of the first grain reaper developed by Cyrus Hall McCormick in 1831 also is on display.

One of the novelties in the exposition this year is a large buffalo contrasted with various types of cattle which have succeeded him as source of beef steaks on the North American continent.

1,200 4-H Club Members See Sights of City; Winners Picked

Twelve hundred boys and girls who have arrived in Chicago from their farm homes in 44 states and a Canadian province, were welcomed yesterday at the headquarters of the tenth annual 4-H club congress in the Hotel La Salle and escorted in large groups through the loop and to the Field Museum for their first inspection of the city.

The 4-H club members are from 10 to 20 years of age. They represent a total membership of 850,000 in 4-H clubs throughout the nation and each is a state winner in some branch of the club's activities. Two boys' clubs bands, from Sedgwick county, Kan., and Hamilton county, Ia., commanded the most attention in combination with a group of twenty-six attractive Iowa club girls wearing gayly colored woolen coats, skirts and berets manufactured in Iowa, of Iowa wool. The 4-H clubs typify the four ideals of health, hand, heart and head.

Many Go to Church.

Yesterday morning a large number of the delegates attended church services, and last night they were present at a special service at the First Methodist Episcopal church at Chicago temple. During the afternoon they also visited Shedd Aquarium.

Today the 1,200 delegates will attend the International Livestock exposition, marching in a body onto the grounds. A competition for the selection of the healthiest boy and girl of the entire membership will be scored at McCormick Memorial Institute. Tonight they will be the guests of Thomas E. Wilson at dinner after an inspection of the Wilson & Co., plant.

Judging of exhibits sent to the exposition by the winners of various club activities in each state was begun last night. Miss Ruth Carsten of Gage county, Neb., won first prize in the home furnishing contest by refinishing an old walnut sewing machine cabinet as a dressing table and an old walnut chair and a mirror. The Iowa girls' club lost this first place for the first time in eight years.

Miss Cora Longerson of Albert Lea, Minn., won first prize in the window improvement contest with a pair of curtains that cost only $1.50. An unusual attraction was the pair of curtains made by Miss Marian Ross of Boone county, Iowa, for 26 cents out of cotton mill ends. She was awarded fourth place.

Cotton Dress Wins Award.

Miss Dorothy Hinder of Biltmore county, Md., won first place in the complete costume contest, with a cotton dress. Miss Audrey Spencer, of Woodbury county, Ia., won first place in the children's clothing contest and Miss Georgia Huber of Hendricks county, Ind., won first place in the school dress contest with a cotton dress.

Miss Phyllis Howard of Cambridge City, Ind., won first prize in the vegetable canning contest, Miss Frances Syman of the same city first place in the fruit canning contest and Miss Marjorie Mae Brandeberg of Fruitdale, South Dakota, first place in the meat canning contest. Miss Hazel Meyers of Carroll county, Ind., won first place in the contest for the best menu for a family of five.

Negroes Protest Alleged Mistreatment by Police

Protests against alleged mistreatment by police of south side Negro residents were made yesterday in a mass meeting of 800 men and women in the Wendell Phillips High school, Pershing road and Prairie avenue. The meeting was held under direction of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Edgar G. Brown presided. Dr. Herbert C. Turner, president of the association, spoke. Fifty-six Negro ministers attended. The ministers and Dr. Turner will present their grievance to Mayor Cermak today.

FAIL TO CATCH THIEVES TAKING $60,000 IN GEMS

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Thieves who yesterday ransacked the Park avenue home of Herbert N. Straus, vice president and treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., and escaped with about $60,000 worth of jewelry, were still at large tonight. The police had obtained an itemized list of the valuables.

The police have been unable to obtain any clews from members of the family or their ten servants as to the manner in which the robbers gained admission to the house and stole the jewelry from a box in a closet in a bedroom on the second floor.

BOURBONS, WITH NOT ONE CROWN, PLAN 'POWWOW'

French Pretender Seeks to Lead Family.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—John IV., duke of Guise, head of the house of Bourbon-Orleans and pretender to the French throne, has issued an invitation to all senior members of the branches of the Bourbon family to attend a conference in England early in January.

The proposed meeting, although supposedly a mere family gathering, was inspired, it is believed, by the situation arising from the ousting of Alfonso, former king of Spain.

For the first time in many centuries Europe has not a single Bourbon on the throne. An effort will be made to reconcile the conflicting claims of several branches of the family, especially those of the royal houses of Bourbon-Castille and Bourbon-Spain. The conference will be confined to the male members of the family, as a princess of the house cannot reign in her own right.

The duke of Guise, the duke of Vendome, Prince Henry of France, former King Alfonso, the duke of Apulia, Don Jaime de Bourbon-Castille and other princes of the houses of Bourbon-Sicily, Bourbon-Parma and Bourbon-Braganza will meet for their "powwow" at Claremont, Surrey, at the home of Don Luis de Bourbon, brother-in-law of the dowager Queen Marie of Roumania, and cousin, twice removed, of King George of England. The deliberations of these descendants of a dozen Holy Roman emperors and 500 "most Christian kings" will be strictly private.

The last great international rally of the Bourbons in England occurred in 1903 at Wood Norton, Warwickshire, the seat of the duke of Orleans. The duke of Guise and Prince Henry of France have recently been in England on a private visit.

During the conference the Chambord silken white banner, with three golden fleur de lis worked on it by Queen Victoria, and presented by her to the duke's grandfather, King Louis Philippe, when in exile, will be flown from the flagstaff as an outward symbol of the present "king of France."

After the conference, which is stated to place the Bourbons under the leadership of the French pretender, a pious pilgrimage will be made to the soleums at Claremont and Farnham, where so many exiled Bourbons have been buried since the French revolution.

These exiled claimants to the thrones of France, Spain, Naples, Sicily, Parma, and other former kingdoms will not embarrass their royal English relatives by their visit. King George will not be in town when the Bourbons meet, but it is expected that on the day of his departure from Great Britain each prince will send an squerry to sign the books of the British royal family at St. James's palace.

NEW BAIN BANK EVIDENCE TO GO TO JURY TODAY

Semi-Annual Reports of Chain Under Scrutiny.

Evidence is to be presented to the grand jury today by auditors from the state's attorney's office which may result in the early voting of additional true bills in connection with the inquiry on the defunct West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, one of the 12 closed Bain banks.

State's Attorney Swanson and his assistant, Henry Ayers, refused to discuss this new angle of the Bain inquiry other than to predict important developments this week. In view, however, of the interest shown by the grand jury last week in the testimony of Fred Edgerton, chief bank examiner for Cook county, it is believed that the investigation has turned to the semi-yearly bank reports of the Bain institutions.

Penalty for False Reports.

Under the banking law any officer or director of a bank convicted of making a false report to the bank examiner may be sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary. The reports of banks, which may be called for every three months by the bank examiner, are supposed to be attested by either the bank president or cashier and two directors.

When Mr. Edgerton appeared before the grand jury last week he was sent back to his office, it is reported, to bring in the reports made by the Bain banks. He may be recalled as a witness this week. This circumstance and the fact that the prosecutor's auditors are also to appear were regarded in the criminal court building as indications that apparent irregularities have been discovered in these reports.

Jury Curious About Reports.

The jurors, it is reported, want to know why the state auditor's office did not discover these supposed irregularities and if it did know of them why the Bain banks were allowed to operate. Prosecutor Ayers refused to discuss these reports. Neither would he answer a question as to whether State Auitor Nelson would be called as a grand jury witness this week.

In the auditor's office it was said that the jury has in its possession the reports of the Bain banks for two years before their closing. It could not be ascertained, however, what the reports show, although there was talk of a large overdraft amounting to $100,000 or more.

Prosecutor Ayers announced that Robert Bain, son of John Bain, who was sentenced to 10 days in jail for contempt by Judge Michael Feinberg, will be called as a grand jury witness tomorrow or Wednesday. Young Bain will be questioned about his transactions in the Stony Island State Savings bank, another of the Bain chain.

Prosecutor Ayers announced last night, after an all day meeting with his auditors to discuss the records of other Bain banks, that he was prepared to submit these records to the December grand jury. The present jury, having only a week' service left, will have only sufficient time to hear evidence on the West Englewood bank.

The prosecutor also said that he has obtained from the receivers of various closed banks lists of debtors who have not paid up their obligations. Many of the lists contain notations that property has been transferred to other members of the debtors' families and that other means are being used by the debtors to dodge their obligations.

In such cases, Prosecutor Ayers said, the conspiracy law may be used to force payments or send to jail those who refuse to pay. Some of the debtors are to be called into the state's attorney's office for questioning this week, it was announced.

ASSESSOR DEAD

Unidentified Woman Is Killed by a Street Car

An unidentified woman about 40 years old was killed yesterday by a north-bound Ashland avenue street car at Forty-fifth street. Henry Snyder, 6533 South Michigan avenue, a passing motorist, took her to the German Deaconess hospital, where she was pronounced dead. The woman had dark hair and blue eyes and wore a gray dress and a black seal coat and black oxfords.

GOOD FELLOWS ENROLL TODAY TO HELP SANTA

Will Bring Joy to Poor on Christmas.

The call for Good Fellows has been sounded, and today Chicagoans have the opportunity of enrolling, as they have had in past years, in the army which, under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE, has carried cheer on Christmas day to needy families.

This morning headquarters for Good Fellows will open in The Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. A personal visit there, or a telephone call, through Superior 0100 and asking for the Good Fellow department, will suffice for enrollment. Enrollment is also possible by mail. In this issue of THE TRIBUNE will be found a coupon which may be filled out and mailed to the public service office.

The Spirit of Giving.

To become a Good Fellow requires little, merely a spirit of charity for those who are less fortunate. To become a Good Fellow is, in actuality, an opportunity, for the return is greater than the gift. The return is a measure of genuine gratitude and happiness. And this year it is planned that the Good Fellow shall reap that reward in person.

You who wish to become Good Fellows, will not be asked for money this year, for few indeed are there who are not already giving from their earnings and holdings. But you may furnish full baskets, heaped with meats and vegetables and fruits and nuts. You may give toys and candies to make the Yuletide complete for the young ones. You will do the shopping, the filling, and the furnishing of whatever trimmings are deemed necessary to make it a Merry Christmas for poor families.

The Good Fellow's Reward.

But more than all that will be your reward. Wasn't it old Scrooge who condemned Christmas as a sham, but who at last saw the light? And whose joy was greater than Scrooge's when he helped bring real Christmas to his worried clerk's home, and heard Tiny Tim call out his historic blessing? Scrooge enjoyed the happiness of helping.

The happiness of helping will be every Good Fellow's personally. For every Good Fellow, carrying his basket, or baskets, will deliver his gifts personally to destitute homes.

Good Fellows of Chicago are now a tradition, but a living one. Twenty-two years ago THE TRIBUNE printed a letter which gave birth to the movement. The letter was simply signed "Good Fellow." The writer was not disclosed publicly until 1928, when he died. He was Edward C. Fitch.

Since 1909 Good Fellows have joined under the leadership of THE TRIBUNE every year. They have taken Christmas cheer into homes which would have been barren otherwise.

GOOD FELLOWS!

PAIR TRY TO SELL STOLEN CAR BACK TO ITS OWNER

Two men who tried to sell back to John Hankl, 2122 Belle Plaine avenue, his own automobile, stolen from him on Nov. 22, were arrested last night when Hankl's son called police while his father dickered with the pair.

Hankl was robbed of his automobile, watch and $15 as he was putting the car away a week ago. Last night Sam Spino, 21 years old, 2130 Polk street, and John Cesario, 31 years old, 3029 Lexington street, called at the Hankl home.

"I bought a car out on the west side a couple of days ago, and I hear it was stolen from you," Spino told Hankl. "I don't want to be driving a stolen car, so I'll tell you what I'll do. You give me $75, the down payment I made, and you can have the car back."

Hankl dickered until police arrived. The squad of Sergt. Edward Garrity took the two captives on a tour of the neighborhood, and they pointed out Hankl's automobile where they had parked it three blocks from his home. Hankl told the police that Spino and Cesario might have been members of the gang which robbed him, but he was not certain in his identification.

FALLS DEAD IN STREET.

WOMAN TEACHER LEAPS OUT OF WINDOW; LIVES

Mrs. Estelle De Lia, 28 years old, a school teacher, attempted to commit suicide early yesterday by leaping from the second floor bathroom window of the home of her brother-in-law, John Shirley, 5553 South Spaulding avenue. She was taken to the Holy Cross hospital suffering from a wrenched back and possible internal injuries. Her condition was said not to be serious.

Mrs. De Lia had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, her sister, Mrs. Shirley, told the police. The illness was aggravated by nonreceipt of salary. She formerly was a teacher in the Cicero schools, but her last position was a secretaryship in the office of the principal of Lindblom High school. Because of her condition, her sister said, she was compelled to give up this position recently. Arthur De Lia, her husband, a war veteran, is under treatment at the Edward Hines Memorial hospital.

Mrs. De Lia announced to her sister she was going to leap from the window and locked the bathroom door. She jumped before the police, called by Mrs. Shirley, arrived.

ROB CIGAR STORE OF $75.

$33,000 Raised to Provide Clothes for Needy Pupils

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan received a report yesterday that the campaign for funds to provide new clothing and shoes for destitute school children had reached $33,000. It is hoped that the fund will grow to $100,000, the estimated requisite for the purpose under the budget prepared by the School Children's Aid society, which receives the money. Teachers, pupils and parents of the city schools contribute to the fund. Already 132 elementary, 7 senior high and 13 junior high scools have turned in their collections, making 44 per cent of those to be heard from.

DEPRESSION CUTS DREARY SUICIDE TRAIL IN BRITAIN

Upper Middle Class Is Hit Hardest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Financial worries, due partly to a long succession of business failures after the Hatrey smash of 1929, but more so to the deep gloom of general depression into which England has been pitched, have given the country chilling stories of despair and self-destruction.

During the last two years the drain has been so constant that the wave of suicides has approached an epidemic. Business stagnation, vanished incomes, the leech of high taxation, and the constant pull of hard times hit the upper middle class of England harder than any other. The workers have the dole and the upper class, although many of their fine old estates have gone under the hammer, have not been brought to actual suffers and want.

Upper Middle Class Hit Hard.

Executives of the smaller concerns who formerly drew comfortable incomes and maintained high living standards are those who have suffered most, and the courts of English coroners have dealt with a dreary procession of their suicides.

"Suicide while temporarily insane" is written in case after case, of which many one of scores would be typical. Another kind of suicide is that of former army and navy officers whose pensions have never gone as far as they were intended.

But the toll goes through the list and social stations and embraces all professions and fields of business.

Many Similar Cases.

A typical, although not sensational, example which matches many cases in the country is the suicide of R. L. Jones, a director in R. E. Jones, Ltd., a business founded by his father. The company controls a large chain of hotels, restaurants and bakeries in London and the provinces. It has paid no dividend on its common stock since 1921. Stock holders met to denounce the management, and Jones shot himself.

Lieut. Col. Hugh Mowbray Meyler, head of a firm of solicitors in London, dealt heavily in stocks and lost. When his brokers demanded settlement and went to the courts to collect $2,000 which was due them after they had sold his interests, he took the easiest way out.

Financial Chaos Blamed.

C. T. Crisp, a director of a company controlling several downtown garages in London, was unable to keep the company solvent during the economic blizzard, and in despair shot himself rather than face a meeting of creditors. J. E. Sanderson, a stock broker who had been a prosperous member of the London exchange for two years, found himself finally with $5,000 with which to operate and committed suicide, blaming the "financial chaos" of the last two years.

Prominent examples among other instances of suicides include that of Rear Admiral W. G. Mogg, who left a wife and unmarried daughter behind when he found himself unable to meet pressing financial obligations. His pension and investments were insufficient to save him.

Count Victor Octave Alfred de la Chapelle, descendant of a famous family of French exiles and the head of a firm of solicitors, was driven to suicide by the collapse of the stock market. Cecil Langham Reed, a director of several investment companies in the financial district of London, could not bear up under the depression and shot himself.

Landholders Involved.

Among very recent suicides, several involved landholders. Sir Roger Warin Beaconsfield Onslow, sixth baronet, who owned considerable property in Cornwall, was found with a gunshot wound in his head.

Capt. George Percy Crane, retired army officer, who was a prominent figure at English hunts, where he always appeared in pink coat and black topper, killed himself in a fit of depression over the condition of the country. Capt. Henry Langham Rokeby, lord of the manor of Arthingworth, shot himself as he prepared to leave a large estate which he had been forced to sell.

Another form of madness more pathetic still is that which sometimes obsesses independent, thrifty workmen who find themselves in old age confronted with the humiliation of the dole.

Dole Tortures Older People.

The ordeal of the dole is a very real torture to the older generation. Edward Langrish, a solicitor's clerk who was thrown out of employment at 57, destroyed himself, leaving a note which read that "the horrors of the queue and the dole are more than I can stand."

Charles Warwick, a transport luggage porter thrown out of work at 62 with the promise of reemployment in better times preferred death to the ignominy of "benefit" from a fund to which he had been contributing for years. "I don't want to go on the dole," he wrote, and shot himself.

ROBBED BY MASKED GUNMEN.

Three masked men, riding in a dark sedan, stopped Charles Bernstein, 3306 Ainslie street, early yesterday at Lawrence and Sacramento avenues and robbed him of $75.

Pilsudski Attends First Public Event Since Illness

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Polish dictator, appeared at a public function today for the first time since his illness in Rumania in October. The occasion was the 101st anniversary of the Polish revolution, observed at his palace at Belvedere.

CONGRESS TO GET PROMPT BILL ON NAVY UPBUILDING

Seek to Meet Tonnage Limits of Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Legislation providing for the construction of all vessels needed to bring the United States fleet up to the tonnage limits permitted by the London treaty before that pact expires in 1936 will be introduced in both houses when congress convenes on Dec. 7, it was learned today.

Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval committee discussed the navy's needs with Secretary Adams yesterday and later let it be known that he will urge passage of an authorization bill providing ships which will cost in the aggregate close to three quarters of a billion dollars. Close friends of Representative Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.], prospective chairman of the house naval committee, said today he would introduce similar legislation in the house.

The United States under the treaty can lay down and complete 323,000 tons of aircraft carriers, submarines, destroyers and cruisers prior to Dec. 31, 1936. As the navy does not want to lay down all its 150,000 tons of destroyers in a five year period all the destroyers may not be authorized at this time. At present 16,500 of the 150,000 tons allocated to the United States are building and appropriated for.

May Ignore President.

In event President Hoover fails to recommend new warship authorization legislation an attempt is to be made by adequate navy congressmen to unite Democrats and Republicans back of a move to pass a bill without his support. Some tentative feelers along that line have been put forth.

Although the White House attitude on new warship authorization has not been made known, it was learned that a rift had developed between congressional advocates of a treaty navy and the President over the question of whether funds should be voted for new warships at the next session of congress in event a warship enabling legislation is approved.

Both Chairman Hale and Representative Vinson favor appropriating funds this winter to begin some of the new ships in the authorization bill during the 1932 fiscal year. President Hoover is represented as opposing inclusion of any funds for newly authorized warships during the next session.

Not Affected by Politics.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], who will retire as chairman of the house naval committee when the Democrats organize, expressed confidence today that an authorization bill could be passed over Pacifist opposition. He was of the opinion that his successor would be as strong for an adequate navy as he has been.

The navy department has prepared an authorization program and submitted it to the President. Their program is framed in sections so that in event congress wanted to authorize all ships needed under the treaty this could be done. Each installment covers a one year program. The general board recommended last year that all treaty ships be authorized and laid down not later than in 1942.

This country can lay down 55,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 73,000 tons of 8 inch gun cruisers, 142,500 tons of destroyers and 25,100 tons of submarines without violating the treaty during the next five years.

Aviation Notes

Continental Airways, operating between Chicago and Washington, D. C., yesterday put into effect stops at Cleveland on the otherwise nonstop route. The line uses Lockheed Orion, Wasp powered planes seating six passengers. The time between Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Washington is two hours for each lap, but ten minutes longer on each lap from east to west.

A 10 per cent reduction in all round trip fares except those already established will go into effect tomorrow on Northwest Airways. Flying time between Chicago and the Twin Cities has been reduced for the craft leaving at 8:30 a. m. by elimination of the stop at La Crosse.

Daylight plane service between Chicago and Baston, both ways, has been put into effect by United Air Lines, from Chicago to New York, and American Airways, from New York to Boston, by means of a coördinated schedule.

FLYING FORECASTS

Police Car Stolen as Cops Settle Fight; Found Later

Policemen Patrick Shea and George Jammerel, the flivver squad of the Chicago avenue station, uncovered a miniature crime wave last evening at 315 West Oak street, and spent several hours afoot. They went to the address in response to a radio alarm that a drunken fight was in progress there. They settled the fight, but when they returned to the street discovered that some one had stolen their flivver. It was found later at Chicago avenue and Halsted street.

LEAGUE'S DRIVE FOR PEACE RUNS INTO NEW SNAG

Tokio Charges Observers with "Interference."

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Negotiations for the establishment of some sort of peace in Manchuria ran into a snag today when the council of the league of nations was handed a note from Tokio protesting against instructions given the neutral observers in the Chinchow district.

The new Japanese note, which is a reply to the council's message urging both the Chinese and Japanese governments to give necessary instructions to their army commanders to facilitate the work of observers, reiterates Japan's refusal to allow any third parties to interfere with military operations. It implies that the instructions given the observers to cooperate with one another in trying to establish a neutral zone constitute "inadmissible interference."

League Stands Firm.

The Japanese objections produced a mild detonation in the council room this afternoon and definitely shelved all talk about ultimate terms of the council's resolution until the newest complications have been ironed out.

The council's committee of twelve authorized Chairman Aristide Briand to inform the Japanese that the league could not back down nor change its instructions to the observers, and that efforts of the observers could not reasonably be interpreted as interference by a third party.

The cessation of the Japanese advance on Chinchow automatically created a neutral zone around the banks of the Liao Ho river, and it is hoped that the observers would be successful in stabilizing the present position of the two armies and so keep them far enough apart to prevent any clash.

Japan Asks Safeguards.

While refusing the council's request to cooperate with the observers—which the Chinese accepted without reservations—the Japanese memorandum was inclined to regard with favor negotiations of the French minister at Tokio whereby the Chinese would retire their forces behind the Great Wall—that is, out of Manchuria—and leave the evacuated zone north of Chinchow neutral.

The Japanese declare they are ready to accept this formula in principle, with one or two reservations. First, that the Japanese should retain the right to enter the neutral zone whenever bandits menace the lives or property of Japanese or the military security of their troops within the zone.

The note also states the Japanese are ready to enter negotiations with local authorities regarding the extent of the administration of the zone as soon as the Chinese forces within the district evacuate.

FAMOUS JAPANESE DIVINER PREDICTS DEFEAT OF CHINESE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 29.—Japanese newspapers here today featured the arrival in Mukden of Donsho Kodama, famous Japanese diviner, or fortune teller. After an interview with Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander in chief of the Japanese army in Manchuria, the fortune teller said:

"If Japanese troops continue to go ahead like a tiger they will continue to defeat an enemy of superior numerical strength. Providing the Japanese have favorable weather, they will emerge from the war with comparatively light casualties. The enemy's last strategic foothold [presumably Chinchow] will shortly be surrounded and occupied. The league of nations council will also finally be brought to see the justification of Japan's military operations."

Later Kodama visited the Chinese official, Yu-Chung-han, partner in a local Chinese mining company, leader in a separatist movement, congratulating him and "the other 30,000,000 Manchurians of their emancipation from the pitiless clutches of the insatiable war lords." Gen. Honjo provided the diviner with an airplane and a pilot to visit Tsitsihar, Kirin city, and all other points in Manchuria where Japanese troops are garrisoned.

JAPAN REVOKES ITS CRITICISM OF STIMSON

Tokio Insists Incident Is Closed.

Forbes Calls on Shidehara.

The foreign office spokesman explained that the ire of Japanese officials had been aroused by their assumption that the purported sentiments might have served to stiffen the stand of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed governor of Manchuria, at Chinchow and generally militate against a peaceful solution of the controversy in Manchuria between China and Japan.

American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes called on Foreign Minister Shidehara and had an amicable talk with him concerning the misunderstanding. At its conclusion he issued the following statement:

"The American embassy has received advices from the state department in Washington that the interview purporting to have come from Secretary Stimson is utterly at variance with his attitude.

"The secretary has never held or expressed, in public or in private, an attitude such as that indicated in press reports, but on the contrary has used his influence to restrain any expression by the American press which, in his words, 'might be embarrassing to a solution of the Manchurian controversy.' He has publicly denied that the words as quoted were his."

Feeling of Tension Eases.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Indications reaching the capital tonight that the Manchurian situation was moving toward mutual conciliatory actions by both Japan and China were received by the state department as encouraging.

Only fragmentary reports from official sources reached the department from the far east. They indicated a respite from the tenseness which has surrounded the Sino-Japanese troubles for three days past.

One relief in tension revolved around Japanese-American relations. Press dispatches from Tokio telling of a revocation by the Japanese foreign office of criticism yesterday of Secretary Stimson for statements attributed to him were favorably received here. The revocation followed an explanation of the incident cabled to Tokio by Ambassador Debuchi. He received from the secretary assurances that he had not made statements attributed to him by a Japanese news agency.

(The dispatch which caused the rumpus was an Associated Press story from Washington which was distributed in Japan by the Rengo News agency.)

China Agrees to Remove Army.

PEIPING, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed Manchurian governor, agreed today to withdraw his troops from Chinchow to Shanhaikuan, provided Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden railroad were withdrawn to the Mukden railway zone.

His headquarters denied any Manchurian peace terms had been signed. Sino-Japanese conversations here, it was said at the Manchurian headquarters, were purely tentative and confined to negotiations for the establishment of a neutral zone in the Peiping-Mukden railroad area.

Withdrawal Date Suggested.

It was understood that Dec. 15 had been suggested as a tentative date for the withdrawal of both sides to be completed, that date having been proposed in informal discussions between Chang Hsueh-liang and Yano, Japanese charge d'affaires, which will be continued tomorrow.

Although negotiations were under way for establishment of a neutral zone along the Peiping-Mukden railroad between Mukden and Shanhaikuan, no orders had been given for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Chinchow, Manchurian headquarters said. Marshal Chang was reported awaiting instructions from Nanking.

Americans Quit Tientsin.

Manchurian officials said they thought settlement of the Tientsin situation might also be possible now. Americans and other foreigners evacuated that Chinese city last night at the advice of the foreign consuls, owing to a Japanese threat to bombard Tientsin in event of further disturbances there by gunmen.

Withdrawal Moves Rapidly.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The liquidation of Japan's military adventure in Manchuria proceeded rapidly today as 10,000 troops backtracked their advance on Chinchow.

The greater part of the expedition which started down the Peiping-Mukden railway Friday was withdrawn east of the Liao river. Another withdrawal was in progress at Tsitsihar where only two battalions remained of the division which first captured the city.

GOAL OF RELIEF DRIVE IS RAISED TO $10,000,000

Need Greater than First Estimate, Ryerson Says.

Announcement was made yesterday that the goal of the Joint Emergency Relief fund has been increased from $3,000,000 to $10,000,000. The increased quota has been necessitated, it was explained by Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., president of the fund, in view of the increased need for relief over the first estimates. He added that because of the success of the campaign so far he was confident that the $10,000,000 would be raised.

"The people of Chicago and Cook county are responding generously to our appeal for funds," Mr. Reyerson said. "The well to do citizens have given greater amounts to this fund than they have ever contributed before. Corporations have been unusually generous with their subscriptions. The response of employes who have pledged to give a day's pay a month for six months, is highly gratifying.

"Of the money subscribed to date, 13 per cent has been pledged by well to do individuals, 47 per cent has come from corporations, 38 per cent from employes, and the remaining 2 per cent from miscellaneous sources such as benefits."

A special effort to reach the new goal will be started at once, said Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the fund raising campaign. He pointed to the organization formed for the purposes of raising the relief fund, still intact and functioning actively, as the ideal vehicle for the accelerated drive.

"These volunteers have done a great job so far," Mr. Insull said, "and will begin at once an intensive effort to clean up their job with the new goal as their objective.

"We now have $7,646,323, but other subscriptions which are in the process of being secured make us feel sure that the fund will be raised. There are also many prospective sources of money which we know, but which we have not yet been able to reach. With the campaign going on in full momentum, we are confident that with a special drive during the next few weeks we will be successful in raising the ten million dollars needed to care for those who are in distress this winter."

It was emphasized by Mr. Ryerson that the $10,000,000 will be successful in financing the relief work of the five major agencies, exclusive of the bureau of public welfare, only on condition that Cook county is successful in getting an equal amount through legislation by the state legislature, now meeting in special session.

Emphasizes Increased Need.

"In ordinary times," Mr. Ryerson said, "the bureau of public welfare does about 70 per cent of the relief work in Cook county. With the abnormal increase in the number of families in distress the last year, an increased burden has fallen on the private agencies, even though the county has had a much heavier load to carry. Here there is no duplication of effort, since the work of the county is coordinated with the work of the private agencies."

During October 42,474 families received assistance from the five principal agencies—the United Charities, Salvation Army, Catholic Charities, Jewish charities and the American Red Cross. This was an increase of 43 per cent over the preceding month, and the trend is still upward.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, chairman of the women's division of the Joint Emergency Relief fund, reported yesterday additional contributions from her group of $50,515. The women's division now has collected gifts totaling $100,931.

53 CITIES SPENDING 5 TO 832% MORE ON RELIEF THAN IN 1929

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Relief expenditures exceeding by from 5 to 832 per cent the amounts spent two years ago were reported today in 53 large cities from a survey made by the Russell Sage foundation.

The survey compared relief expenditures in 1929 with those of 1931, the first half of each year only being computed.

For the first six months of this year New York spent for relief $21,000,000, an increase of 612 per cent; Chicago, same period in 1929; Detroit, $8,500,000, an increase o 612 per cent; Chicago, $5,500,000, an increase of 219 per cent; Los Angeles and Philadelphia, each more than $4,000,000, an increase of 366 and 532 per cent; and Boston over $3,900,000, an increase of 151 per cent.

SECY. LAMONT MAKES REPORT ON U. S. TRADE

Recessions in Commerce Are Pointed Out.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A detailed study showing the declines in all branches of American industry, trade, commerce, agriculture and finance, during the 1931 fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, was presented to President Hoover today by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont.

R. P. LAMONT
[Moffett Photo.]

In his annual report on national and international economic conditions, Secretary Lamont dwelt at length on the factors which had brought about business recession in this country but indulged in no prediction regarding when business would turn the corner. His only mention of the future came in the section of unemployment.

Refers to Unemployment.

Pointing to a total of slightly more than 6,000,000 jobless workers in January, 1930, the report said:

"With the seasonal curtailment of activities as winter approaches, the volume of unemployment must be expected again to increase unless there is substantial improvement in business."

The Lamont report showed that the cost of living for the 1931 fiscal year had been lower than in any comparative period since 1923. It was also pointed out for what it was worth that despite "the severity of the depression, industrial production was in greater volume than in the calendar years 1920, and 1921, and 31 per cent greater than in the depression year of 1921."

In the paragraphs summing up what he termed the year's "economic review," Secretary Lamont said:

"During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, the United States suffered from a severe depression world-wide in extent. The accumulation of large stocks of raw materials and foodstuffs throughout the world, extensive declines in the prices of commodities, securities and real estate, the unsettlement of political and fiscal conditions in many foreign countries, widespread unemployment in the leading industrial nations, have all contributed to the difficulties of the United States which have been further accentuated by the effects of a severe drought throughout a large portion of our agricultural area.

"Following upon some evidence of business stability and improvement in the spring of 1930, industrial production and employment, the volume of domestic and foreign trade and the prices of securities and commodities declined sharply during the remainder of that year.

"During the first half of 1931, however, the volume of production and distribution and factory employment gave indications of stability, and some improvement of more than seasonal proportions occurred.

Commodity prices continued their decline, however, and recessions were particularly severe in the case of the great agricultural staples which were faced with unwieldly surpluses and the prospects of very large yields in the current crop year. By the last month of the fiscal year business activity had subsided to about the levels of mid-winter while stock and commodity markets had reached new low levels."

Comparisons Are Listed.

Illustrative of the declines in industry and business generally the report cited the major economic indices of the fiscal years 1930 and 1931 based on an average for 1923-'25 equaling 100:

Factor.	1930.	1931.
Manufacturing production	110	87
Minerals production	110	91
Railroad ton miles revenue freight	104	88
Electric power production	163	155
Value department store sales	108	98
Department store stocks	99	88
Manufactured goods stocks	121	120
Factory employment	97	90
Factory pay rolls	101	76

Reductions of 12 and 23 per cent respectively, were shown in the level of factory employment and payroll totals, the latter reflecting the year's increase in part time operations and employment.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

CONGRESS AND THE COUNTRY.

The coming session of congress is viewed with lively concern for sufficient reasons. The government faces a deficit estimated now at over two billions. It arises from a failure of revenue to meet the expenses of undertakings in which the government has become involved by various extensions of its authority. Revenue has decreased because productive wealth of the country has ceased to produce. Earnings have gone. Incomes have stopped. Profits have vanished.

The theory of government expenses, federal, state and local, was based upon an assumption of unfailing wealth. Wealth seems to have been conceived as an inexhaustible sea which no amount of draining could affect. It now is apparent that productive wealth is not a sea. It is not inexhaustible. It is not a natural gift to the country as productive wealth. It is, on the contrary, a delicate machine of complex and not well understood parts which can be deranged by crude and unintelligent handling.

With this theory of inexhaustible taxable wealth has gone another theory of punitive taxation for social purposes. The purposes were to be served by government undertakings with public money. The profits of the citizen were to be the profits of the state. The income tax was to make this adjustment which conscripted the returns from private enterprise for use in politically managed projects.

There is now a deficit because such a scheme cannot work. Taxation has preyed upon private enterprise. The political use of the conscripted money has not been productive. It has withdrawn the money from production. It has reduced incomes and profit. Consequently it has reduced the sum which can be obtained by government for its wasteful enterprises. Government has been fastened as a huge parasite upon the source of national welfare.

Income taxes are vanishing because incomes are disappearing. Incomes are disappearing because private enterprise has been crippled by government interference, supervision and tax levies. Radicalism in congress refuses to recognize the destructive element in the situation. It believes that the cure will be found in more of the disease. It will seek heavier taxation, more interference and larger conscriptions of private wealth for public purposes administered politically. That course ruins every nation which undertakes it. There will be fewer taxable incomes in the next fiscal year than there are in this. Increased taxation will find nothing to tax.

A majority of congressmen will be controlled by the sentiment in their districts. If this sentiment is deluded into thinking that excessive, retributive and punitive taxation of productive wealth is the remedy for economic ills in the United States it will require a miracle to save the country from the disasters of which such reasoning will be the cause. The cure is decreased government. The disease is increased taxation.

ON BEHALF OF SUITORS AND TAXPAYERS.

Another attempt to simplify the processes of legal justice in civil suits is in preparation and unquestionably deserves public support. The revision proposed is the work of a committee of the Chicago Bar association which has been in preparation for two years and on Friday was presented to the Illinois Bar association by former Chief Justice Floyd Thompson for study and criticism. When this has been had and the final form of the measure completed it will go to the legislature for consideration and, we hope, enactment.

If we have past experience in mind, we will realize that, no matter how well considered and meritorious the measure is, it will meet resistance or at least an inertia or evasiveness which has blocked the reform of our practice and procedure for many years. In the bar associations of the United States, of the state and city, there has been distinguished effort to bring about reform in this field. Leading jurists and lawyers in the nation have been conspicuously active for years to advance it, yet the Bourbonism of a large number of practitioners and especially of lawyers in legislative office has retarded the movement and cannot be overcome except by a better organized pressure from the public. The profession has given leadership, but the leadership has not been followed in the profession. This was true in England until formidable demand from laymen appeared, and it was only then that the great reforms of the later 19th century were accomplished. Undoubtedly procedural reform in Illinois must have the active support not only of the press but of lay civic and business organizations. It is after all the special concern of the layman, the suitor in the courts, that the processes of the law should be made simpler and more expeditious. It is the suitor who is penalized by complication and delay, and if the lay public will not fight for relief, it is perhaps too much to expect the average practitioner, who in fact may profit by the law's delays, to take the trouble or make the sacrifice involved in reforming practice and procedure. The indifference of the legislature is in part explained by the fact that the defects of the inherited forms are especially felt in the cities where the volume of litigation is heavier and the problems of the law have been more seriously altered by modern conditions. Thus lawyers in the legislature who are from nonurban districts and who are perhaps in the majority in the assembly are not disposed to adopt new rules.

Whatever the causes of the repeated failure of procedural reform, experience emphasizes the necessity of organizing the strongest possible support for the well considered proposals of the bar committee. Without it the measure will fail, and when finally perfected it should not be permitted to fail. Legal justice is unduly slow and tardy justice is often no justice at all. The proper simplification and expediting of civil procedure will save much money to the taxpayers and to suitors and will contribute substantially to respect for law in the community.

THE FARM BOARD'S OWN MIDDLEMEN.

The members of the senate's committee on agriculture expressed astonishment and indignation when they learned that the president of the farm board's Cotton Stabilization corporation is paid $75,000 a year. The president of the Grain Stabilization corporation receives $50,000 a year and of his associates one is paid $32,000, another $30,000, and a third $25,000. Ninety-five men employed in government cotton operations draw $70,000 a month in all, an average of more than $735 a month, which is about twenty-five times as much as the average cotton farmer is paid for his work.

The senators have discovered an important fact. Neither the farmers' crops nor anything else can be marketed without profit to some individuals. The marketing of crops is a highly specialized business, calling for a considerable range of knowledge and experience. It is a business in which a few men grow wealthy, a good many more make a living, and hundreds go broke. Whether the crops are marketed through the normal trade channels or through cooperative associations and stabilization corporations, the fact remains that the costs of marketing must be paid.

Possibly the government agencies can reduce the bill through the elimination of some of the middlemen. It was for that purpose, in part, that the farm board was created, but there is no slightest reason to believe that the costs of marketing have been reduced, although many men have been driven out of the grain and cotton business as a result of the farm board's activities.

The truth of the matter is that the profits taken by private traders in grain, for example, from the time that it leaves the farm until it is sold to the miller are far from large and certainly not exorbitant. If the government's experiment is intended to prove that middlemen should be eliminated in all commodities, the government has chosen the hardest field in which to make its case, for there is probably no commodity which moves into consumption with so narrow a spread between producer and consumer as is found in grain. These costs could be eliminated entirely without adding materially to the income of the individual farmer.

Meanwhile, by driving the middlemen out of business, the farm board will have killed the speculative market for wheat. Where there are now a thousand bidders for what the farmer has to sell there will be only one bidder. Where there are now a thousand men whose profit lies in finding outlets for American wheat there will be only one, and that a government bureaucracy. In the unlikely event that as much as half a cent a bushel of marketing cost is saved to the farmer, he will lose a dime in the lowered price of what he has to sell.

LITTLE DRIFTS OF GOVERNMENT.

The Mexican state of San Luis Potosi, by act of the legislature, has suspended the teaching of law and medicine for five years. The authorities decided there were enough lawyers and doctors in the state for the time being and shut off the source of supply. If the state provided the schools, the right to determine when it had enough of any educational product would be inherent in it. The farm board in the United States produced the money for the cotton and wheat, but it couldn't cut off the supply when it found it was going broke.

One of the great temptations of government when it swings easily into the saddle on a high horse must be to find out what the individual citizen is doing and stop him at it. That's evident because there is so much of it going on. When the state has decided that there are too many citizens in a profession or occupation it may quite logically decide that there are not enough in another. It may then use conscription to fill a training school to supply the need. Even now a search for the free individual in most times and places would lead into the woods and find him up a tree, and yet government may be only in its infancy.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO'S BIDS.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

Chicago is no piker when it comes to seeking national political conventions. It wants both of them, Republican and Democratic, and what's more it has underwritten a fund large enough to defray expenses for both.

Its central location in the strategical midwest section makes it a logical place for the meetings. In addition the attraction of an early view of the World's Fair would be given delegates and visitors. Rufus C. Dawes, president of the exposition, says the fair will be seventy-five per cent completed by convention time.

The city is only a short distance from the center of population and the center of agriculture, while the national center of industry is right at Chicago's door. Sixty-seven per cent of the population of the country resides within a day's traveling distance of the city.

If Detroit is out of consideration, Michigan naturally will favor Chicago. Proximity of that city makes it reasonable to expect that this state would share the profit from both gatherings. Very probably our resort interests would attract convention visitors before or after the meetings. Western Michigan, at least, is closely linked commercially with the Windy City.

If Chicago obtains both conventions it will have accomplished what few other cities could ever hope for. Probably it is bidding for both to increase its chances of getting at least one. We wish Chicago well in its endeavor and we will not object to seeing history in the making just across the lake.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WELL, NOW, IF SECRETARY STIMSON gets real mad at Japan we may have to go to war with the cunning little Japs. Which is not so horrible an idea as it might seem at first glance. We do hope, however, that Secretary Stimson will wait until next spring, when the cherry blossoms bloom. Ah, Japan is lovely then! And the quaint little tea houses dotting the sides of the hills with their many colored paper lanterns glowing like stars, the smell of flowers, the soft breezes from the ocean, the gentle voices of the sweet little geishas singing:

No-ga-sa-ki, Yo-ko-ha-ma, Ha-ko-da-te hoi!

And the beautiful little shops that sell sahki and wine and beer and what not—oh, Japan is always lovely, but especially when the cherry blossoms bloom. If we must go to war with the Japanese do, dear Mr. Stimson, arrange it for the spring.

And make the army transports wait should they happen to near the shores of Japan in the daytime. Make them wait and go in at night, for then the bows of the ships cut through great, long, curving streaks of gleaming gold, and the wake of the ships seem a great field of dancing fire. It's the phosphorus in the water, Mr. Stimson, and it's a sight once seen never, never to be forgotten. The army would simply love it, Mr. Stimson; they would treasure the memory of that night all their lives. Which is probably about all they would get out of the war anyhow. And we also beg of you, Mr. Stimson, that when the plans are made for the invasion of Japan an opportunity will be given the army to visit Nikko. Oh, we should indeed capture Nikko, Nikko with its great trees, its wonderful temples and fascinating rows of gods and ancient warriors.

Really, Mr. Stimson, speaking personally, we will absolutely decline any invitations you may send us to attend your war unless you promise to send the army to Nikko. And, anyhow, Mr. Stimson, don't think of invading Japan until cherry blossom time. And war then, Mr. Stimson, would not be what Gen. Sherman so roughly said; au contraire, it would be Heaven.

FINIS.

If this is the end, then this is the end,
I never was one to complain;
The sun has shone for a long, long time,
If it wants to rain, let it rain.

If you want to go your way, then go;
I know a new path, too.
Roads alway cross somewhere, some time—
Well, I'll be seeing you!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

WHEN WE WERE small boys, we used to yearn to become President of the United States some day. But, shucks, now that we know that the head of the farm board's cotton enterprises gets $75,000 a year and the board's grain manager receives $50,000 why bother to be President? Of course, the President gets $75,000 a year, as much as the head of the farm board's cotton enterprises, but then a President has to give and go to dinners and hear a lot of terrible after dinner speeches and wear a high silk hat whenever he goes down the street to get a bottle of milk and the groceries. No, we don't want to be President, but we'd love a job with the farm board.

THE MAHARAJAH OF ALWAR has purchased 100 bottles of imperial Tokay vintage wine of 1813 for $12,500. Wonder what a hundred of Mabel's California wine kegs will be worth a hundred and nineteen years from now?

AN INTERNATIONAL DISARMAMENT meeting in Paris last week turned into a free-for-all fight, and the booing and blows finally caused such a riot the police had to clear the hall. Why do the kindly, gentle persons who wish the nations to disarm and the lion and the lamb to lie down together and a little child to lead them always want to seek his brother pacifist in the snoot? Peace, dear friends, will only come to the world when at least two pacifists agree on how to bring it about.

WE TOOK A LOOK at the Christmas presents around in the shops trying to figure out what we were going to get come that merry holiday. We think, from what we saw on parade, we will get a handsome brief case containing three lovely quart flasks, or a set of six pretty cocktail glasses, or a beautifully monogrammed silver plated cocktail shaker, or a roulette layout, or six old German steins, or a faro table and outfit, or a wheel of fortune, or a mahogany box of solid ivory poker chips, or a whisky decanter that plays "How Dry I Am" when you pour out the whisky, or a lovely silver hip-likker flask. Anyhow, that's about the only Christmas presents we saw people buying.

ONE HUNDRED army officers doing clerical work in Washington have been ordered back to garrison duty. But maybe some of them have got their spurs stuck so deep in their desks they'll have to be pried loose. Spurs are very useful that way, but what good are they on the parade ground?

NIGHT WATCH.

On tired lids the restful twilight lies
The shadows softly fold us in again;
A brief respite from day's sharp agonies
Night's sleeping draught of darkness gives to pain.
I keep my watch alone, with leaden eyes
And finger raised to still the thoughtless strain
Upon Joy's lips; and make my low replies;
"She sleeps at last: you must not here remain;"
I am her nearest, and with jealous care
I guard her rest, while she forgets to dream.
The sweet curved lips, a mute reproach does seem
To give to sound or touch that would remove
Her peace. Dear God, hold back day's lancing beam!

ETHELYN BETANT CHAPMAN.

NOW THAT the football champions have been decided on, should we not take a little time to think about some one to elect to the presidency next year? Or wait, the basketball season is coming on. And then comes baseball. After that will be time enough.

EASILY BROKEN BONES.

THERE are several disorders which cause the bones to become fragile. One is a congenital condition in which there are a combination of characteristics. The whites of the eyes have a bluish, china appearance, the bones break on slight provocation, and there is a tendency to deafness. One of the peculiarities of senility is a tendency for the neck of the femur to break. An old lady catches her toe in a rug and has a minor fall. When she is examined she is found to have fractured the femur at the neck.

The comparatively recent discovery that the bones are not so lifeless as we once thought, but that they are changing slowly and constantly, has brought to our attention several conditions of bone hitherto unsuspected, some of which are characterised by fragility. The general use of X-rays in bringing bones under observation has taught us much about the changes in these structures. However, the most striking of this group of disorders is one most commonly known as multiple myeloma.

Drs. Charles D. Center and Thomas J. Merer relate the following history: Some two years before the disease was recognized, a man developed a pain in his back which was called pyelitis. A year later he complained of a pain in his side, which was called pleurisy. Three months later he stubbed his toe on a rough place in the pavement and developed a pain in his chest. X-ray picture of the chest showed some broken ribs.

The fractures were so much out of relation to the accident that multiple myeloma was suspected. There are tests by which this disease can be diagnosed, and when they were applied the underlying disorder was recognized. In the light of what was then found it is suspected that the attack of pain in the back, and that of supposed pleurisy, may have been due to the myeloma.

Multiple myeloma is a form of cancer of the bone marrow which develops first in one bone and then in another, and which causes the bone to break in whatever location it may develop. Since the diagnosis was made this man has suffered fracture of bones at intervals of about a month.

A friend of mine, a surgeon, had a similar experience. For several months he was supposed to be suffering from rheumatic pains in different bones and joints. Then his bones commenced fracturing. Towards the end he was bedridden on an air mattress and was handled with exceeding care, but in spite of every precaution a bone would break every now and then.

Dr. J. P. Simonds, in discussing the case reported by Drs. Center and Merer, told of two cases he had seen. A Pullman porter, while on duty, wrenched his back. X-rays showed a fracture. More thorough examination showed multiple myeloma. A woman, riding on a street car, suffered a severe pain in her neck after the car had stopped suddenly. Examination showed she had a fracture of the back bone. Behind this fracture lay multiple myeloma.

PEACH PRESERVES.

A. S. H. writes: A friend, showing marked symptoms of food poisoning, claimed to have been made sick by eating peach preserves. My curiosity being aroused, I found that the maker of the preserves, desiring a stronger bitter almond flavoring, had mashed the nut from the peach stone and mixed this maceration with her fruit. This mashed bitter almond, coming into contact with the steam from cooking, develops hydrocyanic acid and benzaldehyde—which, of course, it rather dangerous for human consumption.

So it occurs to me that your column might carry a valuable word to housewives, telling them that while the peach stone may be used for flavoring with perfect safety, and the nut it contains may be eaten as a nut, to beware mashing that nut and putting it into the preserves to be steamed.

WILL NOT AFFECT EYES.

L. N. writes: I have been told that tweezing of the eyebrows weakens the eyes. Do you agree?

REPLY.

No.

JUST STOP DRINKING IT.

J. F. writes: How can I drive off the effects of a long spell of coffee drinking that I am given to? I weaken it fairly good with milk.

REPLY.

Stop drinking it.
All the caffein will be out of your system one day after you stop.

REMOVING FIRE HYDRANT.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—On the parking space in front of our building is a water plug situated right next to the sidewalk and every year they flush it and it washes up all the ground in front of the plug on the parkway. Can't this be moved to some other location? T. R.

We wish to state that we have made an investigation of this complaint and find that it is impossible at this time to move this fire hydrant. We believe that it is properly located and that we should not incur the expense of moving the hydrant at this time as we can see no valid reason for moving same.

LONG WORKING HOURS.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A girl friend is employed by a paper box company. The owner makes the girls work from 7:50 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 12:45 p. m. to 9 p. m. in the evening with no time off for supper. This makes a total of 12¼ hours per day, and he only pays straight time no matter whether the girls work on Sundays. If this is in violation of any labor laws, please advise me to whom complaint should be made. R. B.

Report the facts to the Illinois factory inspector, Transportation building, Chicago.

ADOPTION.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I wish to adopt a baby. Both parents of the baby are living, and willing to have her adopted. How much will it cost? What procedure will be necessary to start the adoption? E. P. J.

We suggest that you discuss with the clerk of the County court the possibility of handling the proceedings by yourselves without employing an attorney. If you employ an attorney his fee would be the largest item of expense and we are not in a position to estimate it.

CHICAGO.—Announcement was made at the papal legation at Washington that at the next consistory the Rt. Rev. George William Mundelein, auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn, will be appointed by the pope to succeed the late James Edward Quigley as Catholic archbishop of Chicago. It was said the consistory probably will be called before Christmas. The announcement came from the Most Rev. John Bonzano, papal delegate at Washington, to Msgr. M. J. Fitzsimmons, administrator of the archdiocese. Chicago Catholics, both among the clergy and the laity, expressed complete surprise at the selection of Bishop Mundelein, as he is little known in the west. He is 46 years old and will be the youngest archbishop in the United States.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Greece says: "The Bulgarians crossed the River Cerna. Monastir has been evacuated. The Serbian army is reported retiring in good order." A dispatch to the Times from Athens says the Serbian court is reported to have arrived in Albania.

LONDON.—The Tribuna asserts that Austria is trying to conclude a separate peace, according to a dispatch from Rome. A Copenhagen dispatch states: "The Wolff bureau [the semi-official German news agency] says that several members of the Vienna cabinet will resign." A report from Berlin says that Emperor William of Germany arrived in Vienna and paid a visit to the Austro-Hungarian monarch, Emperor Francis Joseph, at Schoenbrunn castle.

LONDON—"O, what a chance for a submarine!" exclaimed Lord Derby, discussing Henry Ford's prospective peace cruise in the Oskar II. The Ford plan amuses Lord Derby immensely.

MUSKEGON, Mich.—Henry H. Terwilliger, sole owner of the only bank in Montague, Mich., has disappeared from the city, where for twenty years he was the leading business man, after notifying his family they might never see him again. He left a letter which he asked to have published in which he advises business associates against trusting their funds to another one-man institution. In part the letter says: "Henry H. Terwilliger, of humble birth and lowly spirit, unhappily finds himself bearing responsibilities which wear him and rob him of time which he feels he ought to have the liberty to spend in more congenial employment." Apparently his financial affairs are in good condition.

CHICAGO.—Failure of the return of a borrowed book cost a life when Robert Newitt, 3926 La Salle street, a florist, was shot to death by his friend of a lifetime, George Johnson, 451 38th street. The killing occurred in the home of Johnson, who is owner of the book over which the men quarreled. They had been constant associates ever since they came together from England many years ago.

CHICAGO.—John T. Keating, member of the board of education and national head of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, has been suspended by the Knights of Columbus because he engaged in the liquor business. He is to be tried by the supreme council of the Knights of Columbus next month on the charges, which may result in his expulsion.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 30, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, was placed on the stand to testify in his own defense. He told the story of his vile life and seemed to glory in his shame. As a witness he was a phenomenon. He began mildly, but soon got excited on the theme of the Oneida community and lashed himself into a fury. He gave a very graphic description of life there, not omitting several nauseous details. After leaving the community he said he studied law and entered practice in Chicago, for a time doing well and making $2,000 a year. After the fire he went to New York, where he prospered for a time, but finally got down and out and was arrested and thrown into the Tombs. Later he went west and tried to induce politicians to back him in buying the Chicago Inter Ocean, which, he said, he proposed to make the great newspaper organ of the west. "I proposed to put into it the advertising patronage of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Republicanism of Horace Greeley and the enterprise and snap of James Gordon Bennett," he said. He then turned to the lecture field, but with no success, and went back to the law. The judge and the lawyers in the trial apparently had come to the conclusion that it was best to let Guiteau talk as he pleased. Twenty mental experts sat near him to study him as he testified.

PARIS.—A Herald cable says that the position of Sarah Bernhardt, who is now starring at Odessa, is anything but enviable. The mob insults her whenever she ventures out on account of her Jewish origin and it has been found necessary for ten Cossacks to serve her as a guard. Numerous arrests have been made in connection with the curious affair.

BELOIT, Wis.—John K. Le Baron, editor and publisher of the Elgin, Ill., Daily News, and Miss Mollie E. Bundy, daughter of William Bundy, were married at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a brilliant gathering of relatives and friends. The Rev. H. P. Higley of Beloit tied the nuptial knot. The groom is the son of the late Dr. Le Baron, well known scientist and for years state entomologist of Illinois. He formerly lived at Chicago, the present home of his mother and sisters.

MR. BRYAN AS SALESMAN.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Nov. 24.—The article, "Mr. Bryan as Salesman," by Geo. N. Osborn, proclaiming the injustice done Bryan's memory, fails to prove the injustice and for a very good reason—no injustice had been done by THE TRIBUNE article. It simply set forth the truth.

The Coral Gables sailing program each day, except Sundays (Bryan conducted Sunday school, was based on the old "medicine show racket," only more elaborate. Coral Gables orchestra furnished the "song and dance" parts, Bryan was the spieler, spellbinder or high pressure lecturer, as you prefer. I heard his sales talks many times. They gained in scope each time, nearly reaching the sky. He painted in golden words the enormous profits already taken from Florida real estate, but they were nothing as compared to the huge profits to be made from Coral Gables lots.

The company the writer represented paid their spieler [an unknown individual] $100 per lecture—7 lectures per week. What fee did Mr. Bryan with all his renown receive? Yet Mr. Osborn says, "Doubtless Mr. Bryan had some experience with profits." I'll say he did.

During the winter of 1924 I was introduced to Mr. Bryan in the Miami Bank and Trust company by a well known Florida real estate operator then developing his twenty-sixth subdivision. He and Bryan had been friends for ten years. After the introduction my friend offered Bryan $50,000 for a piece of Miami business property. Bryan refused, saying, "I am holding for $75,000." My friend remarked, as we left the bank, that "Bryan was hard to do business with; he wanted the last nickel of profit." [Mr. Bryan owned only a part of the $60,000 parcel.]

Bryan couldn't help but know he was baiting the public when he encouraged the purchase of high priced lots in Coral Gables, as it contained enough lots to accommodate a city the size of Toledo, Ohio, but its population was 2,000 to 4,000. The chance of a profitable resale was nil. The original prices, $2,000 to $25,000 per lot, discounted further profit for all time. A 26 year old novice knew this; why not Mr. Bryan?

When lease prices on Flagler street reached front foot values higher than 5th avenue or Riverside drive in New York, how could a man of Mr. Bryan's intelligence continue to urge the public to buy Greater Miami real estate [which he did every day] if he wasn't the "hired lure" of a "medicine show" subdivision company?

RICHARD C. STEIN.

MR. BRYAN AS REPORTER.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—In broadcasting Notre Dame games Mr. Quin Ryan's name is almost unfortunate, it is so patently Irish. With a great many persons he is judged prejudiced before he says a word.

It is my humble opinion that in Mr. Ryan THE TRIBUNE has the most intelligent and accurate broadcaster in the country. Arguments about his partisanship are absurd. He may have his likes and dislikes, as any individual has, but at the microphone he seems to me to be an able and unbiased reporter.

FREDERICK MENARD.

A SQUARE SHOOTER.

Wauconda, Ill., Nov. 27.—All fair minded persons will resent Mr. Roberts' article in the Voice of the People column in today's TRIBUNE. His criticism of Quin Ryan and his broadcast of the Notre Dame-California football game is uncalled for and an insult. When Quin spoke about Notre Dame celebrating he added, "If they win." This was just before the last quarter and to any one following the game it was almost a foregone conclusion that they would win. Quin Ryan is always very fair and impartial in all his broadcasts.

J. E. STODDARD.

BACK TO SCHOOL.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—The public school teachers point reproachfully to their empty pocketbooks and tell us that they cannot pay their grocers and landlords. The school treasury, which was once filled by the taxpayers, is now empty because the money was wasted and stolen—wasted and stolen because thieves and wasters were permitted to handle it by the voters of Chicago. The voters who did this are supposed to have received an education from these same public schools.

Whatever else the schools may have taught or accomplished, they have turned out as finished products thousands of adult citizens who are too ignorant to vote intelligently and without any sense of the dignity, value or obligations of citizenship. The mess that we are in is the inevitable result of a grossly incompetent school system.

Let us pay the teachers what we owe them and then close the doors of the schools before we obligate ourselves further for the bogus brand of education that we have been getting. We cannot get along without schools, but we can get along without the kind we now have.

Every adult voter should be compelled to attend a class in citizenship for fifteen evenings every winter and get a certificate of attendance or forfeit his right to vote. This sane and practical suggestion, if followed, could not help but result in good. Whatever the cost would be could be taken out of the present school budget. The complexities of government could not be mastered in fifteen evenings of study, but it would start people to thinking and some of them would not be fooled as often or as much as they have been. A 10 per cent increase in voting intelligence would be a wonderful gain.

C. A. JOHNSON.

FROM A THEATER PATRON.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Mr. Philip A. Lish in his letter to you gave a very fair account of the contempt with which the theater ticket buyer is treated by the disdainful box office lords. While you wait in line they flirt and carry on social conversations over the telephone, and you are made to feel that you are indeed an intruder. I have been an abused patron of the legitimate theater for more than fifteen years, and whenever I take my stand before the indifferent box office clerk [they do not like to be called "treasurers"] I am made to feel that the most annoying thing I could do to this clerk is to ask him to sell me tickets over his counter. He would much prefer that you go around the corner to the scalper and pay a minimum premium of $1.50 per ticket. I know of no other field of merchandising in which a salesman could get away with such treatment of customers, and I am not at all sorry when I go into a theater and find two-thirds of the main floor seats without occupants.

A DEPLORABLE VERDICT.

Geneva, Ill., Nov. 23.—Your editorial in today's issue, "A Deplorable Verdict," is very good. Again we see a miscarriage of justice due to an abnormally minded jury. How increasingly difficult it seems in Cook county to secure a sane, clear thinking, justice loving jury. Whenever an important criminal case goes to trial we fear for the outcome, knowing from experience the tendency of Chicago juries.

Now, since Chicago, its officials and its citizenry, make such a lamentable showing in enforcing laws and justice, why everlastingly harp on giving them a larger part in state affairs? Surely the effect would be to drag down and not uplift.

PRICES.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—On the whole, lowered prices are greatly exaggerated, and decreased earnings are greatly underestimated in the news of the day.

HESSEN, RICH IN DAYS OF KAISER, NOW GOING BROKE

Foes of Republic Shout "Extravagance."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—German republicans are accused of having a hard time learning to run their country as cheaply as the former kaiser and his dukes and kings did in the "good old days." The tale of their alleged mistakes and errors plays a huge part in the weighty discussions of world powers in Paris, Basel, London, and in Germany. They figure still more prominently in the day to day struggle of Hitler's National Socialists, or monarchists, or communists against the parties which prefer a republic to the diverse forms of state propagated by their enemies.

Hesse is the state which is in the limelight today and it offers a startling example of expenditures that have almost trebled since the days of Kaiser Wilhelm. Hesse is one of the old duchies and near the Rhine.

Life Fairly Comfortable.

Except for the years in the past when the wicked prince sold Hessian soldiers to the king of England to fight "American rebels," life, as a rule, was fairly comfortable in Hesse. Last century, Darmstadt, its capital, was the home of art loving grand dukes who were popular with the people. In fact, when Germany threw over kaiser and the kings and princes Hesse felt extremely apologetic toward its grand ducal family and provided it with ample funds and castles as a consolation for the loss of its throne.

The dyed in the wool republicans were told that their management must be superb, otherwise Hesse might think of calling back the grand duke or one of his sons. And the republicans set out to make Hesse forget all about the old grand duke.

That cost money. The citizens of Hesse have discovered that the administration of Hesse today costs three times as much as it did in the days of the kaiser and the grand duke.

State Expenses Soar.

In 1912 the Hessian budget balanced at $6,708,000. Today it is $20,065,000. If one takes into consideration the deficit of the last few years. Without this deficit the budget is $14,915,000—twice as much as in the days of milk and honey before the war.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, chief organ of the Hitlerites, declares that Hesse spent $3,000,000 on public schools in 1931, whereas they cost only $675,000 in the days of the kaiser. The police then cost only $222,000, compared to this year's police bill of $1,411,000. Even at that Hesse is not paying for all her policemen since part of her police expenditures is borne by the reich.

High "kultur" is more expensive in these republican days than it was in the past—at least for the German states, the Hitlerites charge. In 1913 Hesse gave her universities $811,000. Today they get $1,908,000 and the universities are crying for more. The republic is closing its ears to the cries of "extravagance."

Help Support Theaters.

The grand duke was a great protector of the theater of Darmstadt. The republic too felt it had to show its artistic soul by donating funds to run the Darmstadt Opera and State theater. The sum of $128,000 went for this purpose.

Pensions in the Hohenzollern days cost Hesse $1,122,000. Today they cost $4,346,000—including pensions for the old servants of the grand ducal house, the old officers and the cripples of the world war.

Hesse does not collect its own taxes. The reich does that. The taxes have increased. In fact they increased far beyond expenditures. This year the reich collected $21,243,000, against slightly over $8,000,000 collected by the kaiser before the war. Only part of this money flows back to Hesse—the reich keeps its share—to run itself, to pay reparations.

Hesse Goes Broke.

Consequently, Hesse is broke. It faces a deficit of $8,200,000. Its state debt is $20,736,000. The reich insists Hesse must find other ways and means of cutting her expenditures and balancing her budget than through a loan.

The state's reaction to the alleged extravagance was indicated at the Hessian election Nov. 15, when Hitler's Nazis won a sweeping victory. Consequently the republicans lost many offices.

BRITISH SPINNERS THREATEN STRIKE TO DEFEND HOURS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 29.—The threatened attack on the 48 hour working week of the Lancashire mill hands, the most cherished social advance of postwar times, took definite shape during the week-end. As a result, threats of a complete stoppage of the spinning industry came tumbling on the employers.

In nearly a quarter million homes today employers' notices were read which announced that at the end of December the hard won agreement which has governed hours and wages since 1919 will be terminated. It is understood the spinners are seeking an agreement to revert to the 52½ hour week.

Social habits have undergone great changes since the war. The present generation of mill workers knows hardly anything of the daily routine in the mills before the war. Under that routine, with a 55½ hour week, there was virtually no time from Monday to Friday for anything but work, food, and sleep.

Woman Terrorist Witness Fired on in Her Home

Margaret Welsh, 35 years old, who figured as a witness in the Granady murder and terrorism trials, became the center of a shooting mystery last night. Two men appeared at the back door of her flat at 302 South Lincoln street and sought admission as gas men. She shut the door on them, and one of the pair fired a shot through the panel, the bullet passing close to her. Police think the men might have been prowlers, but are investigating to determine if the shooting was an attempt to assassinate Miss Welsh for past activities.

MORE SCHOOLS ASK HELP FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

Only $5,664 Left in Fund for Poor Children.

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street and 4139 West Madison street.

Now that twenty thousand dollars in cash, contributed by readers of this newspaper to the Hungry School Children's fund, has been turned over to the school authorities to provide nourishment for needy youngsters, a balance of only $5,664 remains. Indications are, from the flood of calls that ensued at the first drop in temperature of the present cold snap, that this money will be used up even more rapidly from now on.

Gradually the number of schools being served by this fund has risen until the flurry last week, when many institutions, which up to then had made no appeals, asked for aid, raised the total to 122. In some schools as high as 80 per cent of the pupils are being given the lunch tickets for the warm, free meals served in the penny lunch rooms. In many cases the proportion of such children in a school is about 50 per cent.

Bridge Tournament to Aid.

Help for the fund is being organized through the Golden Card Bridge tournament to be played throughout Chicago next Thursday evening, Dec. 3. Proceeds of the tournament will be divided equally between the Hungry Children's fund and the Joint Emergency Relief fund. All expenses are to be defrayed by THE TRIBUNE, the gross receipts going to the two charities.

Any one who wishes to assemble a table of four bridge players, at $1 a player, may participate in the tournament. Clubs, organizations, and bo

MORE SCHOOLS ASK HELP FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4750 West Madison street.

For that twenty thousand dollars in cash, contributed by readers of this newspaper to the Hungry School Children's fund, has been turned over to the school authorities to provide nourishment for needy youngsters, a balance of only $5,664 remains. Indications are, from the flood of calls that seemed at the first drop in temperature of the present cold snap, that the money will be used up even more rapidly from now on.

Gradually the number of schools being served by this fund has risen, until the flurry last week, when many institutions, which up to then had made no appeals, asked for aid, raised the total to 122. In some schools as high as 80 per cent of the pupils are being given the lunch tickets for the warm, free meals served in the penny lunch rooms. In many cases the proportion of such children in a school is about 50 per cent.

Bridge Tournament to Aid.

Help for the fund is being organized through the Golden Card Bridge tournament to be played throughout Chicago next Thursday evening, Dec. 3. Proceeds of the tournament will be divided equally between the Hungry Children's fund and the Joint Emergency relief fund. All expenses are being defrayed by THE TRIBUNE, the gross receipts going to the two charities.

Any one who wishes to assemble a table of four bridge players, at $2 a player, may participate in the tournament. Clubs, organizations, and hotels are making arrangements to participate. In many instances programs are to be offered in connection with the tournament play. And even though you do not desire to play, you may pay $2 and receive a deck of the Golden cards.

New Donations for Pupils.

Donations received yesterday for the Hungry School Children's fund were:

DEFENSE OPENS TODAY IN MINE BATTLE TRIAL

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The defense legal staff in the mine murder trial of W. B. Jones mustered all its strength today in an effort to tear down the wall of evidence with which the commonwealth, during the last week, has surrounded the Harlan county labor union leader.

Jones, charged with plotting and urging the slaying of three of four men killed in a coal strike battle at Evarts May 5, is being tried in Montgomery Circuit court here on a change of venue. The case being tried now concerns the killing of Deputy Sheriff James Daniels, chief peace officer at the Black Mountain coal camp near Evarts. Deputy Sheriff Otto Lee, Howard Jones, a commissary clerk, and Carl Richmond, a miner, were slain in the same battle.

The state linked together through 49 witnesses a story of sinister plotting, of oaths against "the law" signed in blood, of "pep" meetings conducted under the leadership of Jones in which men were offered cash rewards, weapons and alibis to "get rid of Jim Daniels."

About a dozen state's witnesses remain to be heard this week and the defense will be given its opportunity to discredit all that was said last week. More than 50 witnesses are to be called by the defense.

Decision Is Due Today on Extradition of Factor

"The Power Interests are out to Milk the Public"

THE trouble with most folks, after all," drawled Josh Billings, "ain't that they're ignorant. They just know too goldurn many things that ain't so."

In pullman smokers and corner grocery stores—across luncheon tables and over back fences—in the halls of Congress and on soap-box platforms—the "power issue" is the target for glib, uninformed opinions.

"Water power, God's gift to all the people, runs forever and thus produces electricity at practically no cost!" A mistaken picture of public assets diverted to private pockets.

"Municipal operation is better for small communities," "Public operation would give us power at lower costs," "Electric utilities are autocratic and high hat" . . . familiar statements these—reflecting a haze of misconception.

Only sound reasoning and basic fact will forestall the half truths that father unwise measures. To help supply that need, not only for the light and power industry but for every other industry, is the purpose of Nation's Business.

Each month Nation's Business surveys the changing world of economics, government, finance. It picks out the highlights, explains them, gives them meaning, relates them to fundamental trends.

HAS NEW LIQUOR PLAN FOR U. S. TO LICENSE STATES

Would Modify Dry Law to Permit Plan.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Regulation and control of the liquor traffic by a method never before proposed is provided in a resolution which Representative Richard S. Aldrich [Rep., R. I.] will introduce on the opening day of congress. It calls for submitting to the states a constitutional amendment as an addition to the 18th amendment but on altogether new lines.

Under the amendment the states would be divided into nine groups or districts, from each of which would be elected a commissioner to serve for eight years, the nine commissioners making up a body that would have authority to license any state making application to manufacture, sell or transport liquor under such terms and conditions as the state may desire and the commission may prescribe.

Provides Federal Election.

Such a commission would be unlike any governmental body in existence in this country. Its members would be elected by popular vote in a form of federal election not now existing, for all the states in a group would vote for choice of identical candidates, entailing a measure of federal supervision. Each district is to contain as nearly as possible the same population.

Under the Aldrich plan the provisions of the 18th amendment and all laws pertaining to the subject, whether enacted thereunder or not, remain in effect throughout the United States and its possessions, except in so far as they are not modified by the licenses issued by the commission to the several states. After a state has applied for a license and as soon as it is issued the provisions of the license become the law of the licensee state in regard to the manufacture, transportation and sale of all liquors specified in the license. If a state wants to limit alcoholic beverages to wines and beer, its license can be so prepared.

States to Pay License Fee.

The revenue derived by the federal government under this amendment would be obtained from the license fees as fixed by the commission and would be paid by the licensed state, not by any individual. In a state which has obtained a license, congressional enactments inconsistent with the provisions of the license are not to be operative.

Congress retains the power to fix the compensation of the commissioners, to impeach and try impeachment of the commissioners, to judge the election returns and qualifications of the commissioners, to fix the time and manner of holding the elections and to appropriate money for the expenses of the commission. Beyond these powers the liquor question is removed entirely from congress in the states receiving licenses.

Tear Down 812 N.Y. Buildings In 10 Months, Erect Only 169

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—This city, so far as the borough of Manhattan is concerned, is going in for wide open spaces in a big way. Once considered the most crowded island in the world, Manhattan is tearing down its skyscrapers five times as fast as it is building new ones. For the first ten months of this year 812 buildings were demolished and only 169 new ones erected. The predicted ratio for the year is 800 to 175.

Two outstanding reasons were given today by real estate men for the wholesale wrecking of old buildings—lack of tenants and high taxes. Property owners have discovered they can escape taxes by tearing down their structures and frequently can effect a profit by renting the vacant lot for automobile parking space, which is at a great premium in this town.

Develops Into a Racket.

The trend toward open spaces is highly satisfactory to the average cliff dweller of Manhattan, but Samuel Fassler, superintendent of buildings, warns that demolition has developed into a "racket." Mr. Fassler says that so serious has the threat of the wreckers ax become, that the city has temporarily stopped issuing parking ground permits in the mid-town section.

"Racketeers undoubtedly have been going around making a business of showing owners of vacant houses how to save taxes and make money with parking lots," said Mr. Fassler. "I consider it a 'racket' because the legitimate garages are hit by this plan, and the city loses both ways. Eventually the loss falls upon the taxpayers. Whatever has been the general motive in the many demolitions, it is noticeable that the number of buildings torn down has shown a decided decline since we stopped issuing parking lot permits except in special cases."

As an indication that the buildings wrecked and not replaced are of size and importance it is noted that most of the vacant lots are springing up in the mid-town sector. Hotel Belmont at Park avenue and 42nd street went down, the Medical Institute building a block north, a row of fine old mansions on Madison avenue and a fourteen story building on Lexington also fell. Three parking lots have replaced the structures and small boys play baseball on another of the vacant spots.

Here Are Demolition Records.

There were less than four old buildings torn down for every one constructed in Manhattan in 1930, according to bureau of building records. In 1929 the rate was less than 3 to 1, and in other recent years the ratio was even.

The demolition records this year which have been carried out were: January, 125 buildings; February, 114; March, 37; April, 95; May, 144; June, 87; July, 44; August, 75; September, 57, and October, 34.

The more optimistic real estate dealers pointed out that the difference in the number of buildings erected and the number demolished indicated a trend toward construction of much larger building units and pointed out that the Radio City site would have ten buildings where more than 100 were wrecked. The Radio City scheme, however, is an isolated case.

300 Rookeries Are Wrecked.

New York gradually is clearing up its congested residential districts and the last three years has seen the wrecking of more than 300 "rookeries" on the east side and in Hell's Kitchen on the west side of Manhattan. Many builders are of the opinion that a general cleaning out of old building would be beneficial to the property owners and building industry alike.

U. S. TO PRESENT MORE NEWBERRY CASE EVIDENCE

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—That Michael Blumberg, Clinton, Ia., liquor baron on trial with Edward "Ted" Newberry, Chicago gangster, and 37 other defendants charged with liquor conspiracy, purchased the output of alcohol from the Carbon Cliff distillery, near Rock Island, will probably be the next evidence to be submitted by the government.

Blumberg, according to testimony already offered, handled more than $500,000 in cash during a span of three years' time. Practically all represented liquor purchases, the government claims. Former patrons and bootleggers from Iowa are appearing in court daily and putting their "finger" on Mike as the distributor.

Taking the stand that as yet testimony as a whole for the government has not made it necessary for them to procure witnesses, the defense attorneys, numbering thirteen, decline to reveal whom they will call when the time comes. Prosecuting attorneys promise several more "surprises" for the defense.

LIFT CURFEW ON MEXICAN BORDER TO WOO TOURISTS

Their Money Overcomes Texas Scruples.

BY HAL FOUST.

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The Texans of this border city are again exposing themselves to the temptations on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, the cafés, bars, and billiard halls of Nuevo Laredo.

Three months ago, on petition of local residents, the treasury department at Washington ordered the international bridge closed from 9 o'clock at night until 7 o'clock in the morning. The Texans—once famed as he-men who could take it or leave it, or carry it if they took it—wanted to reduce their drinking.

A few days ago, again on petition of the local residents, the treasury department issued a new order, fixing midnight as the hour for closing the bridge. The earlier closing hour had hurt the tourist business.

Hospitality Does It.

Laredo, in the spirit of southern hospitality, is now willing to stay awake after 9 o'clock at night so that its visitors might sip rather than gulp at the Mexican end of the international bridge. The natives of this technically dry state, to stimulate the tourist trade and the tourists, asked Washington to postpone the bridge curfew.

As far as local residents are concerned, the 9 o'clock closing did not interfere materially with their enjoyment of the nearby Mexican saloons. They were gulping an evening's allotment of alcoholic drinks in the shorter hours. It was the tourists who wanted to linger and sip a sparkling stein of light amber with creamy foam at 15 cents a glass, or a smoky Scotch highball at 35 cents a glass.

Liquor Available on This Side.

Without comfort and leisure, the legal drinks of Mexico were not much of a tourist drawing card. San Antonio, 180 miles to the north, with its outdoor sports and its colony of winter residents from the north, offers rum at $4.50 for a short quart, fine Old Taylor for from $3.50 to $5 a pint, and a superior brand of corn liquor at from $2.50 to $5 a gallon.

This corn is highly respected hereabouts. A Chicagoan recently brought some "government warehouse" liquor to San Antonio with him and, after trading from a local bottle, dumped his own stock.

But at the ballot box, Texas is dry, and with this technical rating, Laredo, now that the bridge remains open until midnight, presents itself as an oasis for tourists. It is 1,450 miles from Chicago, practically all of the distance on pavement.

Hardenbrook, P.T. Barnum's First Press Agent, Is Dead

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—William Tea Eyck Hardenbrook, 79, a former editor and P. T. Barnum's first press agent, died here of heart disease. He was reputed to have been the oldest Shriner and sole survivor of the thirty men who founded Mecca temple, New York. At one time Hardenbrook was business manager of Texas Siftings, which was founded by Sidney Porter [O. Henry].

LITHUANIA ENDS CO-DICTATORSHIP; CALLS ELECTION

Picks Presidential Electors Dec. 2.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Nov. 29.—After five years during which Lithuania has been governed by a joint dictatorship composed of President Antanas Smetona and Premier J. Tubelis, Smetona has issued a decree calling for an immediate presidential election.

Presidential electors will be selected beginning twenty-three districts and four cities — Kaunas, Memel, Shavli and Ponevesh. A total of 113 electors will be named. They will convene at Kaunas Dec. 11 to elect a president for a term of seven years.

Opposition Surprised.

The decree took the Lithuanian opposition parties by surprise, and it is generally predicted that Smetona will continue as head of the Lithuanian state. The presidential election law is a radical departure from the methods of other new European governments. It is patterned after the American system.

Lithuania has been without a parliament for five years. President Smetona, assisted by Premier Tubelis and his cabinet, has given Lithuania what is considered her first efficient government since she achieved independence in 1918. Under Smetona Lithuania is enjoying prosperity, unaffected by the general economic depression.

Constitution in Making.

Lithuania's joint dictators have not set a date for the parliamentary elections. Premier Tubelis reports the new constitution is not yet completed and that the government is studying important changes which will be made before the legislature is entrusted with the country's destiny. It is planned to follow America's example again by separating the executive from the legislative branch of the government.

FIGHTS WAY OUT OF GRAVE AFTER FUNERAL SERVICE

TEHERAN, Persia, Nov. 29. — The parents of Mohamed Hossein were surprised to find him fast asleep in bed in their home at Zambourak today after they had buried him last night. Hossein had been suffering from a severe headache for several days and when he lapsed into unconsciousness his parents believed him dead and buried him.

On being questioned as to how he escaped from his grave, he explained that when he regained consciousness he dislodged one of the bricks on the grave's roof with his fists, tearing away other masonry until he was able to escape.

When a Mohammedan is buried no coffin is used. Neither is earth thrown into the grave. The dead are made to sit up facing Mecca, so that they will be ready to "fly out of their graves when the celestial bugle calls them on the day of judgment." The grave is merely a roofed receptacle.

Three Baritones Win in Men's Section of Radio Tests

Baritones won the first three places in the men's section of the Atwater-Kent musical scholarship contest for the midwestern states, in the radio auditions held Sunday, Nov. 23, over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station, it was announced yesterday. The three who qualified for the national trials to be held at Washington, D. C., in the order in which they placed, are Eugene Morgan of Painesville, O., No. 24 on the list of contestants, who sang "Vision Fugitive"; William Gowdy, Gilbert, Ia., No. 14, who sang the Prologue from "I Pagliacci," and Adrian Ellesson, Minneapolis, No. 12, who sang "To the Evening Star," from "Tannhäuser."

SMOKE OFFICIAL WILL WARN 27 MORE VIOLATORS

Press Campaign to End Evil.

A warning against violating the city's smoke abatement ordinance will be served today by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, on twenty-seven persons and business concerns who have been summoned to appear at his office. The summonses were issued after observers had detected the emission of smoke from building stacks owned by the offenders.

The daily hearings, at which recommendations are made for smokeless firing of furnaces, help combat the smoke evil, according to Chambers. A warning suffices in most instances, he said, and does not often have to be followed by legal action against the violators in the Municipal court.

Those summoned to appear today are:

M. J. Holloway & Co., 308 West Ontario street.
J. R. Thompson & Co., 357 North La Salle street.
Parks Davis & Co., 130 North Franklin street.
George F. Harding, 3101 Cottage Grove avenue.
George F. Harding, 3134 Cottage Grove avenue.
Great Western Service station, 5355 Diversey.
Broadway Strand, 1641 West Roosevelt road.
George Wisler, 1618 Columbia avenue.
Central W. W. laundry, 3935 North Central Park avenue.
R. G. Knight, 4000 Irving Park boulevard.
Medinah Athletic club, 505 North Michigan avenue.
Lindsay Light company, 161 East Grand avenue.
Lepman Brothers company, 600 South Marshfield avenue.
E. F. Weber & Co., 6105 North Clark street.
Federal government warehouse, 1304 South Indiana avenue.
W. T. Tangney, 1417 Bryn Mawr avenue.
Winston & Co., 632 North Wells street.
J. Berry building, 319 West Ohio street.
Industry building, 117 North Wells street.
Willoughby-Hill company, 155 North Clark street.
Nordo Products company, 541 North Franklin street.
Lake-Wells building, 179 North Wells street.

The federal government through Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, and more recently through Postmaster Lueder, has pledged its coöperation to eliminate smoke from government stacks.

Four Bandits Hold Up Girl Theater Cashier; Get $200

Four bandits menaced Miss Violet Lingren, 22 years old, 5211 North Ashland avenue, cashier of the Broadway Strand movie house at 1643 Roosevelt road, late last night and forced her to surrender $200. The robbers escaped in a waiting car driven by a fifth man. The theater was about to close at the time of the holdup.

TWO GIRLS DROWN AS CAR DIVES IN KANKAKEE RIVER

Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Two girls were drowned and two men and a woman injured early today when their car plunged through a huge "danger" sign and into the Kankakee river.

The dead: Gertrude Bryant, 17, of Chatsworth, Ill., and Clarice Miller, 17, of Forrest, Ill. Injured: Charles Hinkle, 32, of Chatsworth; Flick Teeter, 24, of Chatsworth, and Mrs. Minnie Putnam, 35, of Bradley, Ill.

A jury convened by Coroner O. J. Cartier brought in a verdict of accidental death. Teeter, owner and driver, said all five were in the seat of his small coupe and that he did not see the sign. He drove past a turn he should have made for highway route 3 and went on a hundred yards to where the road ends at the river.

Teeter and Hinkle said they got out as the car sank in about six feet of water, then pulled Mrs. Putnam out and placed her on top of the car, while they swam ashore. They were unable to rescue the two girls, who had been in the middle of the single seat.

Teeter called Kankakee firemen, who pulled the car to shore, after bringing in Mrs. Putnam, and found the two bodies still in the seat.

Two Women Are Stabbed in Quarrel at Roadhouse

Miss Fannie Schwartz, who lives at Canal street and Western avenue, Blue Island, and Miss Pearl Woolms, said to own the Rabbit Inn, 151st street and Western avenue, Markham, were stabbed last night, the former seriously, during a brawl in the inn. Police are seeking a man known as "Dave" as the assailant. Ted Zuloff, 39 years old, of 15609 Halsted street, Phoenix, is being held by county highway police as the companion of "Dave" although he had nothing to do with the stabbing.

Guisthau, Former French Cabinet Member, Is Dead

Paris, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Gabriel Guisthau, a former cabinet member under Raymond Poincare and Aristide Briand, died Friday, it was revealed today. Starting in 1912, he was successively minister of public instruction, minister of commerce and minister of marine. He held the latter office in 1921 and 1922. He was an important figure at the time of the Washington arms conference in 1921.

Conductor Retires After 44 Years with Railroad

John Held Jr. Does Another Youthful Book

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Flesh Is Weak," by John Held Jr. [Vanguard.]

A FEW weeks ago this volume of short stories was added to the already sizable list of John Held's literary work. That fact is interesting, for John Held isn't, in the first place, an author. That is, he wasn't until he began writing (which sounds a little Irish bullish). He was an illustrator, the most popular of the lot that drew the youth of the land in its hours of ease and plenty (of gin).

JOHN HELD JR.

He must have illustrated more stories about flaming youth than any man of the moment. His pen lies WAS youth. I have a notion that reading too many of those "romantic" tales, being surrounded all of his working day by youth, being fed up with false news of the way it fained, he just naturally had to do something about it. And what he did was to draw in words what he had been drawing with his pen for years.

An urge to give readers the works about youth must have overpowered him. He has now published four volumes of short stories. All the stories were amateurish. They didn't begin and they didn't end. There wasn't any motivating circumstance except the sheer business of youth being its own motivation. They were often so short that they weren't more than the most fragile bits of writing. But they had somehow a reality and the breath of life. One of the volumes was called "Grim Youth." If a prize had been given that year for the best title Mr. Held should have had it.

"The Flesh Is Weak" also is a collection of his short stories—not, it seems to me, quite so startlingly real as "Grim Youth," but oddly vital. The stories are mere sketches. They are done with the light touch, but under that flippancy there is ironic reality.

A tale called "Nocture" (which means the book) tells of the eagerness for love of a girl who found a preacher rather than a teacher in the local Don Juan of the soda fountain.

Another, "Feet of Clay," amusingly tells of a girl's heartbreaking sadness that followed a boy's early departure, caused by smoking his first good cigar, but which the girl thought was caused by her own lack of allure. "Penitentiary Bait" is a story of strong passion with a grim enough end.

In "Lochinvar" Mr. Held comments on the attitude of the modern youth in a sentence from the lips of a young man who has spent the evening with a blind date which he found 100 per cent minus. When his friend, in commiserating with him, asked why he hadn't brought the girl into the club and dropped her with one of the long stag lines there instead of staying outside in his car, he had says:

"O, I don't know. I was in it and I thought I might as well go. I didn't want to throw her down."

"Did she wrestle?"

"Sure."

"How come I got the impression that you couldn't get fond of her."

"Gee, she'd come in all the way on the interurban. It was an hour in and an hour back. I figured a little wrestling was the least I could do for her."

"Sax and Sex" is the story of a young man who wanted to become a member of the college band, but had forty-five rivals for the job of tooting the saxophone. He conceived the ingenious idea of trying to borrow money on his sax, giving as a reason that he needed it to get the girl out of trouble whom he had (entirely in his imagination) got into trouble. The idea was so good that the young man became not only a member of the band but a local hero.

"Holy Bonds" is an unadorned story of a young thing that had to get married and managed it with skill if not with honesty.

The quality in Mr. Held's stories that makes them unforgettable is not art at all, but reality. They are not clever, either in conception or in writing. They're just real. And reality has a tonic quality—a shocking one—that mere artistry sometimes lacks.

Mr. Held must be very fond of dogs, because one of his three volumes was a collection of dog stories (not his best, however, I should say, although the illustrations (drawn by the author) were grand). The author has also illustrated "The Flesh Is Weak."

Practically every doctor knows this. Some, perhaps, live it. But few, apparently, have either the courage or ability to write it. And Maeth's brave life, lived it, and in his autobiography had the courage to reveal the truth. What a life is here revealed! For the doctor was more than a medico—he was an adventurer, an adventurer in the humanities.

Reporter Finds Romance in Own Marriage

"CONSOLATION MARRIAGE"
Produced by RKO.
Directed by Paul Sloane.
Presented at the Palace theater.

Mary	Irene Dunne
Steve	Pat O'Brien
Jeff	John Halliday
The Colonel	Matt Moore
Aubrey	Lester Vail
Elaine	Myrna Loy

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

The finished and appealing performances of Irene Dunne and Pat O'Brien are the tang of "Consolation Marriage."

They impersonate two lonely, unhappy jilted young people who, in their misery, find one another's company so comforting that they marry to make the solace permanent. Both are sure that the lost love is the only one in the world who can REALLY matter, and they are agreed that if chance shall throw the absent beloved in either's path again, why, with a shrug of the shoulders, a sporting good bye and NO tears—an amicable separation shall be effected between Mr. and Mrs. Steve Porter.

Things work out strangely in this old world! Babies come for one thing and while a mother may think she can desert a wee butterball with soft ringlets of hair springing coslly from the nape of a fat little neck, upon second thought—COULD a mother? Also, when a man and a woman have learned to laugh a lot together about nothing in particular, well——?

The picture will enlighten you as to the further history of the Porters.

There's not much originality to the story of "Consolation Marriage," but the director has handled his material intelligently and the supporting players are able. Myrna Loy certainly did herself wrong when she went blonde, but she is still charming, and her voice is nice. John Halliday has a sympathetic rôle as the understanding publisher of the newspaper for which the hero reports.

New York Meeting Appeals to Poland to Protect the Jews

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Speakers representing various religious and other organizations united this morning at a mass meeting in the Free synagogue in Carnegie hall to protest against recent and present anti-semitic demonstrations in Poland.

The speakers included George Gordon Battle, Charles H. Tuttle, former United States Attorney, chairman of the Interfaith committee; the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, secretary of the American committee on religious rights and minorities, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free synagogue.

After the addresses, resolutions were adopted urging the Polish government to take drastic steps to bring about complete cessation of acts of violence against Jews and other manifestations of bigotry and hostility. The meeting was held under the auspices of the American Jewis congress. Copies of the resolution will be sent by officials of the congress to the Polish embassy.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

There is nothing so much fun as being forced to do something that you've always wanted to do and yet have known that you shouldn't do. Many a contract and tempts a contract player to bid a slam when his better judgment tells him that the odds are all against his making it. But, being forced to bid a slam on such a hand, ah—what luck! If he fails, he has the most perfect of alibis. If he wins, his joy is complete. Yesterday's play-a-problem was one of those hands.

NORTH
♠—K,J,9,7,5,4,3,2
♥—K,J,9,4

WEST	EAST [Dealer]
♠—	♠—10
♥—9,6,5,3	♥—A,Q,10
♦—Q,6,5	♦—A,K,J,10,8,7
♣—K,9,8,7,2,2	♣—7,10,6

SOUTH.
♥—7,2
♣—Q,5,4

East opened the bidding with two diamonds. South passed, West bid three clubs [even when holding adequate support for a minor it is well to show a second suit if it is biddable. This is not true when holding adequate support for a major]. North bid three spades. East bid four diamonds and South four spades. West, holding no spades and adequate support for his partner's diamonds, bid five diamonds. North bid five spades.

East decided that North probably had a freak hand somewhat similar in distribution to his own and that he was very likely void in diamonds. At best, he did not think North had more than a singleton diamond. This meant that he could not hope to take more than one trick in diamonds if he allowed North to play the spades and he could only count on one trick in hearts. Unless his partner held the ♣ A he saw no chance to set North's spade bid. On the other hand, a bid of six diamonds if it won the contract should not be set badly. If it was overbid he felt reasonably sure of stopping six spades. He, therefore, felt sure that a six diamond bid would definitely keep his opponents from game. He was not vulnerable, could not be badly set and there was always a chance that he might make the bid. So East bid six diamonds and all passed.

As it turned out North and South would have done well to have made a flag flying bid of six spades and taken a set in spite of the fact that they were vulnerable.

South opened with ♠ A which dummy trumped with the ♦ 5. Dummy then led the ♦ Q followed by the ♦ 6 which East took with the 10. East then led the ♦ A and K, clearing the trump suit. East then led the ♣ J, South played the 4, dummy the 2, and North took the trick with the A. North then returned the ♥ 4 which East took with the A. If East had finessed the heart lead his Q would have held. But why take the chance? A finesse was unnecessary.

East then led the ♣ 10, South played the 5, and dummy the 3. East played the ♣ 4, South's Q came up and dummy took with the K. Dummy then led his good ♣ 9-8-7 on which East discarded the ♥ 10 and Q and then took with the ♦ 8. The next and last trick going to East's J of trumps.

Nicely bid, nicely played, and well rewarded.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagrams and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Darrow Writes Own Story of the Bar and Views About Life

Clarence Darrow, veteran of famous court battles, yesterday announced he has completed his autobiography. It is to be published in February under the title, "The Story of My Life." The manuscript was finished early this month after two years of work, almost simultaneously with the publication of a biography, "Clarence Darrow," by Charles Yale Harrison.

CLARENCE DARROW

The autobiography is to recount the experiences of almost three-quarters of a century of his life and more than a half century before the bar. It will include chapters on the Loeb-Leopold case, the Scopes evolution joust with the late William Jennings Bryan at Dayton, Tenn., the Debs case following the American Railway union strike of 1894, and the trial of Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone for the murder of ex-Gov. Steunenburg of Idaho, growing out of a strike of the Western Federation of Miners.

Mr. Darrow has written of the growth and development of his views on religion, prohibition, crime, and life. He has given them in other publications and from the lecture platform. The autobiography has no relation to the publication by Mr. Harrison.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE Cort theater, which has been a vacant chair at the feast of drama for many months, became an active contributor, in a manner of speaking, to the playbills last night. A comedy called "This Weaker Sex" had a premiére there, opening "cold," which means in stage argot that it is a new-born child, innocent of experience and naked to whatever cruel winds may blow.

Therefore I sat there faithfully until the bitter end, seeking to warm this shivering babe with the ardor of my hopes for its survival. Many another first nighter seized his overcoat and fled before the last act had chattered to its futile final curtain; but I remained at the post of duty like a noble physician, feeling the fading pulse of my patient and shaking my head from time to time in sad, unspoken diagnosis.

I fear for the life of "This Weaker Sex." Its "cold" performance may be warm this evening, but not even a tropical heat of interpretation can cure the wasting illness of its story. The play is like its heroine who, according to the dialogue, once lived on a diet of nuts for six months and came down with pernicious anaemia.

From the scientific point of view this specimen belongs to "The Vinegar Tree" family. It is a domestic comedy, dealing with the vagaries of a feather headed, erratic, and confusion breeding matron, and holding her up to ridicule in a somewhat merciless manner. But while "The Vinegar Tree" is a spirited and witty romp, "This Weaker Sex" is just a piece of forced and tedious play writing which should not have been permitted to reveal its lack of stamina before the footlights.

The preposterous lady upon whom the play is focussed—bravely and winsomely acted by Spring Byington—keeps a first-class rooming house but flutters vigorously toward the practice of the fine arts. Sculpture is her latest yearning. She has two winsome daughters, and her frantic and officious dabbling in the matrimonial affairs of the younger makes the plot. It is a thin, unpersuasive story, which need not be re-told.

Miss Byington brings this meddling, mad-cap mamma to life gayly and with charm, but the play itself fails to support the characterization. Joan Blair and Mary Stuart—the latter a new girl, and worth seeing—brighten the picture with comeliness. Eugene Power, a fine veteran, contributes authority to the rôle of a cantankerous father-in-law.

"Marching By," a new operetta with Natalie Hall as prima donna, will begin a run at the Great Northern theater tonight . . . "Payment Deferred," with Charles Laughton heading an English company, will come to the Harris theater this evening under the auspices of the Dramatic league.

College Fraternities' Convention Urges Economy of Houses

New York, Nov. 29. — [Special.] — Hard times have hit college fraternities, and measures of economy, particularly in dances and entertainment, are laid down in a report adopted at the twenty-third annual session of the interfraternity conference which ended today at the Pennsylvania.

Fraternities were asked to simplify entertainments and eliminate competitive entertaining. All functions of this nature should reflect the desires of the chapter and not merely those of socially minded committees, it was decreed.

Uncle Sam Now Testing Earth's Blanket of Air

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A simple trick like measuring the changing height of the earth's "big top" is one of the things the bureau of standards believes will help prevent radio fading. The bureau has a device to do just that.

The bureau announced today development of the machine to measure continuously in an improved manner the earth's air blanket which billows up and down like a circus tent in a gale.

On a photographic film it records the everchanging height of the "Kennelly-Heaviside layer," a region of electricity-conducting air about 100 miles above the earth.

Radio waves from the earth strike this layer and "bounce" back to the earth again. Changes in the height of the layer send the waves back at varying angles. As a result the waves are not always correctly synchronized with other waves that travel along the ground.

It employs a radio transmitter to send out impulses that come to the receiving station through the air, bouncing off the "Kennelly-Heaviside layer" on the way, and other impulses that travel along the ground. The impulses are transformed into light that registers on a moving film.

The ground waves always travel the same distance, so register a straight line on the film. But the sky waves, bounding about, travel a greater or lesser distance as the layer moves up and down. They register traces on the film that vary in height above the trace left by the ground waves. This indicates the relative height of the layer above ground. With the machine working continuously, a picture is drawn that shows just how the layer is shifting.

The new knowledge which will be obtained with this device may also help make television more practical, by possibly doing away with the "double image" that now often results in blurred pictures.

The double image results when ground waves and sky waves, each carrying an image, fail to arrive at exactly the same time. The shifts in the Kennelly-Heaviside layer's height seem to cause this variation by bringing in the sky wave a little behind or a little ahead of the ground wave.

Chicago Gets Washington Fete Program

Illinois Group Plans for Bicentennial.

Programs of the nation wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth were received in Chicago yesterday. They announce a series of memorial events designed to present every phase of Washington's life.

Created by an act of congress, the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission is in national charge of the events, which will begin on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, 1932, and will continue through next Thanksgiving day.

An Illinois commission to aid the national body was created by the general assembly of the legislature and has established headquarters at 139 North Clark street, where Representative William G. Thon, the chairman, and Secretary Walter H. Wood are directing the activities of the state group.

Other members of the state commission are: State Senator Harry G. Wright, Dekalb; William G. Hierl, Chicago; William B. Brinton, Highland Park; Louis K. Corbett; Mason, Ill.; Mrs. Sarah Bond Hanley, Monmouth; Mrs. Samuel W. Earle, Mrs. Laura B. Evans, Taylorville; Prof. James A. James, Northwestern university; Prof. L. E. Robinson, Monmouth; William F. E. Gurley, Chicago; George R. Hemingway, Oak Park; and Judge Henry Horner, Chicago.

Editors of the foreign language press in Chicago will be entertained at a luncheon at the Hamilton club this noon by the commission and there Francis B. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, and others will explain the series of contests which will be conducted in the schools in connection with the commemoration.

Three contests are open to students from the first grade to the college rank. The elementary grades will compete in declamatory contests; those in high schools, in essays, and college students in oratorical contests. The winners in the state contests will receive bronze and silver medallions and certificates of award and the winners of the Illinois contests will compete with other state winners in a run-off at Washington. President Hoover will present the national winner with a gold medallion.

Most of 1932 will be taken up with the Washington celebration. While the details of local celebrations are to be arranged by each community for itself, the commission is furnishing literature and suggestions on a wide range of subjects relating to the life of Washington.

Twelve programs have been arranged by the national commission. Their titles, as given in the complete program just received here, follow: "Family Relationships of George Washington," "Homes of George Washington," "Youth and Manhood of George Washington," "The Mother of George Washington," "George Washington, the Man of Sentiment," "George Washington, the Man in Military and Civil Life," "George Washington the Christian," "George Washington the Leader of Men," "The Social Life of George Washington," "George Washington the Builder of the Nation," "George Washington the President," and "The Home Making of George and Martha Washington."

Omaha Citizens Receive Joslyn Art Memorial

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 29.—(AP)—An art memorial, built at a cost of $3,500,000 by Mrs. Sarah Joslyn of Omaha, to honor the memory of her late husband, was presented to the people of Omaha today.

A crowd estimated at 25,000 persons inspected the interior of the marble structure. In a setting of marble and steel they inspected an art exhibit gathered from all parts of the country by the Society of Liberal Arts, which had charge of the building. The structure was built around an organ which the late George Joslyn, pioneer Nebraska newspaper man, had in his home for many years. It was renovated and installed, with a new console, in the memorial.

Bronze Statues Depict Races at Field Museum

Twenty-three bronzes, including full length figures, busts and heads, representing outstanding specimens of various races on the earth, have been placed on exhibition in the department of anthropology of Field museum. The bronzes, executed by Miss Malvina Hoffman, are a gift from Stanley Field, president of the museum.

DOUG FAIRBANKS DECIDES AGAINST TRIP TO MANCHURIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—In his characteristically sudden fashion, Douglas Fairbanks has changed his mind about going to Manchuria and other out of the way sections of Asia to get material for another travel picture, he informed his wife, Mary Pickford, in a cablegram she received from Paris today. He added he will be back here in time to spend Christmas with her at Pickfair.

Lewis Milestone, director, and Robert Benchley, writer, who were to have accompanied Fairbanks into Asia, are leaving for home at once, the cablegram said, while Doug said he will enjoy some golf at Rome and skiing at St. Moritz before turning for home.

The message gave no reason for abandoning the trip, but business associates here believe it is because of the unsettled conditions in Manchuria. They added that they assume the idea has not been given up permanently and that Doug will probably embark again after the holidays.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

It was Kit Lascaro's twenty-sixth birthday. She'd worked four years as receptionist in a London family hotel and she felt herself in a groove. When an East African guest offers her a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Sordorat, Kenya, she gladly accepts. Theo Sable was there and Kit wanted him more than anything in the world. They'd been in love, but their engagement was broken because of his mother. Kit sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North is her cabin mate. Jess is going out to be married. Kit meets Lal Crowhurst, the biggest land owner about Sordorat and a most attractive bachelor. He is attentive to Kit. Jess delights in telling Kit the scandal she hears about Lal Crowhurst and about "the widow who owns him." Kit hears that Theo Sable has taken up his game hunting in Africa.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

A WEDDING.

There was just a tiny fly in the ointment of Jess North's contentment on her wedding day. One of the second class brides turned out to be a bishop's daughter, and was to have a ceremony of some elaboration, bridesmaids, and a choir.

They had landed overnight, been met by Noel Graham, Jess' fiancé, and gone to the hotel where he had booked a room for his bride. Kit also found accommodation there. It was not the best hotel; another slight disappointment to Jess. But the rapture of reunion left little room for grousing, even in her exigent and self-absorbed nature.

Kit liked Noel Graham on the spot, but she had a shrewd idea that he was not a very strong character. A tall, very thin young man, his physique did not look of the hardiest. He was very little tanned. He had a long nose, a broad, frank brow, a nice straight mouth, light blue eyes, and straw colored, unruly hair. His expression was reserved and he was exceedingly shy. It was difficult to gather at first sight his attraction for the slightly flamboyant Jess. But it was obvious that he adored her as she adored him.

Mombasa looked a fine city, with splendid stone buildings in the principal street, but they had no time to see it. They were tired out and slept like logs, and the first thing in the morning the wedding preparations were taken in hand. The ceremony was to be at noon, after the bishop's daughter's. The other brides on the boat did not belong to the Anglican church.

Every now and then Kit felt a lump in her throat, as she helped Jess to make her toilet for the great event. After all, it was a little bit sad to have none of your own people to help and fuss and laugh and cry. And to have no people at all, even at home. And only a very grudging gratitude towards the only person who had done anything for you.

Jess had several times during the voyage talked in a melancholy way of the few wedding presents she had received. Kit had given her the lovely white and silver brocade evening bag, embroidered with pearls, that the hotel staff had presented her with. It was the most suitable new object she had, and she knew they would not mind. As they were just deciding which was the best way to fasten the orange blossom round the lace edged tulle veil, there was a knock at the door, and a native boy handed to Kit an enormous sheaf of fragrant Bermuda lilies and a small parcel. They both bore Crowhurst's card, 'with good wishes to the Kenya bride.'

"O, Jess, something blue!" cried Kit, with a pleased laugh. She handed over the parcel and began to untie the great bow of sky blue satin ribbon that bound the lilies. They were evidently meant as a gift, not as a bridal bouquet. "We've simply got to have a bit of this to finish you off!"

"O!" gasped Jess, after she had undone the little parcel. Inside, in a white velvet case, reposed a little oblong box of pure gold, with a four leaved clover in emeralds in the center, surrounded by small diamonds. "Look, Kit, do look! It's for powder! How gorgeous! It must have cost at least a hundred pounds!"

A princely gesture, indeed. And yet, strange to say, a look that might have been frustration flashed across the girl's face. It was too subtle for analysis by Kit. A trained observer might have guessed that it was the first swift shadow of discontent with her own lot.

The wedding was over. It was decided balm to Jess' feelings to learn that the church was a cathedral.

She looked lovely, as she received the congratulations of the few people present at the hotel. One or two passengers who had spent the night in Mombasa had been roped in to partake of the modest breakfast the bridegroom had provided. Crowhurst himself had given the bride away, overwhelming Noel Graham with gratitude and shyness. Owing to his knowledge and his personality, it had been a really jolly affair. All the strangeness was banished by the food and wine and flowers, the sunshine, and, chiefly, the dispatch with which everything was done.

Noel Graham had been unable to bring any man friend to support him, as it was a very busy time on the plantation. He was obviously smitten with paralyzing nervousness by the unexpected presence of his much talked of employer. So, as he had brought his little car and meant to drive his bride to Nairobi, where they were to spend their brief honeymoon, Crowhurst bustled them into it, with their light luggage, and once again his quick command of the situation stamped the occasion, which might easily have been awkward, with entire success.

"I like the young man," he said to Kit, with his quizzical smile, when they had seen them off from the hotel steps. "But will he be able to hold his own?"

"What do you mean, Mr. Crowhurst?" she asked. But, for once, she was not quite sincere. She thought she knew.

Kit had only unpacked a few things. She soon packed up again and dressed herself in neat traveling clothes.

Crowhurst said his secretary had gone back to their hotel. He told her that he had business people to see and would not be coming on to Nairobi today. But he was coming to the station to see that she was all right.

There were several people sitting in the small lounge when she went down to get a cup of tea. She was tired. The day had been a strain. She hoped Jess would be very happy. She was still very much attracted by her. She was glad that she would see her again.

At the table next to her were two men, sipping iced whisky pegs. They were youngish and what would be called in England, "horsey looking." They certainly did not look like the sportsmen or settlers on the boat. But they had nice voices, if rather loud. As Kit poured her tea one of them said:

"Queer thing Theo Sable should turn up again like that!"

Theo Sable!

"Darned queer!" agreed the other man. "I haven't set eyes on him since a year ago. Have you?"

"No—more than that, old man! It was just after that Chaplet business. I came across him over at Butiaba on Lake Albert, when I was fixing up about the motor service extension. I'd quite lost sight of him. And a lot of chaps had asked me about him on and off. He must have missed a lot of spanking good jobs. He said he'd been in the Congo, wandering about on his own."

"He didn't say where he'd come from now, did he? He looks all right, I think."

"Yes, fit enough. Must have marvelous constitution. A pity he was, he——"

Let Your Children Pass On Their Toys to Other Youngsters

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There is something you and the children can do on stormy afternoons in December that will mean one kind of gain for them and another kind of gain for other, less fortunate children. That something is the sorting over of their toys with an eye to giving away the ones they've outgrown, or are no longer interested in.

There are going to be many children this year to whom Christmas will mean empty stockings unless we all try to do something about it. Even if we are sailing so close to the financial wind that we have no leeway we can do this much. You will be surprised if you go over their toys with the children how many really good things there are that they are glad to give away.

It is important, I think, how we put the plight of other children to them. I don't believe in baring the world's woes to children, nor in playing upon their sympathies. Nor do I believe in letting them get that attitude which expresses itself in capital letters: "I'm giving these to the little poor children."

It is enough for them to know that there are children who, because their parents have been out of work or ill, may have no Christmas festivity or gifts. Their response will be generosity itself.

But here, just a word. If there is some toy they have loved dearly, like a teddy bear or a doll, which is really tied to their heartstrings by associations and has come to seem part of themselves, don't urge the sacrifice of it upon them. These early loves are sacred things and must be respected, I deeply believe.

After choosing the toys to be given away, go over them carefully for repairs. Nothing broken or battered should be passed on—for the sake of the children who are to receive them, and for the sake of those who are to give them, too. Let the children spend several afternoons mending with nails or glue the best of the toys—and painting, too, where that will rehabilitate them.

Bright paint on a mended toy will work magic. If they are too young to handle paint alone, you can work with them. In this way they are not merely giving discarded things—they are giving something of themselves. That helps to implant the true spirit of Christmas in their hearts, and a touch of the brotherhood of man which the world needs, just now.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My niece, 2½, was in a store one day where they had gold fish and moss in a big glass bowl. I lifted her up so she could see better and just then one of the fish started to swim toward the moss. Jeannette, all excited, cried, "O! the fish is going into the woods."

British Expert on Asia Here to Give Lectures

Sir E. Denison Ross, British traveler and authority on Persian culture, arrived in Chicago last night. He stopped for several hours with Henry Field, 234 East Pearson street, anthropologist and assistant curator of the Field museum. Sir Denison left for Denver, but will return to Chicago on Wednesday to deliver Harris Foundation lectures at Northwestern university.

The statement that America has a greater historical background than England was made by Sir Denison.

"It may seem strange," the Englishman asserted, "but since I came here again the thought occurred to me. The history of the United States dates back to the time New England was settled and to the time of William and Mary in England. The whole of America's development and culture is a direct offshoot of that time, and such men as Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln are not only names of great historical influence, but the country is intimately bound in their policies and actions.

"In England since the days of Victoria there have been no outstanding political or cultural catastrophies, such as your revolutionary and civil wars. We have an ancient history, it is true, but it is only ancient and does not exert any profound present day significance upon us. So I may say that our historical background dates back only to the time of Queen Victoria."

Sir Denison, who is 60 years old, besides being an authority on Indo-Iranian culture, has a command of over 30 languages and dialects. Since 1916 he has been director of the School of Oriental Studies, a London institution, and holds the chair of Persian in the University of London. He arrived in America on Nov. 27 and he has lectured every day since.

At Princeton university he was selected to deliver the Kahn Foundation lectures. In Denver he will give the Daniels Foundation lectures and three lectures at the Freer Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C. His other engagements are at universities and museums.

On Dec. 9 Mr. Field will give a banquet at the Palmer house. There Sir Denison will be the guest of honor. Dr. James H. Breasted, director of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago, will preside. Members of the New Orient society will attend.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Uses Rug for Mattress.

"I would appreciate it so much if you could secure a single or three-quarter size bed, springs, and mattress for an ex-soldier I know. His father is paralyzed from the waist down and just now is using a rug for a mattress. They are also in need of chairs, a table, and any other furnishings which you might be able to get for them. N. D."

This ex-soldier and his invalid father would be a great deal more comfortable in their little home if they had these articles which are badly needed. Perhaps you can supply one or two of them.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It looks to me as if we are in for the artiest hairdressing spell we've known in ages. And, if you don't believe that ART, with a broad a, r and t, isn't expected of the gentlemen and ladies of the waving and clipping profession, listen to this report on a big hairdressing pow-wow, an international affair, held in Paris the early week of October.

"That hairdressers are artists in more than one sense of the word was proved by the exhibition in the salon of paintings and sculptures of sculpture executed by French coiffeurs. Some of these had been removed from art galleries especially for the showing." A reception to the President of France and the minister of commerce was a feature of the International Exhibition of the Arts of Coiffeur and Perfumery.

Just that dignifiedly and seriously do they take the female beautifying arts in the land from which a powerful lot of our beauty inspiration flows.

Coiffures that won distinction bear out the theory of this "artistic of all seasons" of mine. It's astounding, really, what variety and charm of line can be accomplished with those few inches of hair with which these skilled artists work, and the infinite sham with which the hair arrangement and best facial features are made to harmonize! It is an ART.

Here's a little note out of that convention news that may interest you—and explain, by the way, the current platinum blond epidemic. There was one grand prize for the best head and, to quote: "It was noted that few of the models in the contest were dark haired, only one decided brunette appearing among the 55 finals. Nor was there a single model with long hair. In fact, there were few with hair below the neckline.

Then, to add to the Art confusion, have you seen those new lacquered wigs they're asking us to top our dress clothes with? From those I've seen, to date, all I gotta say is that Poppa won't love Momma in 'em!

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Sent in False Alarm.

The shrill insistent siren of the fire engine halted pedestrians, autos and street cars. The glistening red machine roared and clanged down the street, coming to an abrupt halt before a bungalow at the end of the block. Hardly had the car stopped moving before men and apparatus were on the ground, up the steps, and ready for business. My neighbor and I thrust our heads out adjacent windows in great excitement.

"Mrs. M—, where is the fire?" she called.

"Why, Mrs. Cohen, didn't you yell 'Fire! Fire!'"

"No, no. I was just calling my Meyer!"

Food Talk.

Mrs. M. W. D. writes us this morning about some mincemeat she put up recently. Her letter reads as follows: "I put up some mincemeat using your recipe, and it is satisfactory—except for the fact that I have not sealed the jars as you directed.

"Most of my lids and rubbers were too old to use, so I allowed the mincemeat to cool in the jars for a day, and then the next day covered them with hot paraffin. However, now, on some of the jars the paraffin is loose, and I am wondering if they will keep satisfactorily. Please advise me."

This does sound like a tragedy, Mrs. M. W. D. First of all let me say that I never recommend using old rubbers because they can't be relied upon. The cost of the rubbers is little when you stop to consider the cost of the foods preserved, as well as the cost of your time. If your mincemeat is not already spoiled, remove it from the jars and boil it. Buy new cups and rubbers for your jars and seal them as I directed. You will have to sterilize your jars again, too.

Speaking of mincemeat, did you know that you may take a few shortcuts in making meatless mincemeat? Citron, orange, and lemon peel may be bought already candied and already conveniently put up in packages that contain a quarter pound. The slices of the peel slices has been candied and tasted to meet the requirements of the cook, so it may be popped right into the mincemeat without further preparation.

½ cup of seedless raisins.
1 cup of brown sugar.
2 cups of granulated sugar.
1 teaspoon of salt.
2 cups of sweet cider.
2 ounces can of cranberry sauce (one and rind of 1 lemon and 1 orange.
2 teaspoons of cinnamon.
2 teaspoons of mace.
1 teaspoon of nutmeg.
1 cup of almonds.

Place the apples [peeled, cored, and chopped], dried fruits, citron, sugar, salt, cider, and butter in a deep kettle. Simmer for about thirty minutes. Add the remaining ingredients [except the nut meats] and cook slowly until thick. Add the chopped almonds last. Seal hot in sterile jars.

Yield: Two quarts.

Hutchins' Guests to See Play by Prof. Wilder

THOSE who have been invited to the supper party President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago are giving Wednesday night at their residence for Thornton Wilder are excited and pleased to be "among those present." For after the supper the party is to attend the dress rehearsal of three of Mr. Wilder's plays, one of which, "Queens of France," is being given for the first time. The other two, "The Long Christmas Dinner" and "The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden," were staged for the first times last week by the Yale and Vassar Dramatic society in Poughkeepsie and New Haven.

The three plays here will be given by the University Dramatic association under the direction of Prof. Frank H. O'Hara Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings in the Reynolds Club theater.

The Hutchins' guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, James Keeley, Arthur Meeker Jr., Miss Alice Boulter, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Welling, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick Jr., Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Harold H. Swift, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed and their guest, Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil A. Barnes, Walter G. Preston Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Francis Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Epstein.

Mrs. John A. Carpenter Plans Charity Ball Decorations.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is even busier than usual these days. For, in addition to the many artistic activities in which she always is engaged, she is in charge of the decorations for the charity ball on Dec. 18. Also she is in the midst of preparations for her daughter Ginny's marriage on Dec. 21. The wedding is to be in St. James's church at noon, the Rev. Duncan Browne officiating. After the ceremony there will be a luncheon for members of the family at the Carpenter residence, 700 Rush street.

Miss Carpenter still is deciding whether to have any attendants, but her fiancé, Patrick C. Hill, will have Anthony Hill of Toronto as his best man. Pre-nuptial parties for the bride-to-be are a bit indefinite, too, for Mr. Hill may not be able to arrive from Fort Worth until just before the wedding, but Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is planning to entertain for Miss Carpenter and Mr. Hill the night before the wedding. Mr. Hill, whose father and stepmother, Col. and Mrs. David Hill of London and County Antrim, Ireland, will not be able to come for the wedding, will take his bride to Fort Worth to live for at least a year.

Singing and Opera Reading to Help the Unemployed.

On today's social calendar: a meeting of Le Cercle Français at 2 o'clock in the Fine Arts building at which Miss Janet Fairbank will sing. Mrs. Laird Bell will read some French poems, and Mlle. Jeanne de Mare will give a reading of the opera, "Christophe Colomb," by Darius Milhaud with lyrics by Ambassador Paul Claudel—a tea sponsored by the Junior League at the Knoedler galleries, 622 North Michigan avenue, from 3 to 6 o'clock to open an exhibit of modern landscape art. Admission will be 50 cents and the entire proceeds will go to the Joint Emergency Relief fund. Miss Dorothy Schmidt, president of the league, and Mrs. Alfred Wolfe and Mrs. Shreve Badger of the arts and interests committee, will act as hostesses.

The Arts club has cards out for a tea on Friday from 4 to 6 o'clock to open an exhibition of early Chinese art comprising rare sculptures, pottaries, porcelains, bronzes and lacquers, loaned by Mr. C. T. Foo of Paris and New York.

Personal items about interesting people: The Potter Palmers are expecting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne, to arrive today from Santa Barbara, where they have been since shortly after their marriage at Bar Harbor on Sept. 28. The Thornes will be here until after Christmas when they will go to Sarasota, Fla., for the rest of the winter. Mrs. Freeman Hinckley and her daughters, Eleanor and Barbara McClurg, will arrive today from Boston where they spent Thanksgiving with Mr. Hinckley, who will come to Chicago a little later. Mrs. Hinckley has been in Boston for a month but the children joined her and Mr. Hinckley just before the holiday.

Shinagoans Will Leave for Florida After Christmas.

Plans for the usual after Christmas begins of society to warmer climes are going forward as usual and already many people have decided upon their destinations. Among those who have made plans are the Charles H. Chadwicks, who will go to Florida, and Miss Eleanor Holden, who will go to Middleburg, Va., to visit Miss Edith Cummings.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan of Lake Forest and their son, Donald, Jr., and their daughter, Margaret, will return on Friday from an eastern motor trip. They spent Thanksgiving in New York with another daughter, Catherine, who is a student at Dobbs Ferry.

Louis F. Swift of Lake Forest has gone to Portland, Ore., for a short visit. After his visit there he will go to Santa Barbara for the rest of the winter, returning to Lake Forest early next spring.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover gave a dinner last evening, the guests being chiefly members of the congress. The session will convene Dec. 7.

President and Mrs. Hoover had a few guests at Sunday supper tonight, but omitted their regular church service this morning.

BOSTONIAN'S BRIDE

[Bachrach Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage on Nov. 14 of Miss Priscilla Lowe, daughter of Leo H. Lowe and Mrs. Lowe of Kewanee, Ill., to Robert Greenley Birkin of Boston, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Birkin of Evanston. The bride was graduated from Northwestern university. She was voted the most popular student of the class of 1927. Mr. Birkin was graduated from Cornell in 1926 and is a member of Alpha Delta Phi. After Jan. 1 they will reside at 105 Pinckney street, Boston.

Drama Will Mark Century of Work by Sisters of Mercy

One hundred years of social welfare work in many parts of the world will be commemorated on Dec. 12 by the Sisters of Mercy of Chicago. Several hundred girls of the St. Xavier academy and Mercy High school will present a pageant called "The Masque of Mercy." That date is a century to the day since the order was established by Catherine McAuley in Dublin to perform "works of mercy."

The centennial of the order, which is being celebrated contemporaneously in the 282 foundations of the Sisters of Mercy in Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, the Channel Islands, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, the United States, Central America, the West Indies, and South Americans, is of interest to old Chicagoans. When the Sisters arrived in 1846, Chicago was a pioneer town of mud roads, wooden sidewalks, and balloon-frame houses, and had at that time a population of less than 18,000.

Three Sisters of the small Chicago group died in the cholera epidemic of 1849. The nuns were roused to Chicago's need of a hospital, and soon thereafter they established one in the old Lake house at Michigan avenue and Rush street. Later they moved to Tippecanoe hall on Kinzie street and the river.

FEARS TUBERCULOSIS MAY INCREASE IN NEXT TEN YEARS

"In the next ten years we may find that tuberculosis is on the increase, instead of the decrease, despite the great progress that has been made during the last two decades," Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, told the radio public last night. He spoke over W-G-N on behalf of the twenty-fifth annual sale of Christmas seals of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, of which he is a director.

"History reveals," the speaker explained, "that the greatest devastation from the white plague follows periods of economic distress such as we have been passing through in the last two years. Crowded living conditions, lack of proper food and clothing—these are conditions which tend to bring tuberculosis. Therefore, money given to provide food, clothing and shelter helps to prevent tuberculosis. It is equally true that money given to prevent tuberculosis helps prevent much dependence upon material relief."

In the years that the local public has been buying Christmas seals to help maintain the work of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute the national death rate from that disease has been reduced by more than one-half, Dr. Evans added.

Beaded Gowns Seen Once More in Paris

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Now that Paris has graciously permitted a little more elaboration in the evening gown than a few yards of unadorned satin, this is the time to rid yourself of any suppressed desires you may have toward frills and other fancies. There was a time, and mark you, not so much a thing of the past as it seems now, when even one poor flower was taboo, much less four. And the time is not so long ago when beaded dresses of any kind seemed a resurrection of the stone age. And as for frills—nothing could be said in their defense.

But now Yvonne Carette designs one of the smartest Paris evening gowns of the season and it has all three of these formerly despised features. You can see for yourself by looking at the sketch that Paris has changed its face.

The left hand sketch shows this dress, which is in black georgette, with its modest neck and narrow shoulder straps. There is no belt and the material gently caresses the waist and is fitted through the hips. In fact, its molded line is one of its best characteristics. Tiny black beads are worked in the georgette, through the bodice and the hips, in vague motifs of lines and crescents. Just below the hips the frills take up the rest of the story and are softly flowing in irregular lengths.

In the right hand corner you will see the back of this evening dress, with the point of the décolleté coming almost to the waist, but with the lower part of the back well covered. The swathed hipline also prevails here with the same frills giving it its graceful line. There are four huge red satin roses, placed diagonally, from just above the waist to the hips.

Horowitz and Zimbalist Top Sunday Concerts

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Convention would seem to be the last thing in Vladimir Horowitz' mind when he is making up a program. The young wizard of the piano keyboard gave a recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, playing a number of works that only a few other pianists care to play, some that none have taken up yet, and only a few that are in general circulation.

By so doing he is making a highly individual place for himself. Only those with equal magic of touch and technic ought to take up the Paganini-Brahms Variations, for instance, and he seems to have the same kind of insight into the Chopin Barcarolle. They are for the few. Others may play the Chopin Etude in F out of opus 10, but one seldom hears it glitter as it did yesterday. Horowitz thunders and whispers on the keyboard with equal facility, and he has a marvelous way of doing many things in half shades. It is one of his wonders, one of the things that make him one of the world's greatest pianists.

Efrem Zimbalist played a recital of Bach and Paganini at the Studebaker, nothing else, and made it one of the season's most interesting exhibitions of the violin. The two need strongly contrasting styles, and he had them both at command. He is a brilliant virtuoso when he cares to be; he is also a sympathetic, intelligent interpreter, and this he cares to be all the time. It was a continuous display of fine tone and fine feeling.

Hans Hess, one of the best known of the Chicago cellists, gave his annual recital yesterday at the Playhouse. One of his great services therein was the proof that there is plenty of good and little known music for the cello if the artist cares to look for it. Another was to furnish a well written set of annotations for the program. Mr. Hess is a player of much ability, a facile executant and a musician of penetrating knowledge. His acquaintance with modern composers, Cassado, Nadia Boulanger, Hindemith, and the rest would surprise those who believe by the example of other cellists that only classical composers ever wrote for the instrument.

Frank Teurfs, a young baritone of promise, gave a song recital at the Civic theater yesterday afternon. He has an excellent vocal endowment by nature most of whose phases he is acquiring the mastery. He sings intelligently and pronounces words clearly. All of which is a good start in the direction of artistic singing.

Two audiences uncommonly close to the capacity dimensions of the Civic Opera house, "The Magic Flute" in the afternoon and "La Traviata" in the evening, proved that the opera company is living up to advance notices as a dispenser of cheering entertainment. Claudia Muzio appeared as Violetta in "La Traviata," a role in which she is at her most persuasive as singer and actress, and to which she gave new brilliancy on this occasion. Charles Hackett made his first appearance of the season as the younger Germont, an appearance too long delayed in the light of the splendid singing and fine manner that he exhibited. John Charles Thomas as Father Germont completely stopped the show with his second act aria.

Announced as the winner of the contest promoted by the Chicago Symphony orchestra for young Chicago pianists, Ralph Dobbs will be rewarded under its terms by appearing as soloist in the programs of Dec. 31 and Jan. 1.

29 GROUPS SELECT CHICAGO IN 1933 AS CONVENTION CITY

With the open of the Century of Progress exposition still nearly two years distant, Chicago already has twenty-nine conventions booked for the 1933 fair period. The Association of Commerce so announced yesterday. In addition, about 300 organizations are "practically committed" to meet in the city during the fair.

The groups already signed up have total memberships of 514,885. The Association of Commerce, which is conducting the convention negotiations, expects that such gatherings will bring several million visitors to Chicago while the fair is going on, in addition to the individual visitors to the exposition.

Among the groups which had agreed definitely to hold their conventions in the city in 1933 are the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Chemical society, American Institute of Banking, American Library association.

Methodist Social Union's Banquet Set for Dec. 8

Announcement has just been made of the annual fall banquet of the Chicago Methodist social union to be held Tuesday, Dec. 8, in the Bal Tabarin - Hotel Sherman. Dr. Ralph Sockman of New York, president of Greater New York Federation of Churches and pastor of one of New York's largest Methodist churches, will speak on "Mastering the Inevitables."

MRS. L. S. INGEMAN

The Chicago Methodist Social union was founded in 1879 and has been holding an annual banquet since that date. Bishop Edwin Hold Hughes says "the union is the only semi-annual social opportunity for Chicago Methodism." Mrs. L. S. Ingeman is the wife of the president of the union.

Doris Tells This Wife to Forget Her Woes; They're Small

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They've been married six years. Her husband's business takes him away from home quite often. She claims not to be a "nagger" nor lacking in wifely sympathy. She'll take advice, or a scolding, or whatever is coming to her after presenting her case here.

"I know for a fact," she tells, "that there are times when my husband can take me on his business trips with him, because he is in business for himself. Therefore, there are no 'bosses' to object. I didn't mind being left home alone when we had our apartment. But we had to close it and go into an hotel.

"Do you think it is fair of him to go away and leave me behind alone? I can't make friends easily." [And so on.] Signed, Mrs. J."

A woman who never has been identified with business [and some who have been so identified] cannot fully realize the disadvantage of having some one tag along where business has to be transacted. At no time does the old adage about "who travels fastest travels alone" apply so well as to the man bent on getting new customers.

If he has to be thinking of the woman he brings along with him, and the type of woman is the sort who always expects to be thought of, it does handicap him. He has to think of her for lunch, for dinner, when perhaps it would be to his better business advantage to dine with some one else, or even to be alone and and plane things out.

The smart wife, under current business conditions, would content herself with remaining behind and saving the money that an added traveling companion always requires. That's exactly where she could be an active party to her man's success. It does cost more, much more, for two people to travel than one, no matter how economically it is worked out.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I love goes to places with me, but when in a crowd she pays little attention to me. Does she care? AL."

It's to be expected that she will spend some time with others when in a crowd.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This romantic model in princess type gives the figure a long, slim line. It is beautiful in black transparent velvet, also in crêpe marcoain, Canton crêpe and crêpe satin. The peplum flounces are set on in apron styling, bowed at the back, while the neckline lace frill is lovely for those who dislike the barrenness of collarless models.

The pattern, 3442, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of lace frilling.

Impossible With Ordinary Brushing

Don't take anybody's word for it. Prove to yourself that it is now easy to remove yellow and stain as well as the causes of decay and clean teeth whiter—3 shades whiter in 3 days! Start using this new scientific technique. A half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, twice a day. You'll see a marked change overnight.

When Kolynos enters the mouth it instantly becomes a refreshing FOAM. This FOAM does the work. First it removes yellow and stain and destroys the millions of mouth-germs—190 million in 15 seconds—that cause most tooth and gum troubles. It stimulates the gums and purifies the mouth. Then it CLEANS TEETH RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL, NATURAL WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY. No ordinary brushing can make teeth so white. No mouthwash can give the mouth a cleaner taste.

Why have dull, yellow teeth? Clean them sparkling white and keep them sound this way. Start using the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Buy a tube of KOLYNOS DENTAL CREAM.

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The Chicago Bears' string of victories was halted here this afternoon by the second place Portsmouth Spartans. A place kick by Glenn Presnell decided the game, 3 to 0, and permitted Portsmouth to avenge the defeat suffered at the hands of the Bears earlier this season.

Portsmouth's victory gives the Spartans undisputed possession of second place in the National Professional Football league and a mathematical chance of at least tying the league leading Green Bay Packers for its championship when they meet here Dec. 12.

Portsmouth has not been defeated in any home game this season.

A crowd of 9,000 sat through today's game, which was marred at the opening by a drizzling rain. Skies cleared before the first quarter ended, however. Portsmouth tossed away a chance to score in the opening period after McKallip blocked a punt by Lisnenich on Chicago's 35 yard line and picked up ten more on a pass from Clark.

The Bear line tightened here, and Presnell dropped back to the 17 yard line, from where he split the uprights with the deciding field goal. Clark held the ball.

Grange's fumble came when he was trying to circle Portsmouth's left end. Grange was a marked man during the entire game and failed to get loose a single time. Nesbit, Molesworth, Lisnenich, and Franklin were the Bears' best ground gainers. The Bears plowed 135 yards from scrimmage to 167 for the Spartans and made six first downs to the Spartan's 13.

Bears Reach 8 Yard Line.

Portsmouth's offensive evolved around the generalship and passing of Dutch Clark, seven out of 12 of Portsmouth's aerials being good for a total of 43 yards. In the fourth period Portsmouth marched 80 yards to the Bears' 10 yard line, but lost the ball on downs.

Chicago outplayed Portsmouth in only one quarter, the third, but the Spartan line rallied and held in the pinches. On one march the Bears got as far as Portsmouth's eight yard line, principally on runs by Nesbit, Franklin, and Molesworth, and a pass Walquist to Johnson from the Spartan 18 yard line. But Portsmouth's line held again, and Walquist's pass over the goal line was incomplete by inches.

The Bears never threatened again, while the Spartans made three determined sallies deep in Bear territory in the final period.

W. COOK LEADS ROUT; SCORES THREE GOALS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Rangers last night took our Blackhawks on a merry sleighride during the course of the hockey game at the Chicago Stadium. After the frolic it was found the Hawks had suffered a 5 to 0 licking in the hockey phase of the evening's jollity. The last three goals were scored by Bill Cook.

The Rangers, in the sleighride spectacle, were faster than Santa Claus' reindeers, a circumstance which apparently caused the Hawks great mental anguish and a degree of confusion, circumstances which kept them at a distinct disadvantage practically every minute of the evening.

This, of course, made the 13,000 faithful fans very unhappy. The Ranger scored two goals in the first period, two more in the second, and one in the closing seconds of the final period.

Art Somers, former Hawk, had a part in the first New York run, the one that was enough to win. Art joined with Cecil Dillon in a dash down the ice, a maneuver which produced when Art passed to Cecil for a shot that was like taking pennies from a blind man.

Explanations Are Scarce.

The remaining goals had either Bill Cook, Frank Boucher, or both mixed up in their execution. Boucher scored No. 3 on an assist from Brennan; Bill Cook made the next one unassisted; the fourth and fifth were made by Bill Cook on passes from Boucher.

The beating was the worst the Hawks have taken at home in many months, and habitual observers could not recall another instance of the Hawks appearing so hopelessly outclassed as they were throughout all of last night's engagement. No explanation was given for the foldup of the Chicago entry. The Rangers have been going great this year, but the Hawks were able to hold them to a 1 to 1 tie in New York as recently as last Tuesday.

The world champion Canadiens, who have been having troubles of their own this season, will afford the Hawks a chance to snap out of it at the Stadium next Wednesday night.

There was no time in the first period that the Rangers weren't vastly superior to the Hawks in every department of the game, and their two goals were made with such grace and ease that the home boys seemed just a little dazed by all the hockey players who were whirling about them.

Ching Johnson Hurt.

The first New York goal was hung up in four minutes even. Dillon and Somers got away from the Hawks assembled on the Ranger half of the ice and discovering Abel alone with Gardiner in the Chicago defense zone, cut a few playful capers to circle big Taffy.

As the pair born down on him, Gardiner flopped to the ice in front of the cage, whereupon Somers rapidly passed to a vantage point four feet in front of the net and Dillon lofted a nice toss over Chuck's tosse for counter.

There was plenty of hard skating after No. 1 goal but the gross of it all for 10 minutes was a bad cut which Ching Johnson got from Miller's stick—an obvious accident.

Near the end of the fifteenth minute, the puck popped out of a general melee around the Hawk cage. All at once F. Boucher and Brennan found themselves in front of an unprotected net, Gardiner being down on his tights. They seemed to debate as to whom was to have the honor of the goal, but in the end, Boucher was granted the simple privilege of gently flipping the rubber into the open cage.

Cook Scores Twice.

The Hawks were a bit more sprightly and alert in the second period, but not skilled enough to prevent the Rangers from registering two more goals, both by Bill Cook.

The Hawks, especially Couture, Romnes and Gottselig, had developed some liveliness after the period had reached the half way point, and when they became too persistent Bill Cook took charge of the puck and banged it through for an unassisted goal.

Near the close of the second session a five man Hawk offensive kept the rubber in the vicinity of Goalie Roach's shins for quite a spell, but

Detroit Beats Canadiens, 3-2, in Overtime

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Detroit defeated the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 2, in a National league hockey game here tonight. Ebbie Goodfellow scored the winning point in the overtime period.

The first period was a delirious session in which Morenz and Rivers collaborated to score for the Canadiens. Detroit's score was on a lone excursion by Larry Aurie. The second period was scoreless.

A moment's inattention on the part of the Montreal defense gave Sorrell opportunity to whisk the puck into an open net on a pass from Couper to start Detroit off after ten seconds of play in the third period.

Then Montreal sent four and then five men into enemy ice in an attempt to score by sheer speed. The tying goal came, however, after Howie Morenz, back at center, passed to Mondou to score, with less than a minute to play.

FOUR TEAMS TIED FOR THE LEAD IN 6 DAY BIKE RACE

New York, Nov. 30 [Monday].—(AP)—New York's 55th international six day bicycle race got off to an exciting start tonight and failed to produce a real leader as first place shifted rapidly from one to another of the 15 competing teams during the early hours of the grind.

At midnight, three hours after the opening gun was fired, four teams were tied for first place, with Reggie McNamara of Newark, N. J., and Learco Guerra of Italy ahead in points. Proceedings slowed down a trifle just after midnight when Tony Beckman took a sharp spill, but the hard riding picked up when he recovered unhurt. In the first three hours 110 laps were stolen.

Independent Grid Player Breaks Neck; May Die

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 29—(AP)—John McCalla Boulware, 25, Fredericksburg High school star athlete of several years ago, suffered injuries expected to prove fatal in a football game here today. Boulware, playing with the Fredericksburg Rebels in a game against the Washington Stantons, broke his neck when he slipped and fell while running interference for a backfield mate. Two opposing players fell upon him.

Minor Leagues Seek Cure at West Baden

West Baden, Ind., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Minor league baseball, suffering acutely from that serious disease known as poor gate receipts and top-heavy overhead, came to this American spa for health treatments today.

Every important figure in the national pastime from Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis down to a financially harassed Class D league club owner came for the consultation and all of them agree that a serious crisis has arrived.

Salary Cuts Hinted.

Drastic economy, through sharp reduction in expenses and players' salaries and more compact leagues was the suggested remedy on almost everyone's tongue, while a few of the smaller league club owners were reported to be on the verge of giving up their baseball ships and turning to other business to make a living.

No meetings were held today, although the early arrivals went into several informal huddles.

A few representatives of the Major leagues dropped in to begin their search for talent and to exchange repartee. The Chicago club delegation was the first to arrive, but all the others, almost 50 American and National league owners, managers, secretaries, players and scouts, were to come tomorrow when the minors open their first meetings.

Western League May Reduce.

One apparently well founded report circulating the hotel lobbies tonight was that the Western league was ready to be overhauled so as to make it a more compact circuit. The report was that Denver and Pueblo and possibly another club would drop out, with their franchises going to Sioux City, Ia., Lincoln, Neb., and possibly Council Bluffs, Ia. Some of the league leaders were in favor of making it a six club circuit, with the two western teams, Denver and Pueblo, out because of tremendous traveling expenses.

The Mississippi Valley league, once one of the most independent minor league organizations in baseball, also was reported to be seeking alliances so that it might weather the financial depression. Three of the clubs were said to be in deep financial straits and absolutely dependent on alliances to continue next year.

JACK MANDERS LEADS BIG TEN BACKS IN SCORING

Scoring a touchdown in Minnesota's surprising 19 to 7 triumph over Ohio State Saturday, Jack Manders, Big Gopher full back, became the individual scoring leader of the Big Ten conference games only, with 39 points. Another full back, Northwestern's sophomore star, Ollie Olson, finished second with 31 points. The leaders:

Manders, Minn.	5	9	0	39
Olson, N. U.	4	4	3	31
Rentner, N. U.	5	0	0	30

Argentine Sprinter Ties Record for 100 Meter Dash

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Juan Pina, Argentina's leading sprinter, today equaled the world's record of 10 4-10 seconds for the 100 meter dash. The mark is held by Charley Paddock and Eddie Tolan of the United States.

WHICH TEAM IS BEST OF BIG 10'S 3 CHAMPIONS?

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Army's victory over Notre Dame Saturday, 12 to 0, ranks as the outstanding surprise of the week's list of games. By that triumph, the first since 1927, the Cadets finished the rout of the Irish begun by Southern California. But even this can be matched in the finals of the Western conference.

Northwestern, undefeated in five successive games although tied by Notre Dame, considered fortunate when its two rivals, Purdue and Michigan, met early season reverses, yielded to the Boilermakers, 7 to 0, and thereby permitted its undisputed leadership to disintegrate into a three way tie. By its victory Purdue not only shares the championship with Northwestern and Michigan, but now ranks as the outstanding eleven in the middle west.

Loses to Wisconsin.

Purdue lost one game, a defeat by Wisconsin, 21 to 14. Purdue has won eight games [not including the second portion of the opening day doubleheader]. It has defeated Carnegie Tech and Centenary in intersectional competition. And Purdue has beaten Indiana, Iowa, Chicago, Illinois and Northwestern, one of the teams which shares the Big Ten title.

Northwestern's schedule, which included more difficult competition, now is concluded at seven victories, one defeat, and one tie. Michigan, the other Big Ten leader also has won seven games, lost to Ohio State and been tied by Michigan State. But the fact that the Wolverines achieved its portion of the title by whipping Wisconsin, 16 to 0, and profited most by Purdue's victory, will detract from the Wolverine claim to the championship.

Earn $154,000 for Charity.

The Western conference charity games, proposed and scheduled by the faculty rulers of the Big Ten, brought a contribution of $154,000 to the governors' committees for unemployment relief in the seven states in the conference. This includes the Thanksgiving day tournament in which Indiana, Iowa, Chicago, and Illinois participated. Northwestern, which placed its undisputed title at stake to bring in nearly half of this sum, may find solace therein.

Ohio State might have obtained a tie for top ranking, but it was not equal to the task of whipping Minnesota. The Gophers, with Jack Manders and Pete Sommers leading the offense, won from the Buckeyes, 19 to 7. Thus Ohio State finished with three defeats, two by Big Ten foes and the other by Vanderbilt. Minnesota also lost three games, to Northwestern, Michigan, and Stanford. But Minnesota, playing one less Big Ten game, can only show three victories as compared to four for Ohio State.

Purdue Stops N. U. Attack.

Perhaps Northwestern last Saturday was not the same team which tied Notre Dame and later came from behind to whip Minnesota. In any event, it is impossible to detract from Purdue's determined resistance which stopped the Wildcats when they had a first down on the two yard line in the second period. Nor can Purdue's 30 yard march for the winning touchdown be overlooked. That drive, a forward pass for 19 yards and an eleven yard run by Jim Purvis, was the margin which separated Northwestern from complete possession of the title.

Reams probably will be written about Notre Dame and its collapse before the Army. It will be difficult to explain why the Army, twice defeated and once tied, held the Irish scoreless. But the best solution is that Notre Dame met a team keyed to top form, a team which last Saturday was a better football team than Notre Dame. Thus the inevitable happened. And Notre Dame, heralded as one of the greatest of offensive machines, finishes 1931 with six victories in nine games.

Bonesetter Reese, Famous as 'Miracle' Healer, Dies

Youngstown, O., Nov. 29.—(AP)—John D. [Bonsetter] Reese, America's "miracle man," whose strong hands have brought health and happiness to millionaires and paupers, died suddenly tonight of a heart attack. He was 76 years old.

His death came quietly at 5:45 p. m. after a week's illness, and removed one of the last great healers whose only medicine lies in skillful hands and knowledge of the human bone structure.

His fame grew and when he came to the United States in 1887 to work first as a laborer in Pittsburgh rolling mills and later in Youngstown, his gifts gradually took him from the steel pits to the healer's chair.

Accident Starts Cancer.

For many years he was bitterly opposed by members of the medical profession, but by 1900 his reputation had grown so great the Ohio legislature passed a special act enabling him to practice the profession of "bonesetter."

He was born in Wales May 5, 1855. When he was 10 he went to work in steel mills and a year later went to Rhymey in Monmouthshire, England, to work in the rolling mills. Financial depression sent him to the United States in 1877, where he continued his work in Pittsburgh and Youngstown.

In 1899 while working in a rolling mill here, Reese launched his career quite by accident. A fellow worker fractured his leg. Reese, working nearby set the break so skillfully that the man was able to return to work. It soon became known that Reese was a "miracle man."

Reese had no set fees. He never asked any. He received from those he healed what they felt they could pay.

Repairs Nelson's Hands.

After Battling Nelson's fight with Frank Whitney in Atlanta both the fighter's hands were broken. He came to see the bonesetter, who manipulated the swollen hands.

Among the noted patients who found their way to his unpretentious offices were David Lloyd George, Gene Tunney, Ty Cobb, Will Rogers and Fred Stone.

He had a deep interest in sports and the circus. Circus day in Youngstown only spelled added work for the "bonesetter," and sometimes as many as three score performers came to his office for treatment.

He was the favorite of prize fighters and professional baseball players as well as circus folks. Hardly a baseball game, a prize fight or a circus did he attend, without some one of the players or performers pausing to greet him as a friend.

SAN FRANCISCO ELEVEN SWAMPS DE PAUL, 38 TO 7

90 Yard Pass Play Brings Chicagoans' Score.

San Francisco, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A mighty gray fog, representing San Francisco university, today swept De Paul university of Chicago to its second defeat in as many starts on its present western trip, 38 to 7, as both elevens ended play for the season.

Led by Captain Bob Kleckner, who smashed the Blue Demon's line almost at will to score three of San Francisco's touchdowns, the far westerners were never in danger.

Takes Early Lead.

Getting away to a lead in the first quarter they were never headed, adding to a topheavy score by a final splurge in the last quarter. But the stouthearted Chicagoans fought them every foot of the way, never once giving up hope and never once faltering in the will to win.

The huge Kleckner plunged over for the first score of the game in the opening quarter, less than one minute after play began. The crowd of 25,000 cried for more and the Gray Fog started another march which did not let up until Warford cut through from the De Paul ten-yard stripe, following a fumble and two completed passes.

Demons Go 90 Yards on Pass.

De Paul's only score came near the close of the first half when Mat Steffen threw a 40-yard pass from his goal line to Jim Doody, who raced 50 yards to San Francisco's ten-yard line before being brought down. On the next play Steffen circled left end for the touchdown. Lineup:

Short Hunting Season Great for the Ducks

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois waterfowl hunters will enter their blinds for the last time today. The duck and goose hunting season ends this afternoon at sundown. The short 1931 open season was officially set to close on Nov. 30 by government order, and December, usually the most active month on the duck hunters' calendar, is now a part of the closed season.

Several weeks ago a number of Illinois hunters started a movement to extend the season for two weeks. But the department of agriculture in Washington said no to this proposal. The contention was that the warm summer weather which prevailed in Illinois up to the last few days of the season had provided a mighty slim hunting season, and Illinois sportsmen had been given a short schedule.

There isn't any doubt but what there has been plenty of conservation in the duck hunting business this year. Northern states which were allotted the month of October had practically no shooting because the warm weather kept great flocks of birds in the north. When this weather continued through most of November, Illinois hunters found that sitting in a blind was for the most part a delightful way to rest, because during the hot days the crafty mallards and pintails wisely sat on protected waters and did not fly very much.

The good old wintry November days with howling winds and snow in the air, the kind of weather that causes ducks to "work," were lacking, and this situation was not conducive to snappy duck hunting. Another factor in the conservation program can be found in the fact that this was a year for many hunters to put their cards on the spare cash that is reserved for a two or three day duck hunt.

Southern Season Ends Dec. 15.

The southern states are not going to have much time for the sport of waterfowl hunting. They have to quit on Dec. 15. Arkansas, the scene of last year's prize duck killing scandal and the state where the mallards feast on the rice fields, did not start waterfowl hunting until Nov. 16 and must close the middle of December. Louisiana, the winter resort for the Canadian geese and the beautiful snow and blue geese, also must wind up its 1931 waterfowl season on Dec. 15.

OLYMPIC SKATERS HOLD LAST DRILL ON STADIUM ICE

Six Chicago boys who are members of the 1932 American Olympic ice skating team will make their final workout today at the Chicago stadium before leaving for the east to join the team.

They are Eddie Murphy, Eddie Schroeder, Al Kucera, O'Neil Farrell, Bill Minster, and Wallace Mitchell. They will have two workouts, one in the forenoon and the other in the evening. They will be joined in the latter session by fellow club members.

Brouillard and Lawless Head Week's Fights

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—What honors there are in a dull boxing program this week go to Boston, Cleveland, Oakland, Calif., and Philadelphia. At Boston Wednesday night, Lou Brouillard of Worcester, newly crowned welterweight champion, will meet Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., in a ten-round non-title bout.

Johnny Risko of Cleveland and K. O. Christner, Akron, renew their heavyweight feud at Cleveland tomorrow night. They've split even in two bouts thus far. At Oakland Wednesday the entertainment will come from Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, recognized in some states as flyweight champion, and Speedy Dado, Philippines.

At Philadelphia tomorrow night, Bennie Bass, former junior lightweight champion, will make his first start since he lost the title to Kid Chocolate. Bass will meet Jackie Pilkington, New York veteran, in a ten-rounder. Chocolate, in the meantime, will face Maxie Leiner of New York in the ten-round feature at the St. Nicholas arena here tomorrow night. Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Cleveland, Johnny Risko, Cleveland, vs. K. O. Christner, Akron, heavyweights, 10; at New York, Kid Chocolate, Cuba, vs. Maxie Leiner, New York, lightweights, 10; Enzo Fiermonte, Italy, vs. Joe Celucci, New York, middleweights, 8; Vidal Gregorio, Spain, vs. D. Sario Radam, Philippines, featherweights, 8; and Joe Barbara, New York, vs. Mel Aragon, Chile, lightweights, 8; at Philadelphia, Benny Bass, Philadelphia, vs. Jackie Pilkington, New York, lightweights, 10; at Boston, Tony Shucco, Boston, vs. Al Friedman, Boston, heavyweights, Billy Hood, England, vs. Leo Gerrity, Waterbury, Conn., middleweights, each 10.

TUESDAY—At Indianapolis, Jack Redman, South Bend, Ind., vs. Batiling Bozo, Birmingham, Ala., heavyweights, 10; at Los Angeles, Bobby Peacock, Los Angeles, vs. Hector McDonald, Vancouver, B. C., lightweights, 10 [state title]; at Fresno, Gabby Bardad, Panama, vs. Manuel Victorio, Los Angeles, welterweights, 10; at Denver, Pal McCarthy, Boston, vs. George Manley, Denver, light heavyweights, 10.

Marriner Calls Off White City Bout; Arm Hurt

Mique Malloy's plans to have Les Marriner fight next Monday at White City went awry with Marriner's announcement yesterday that he would be unable to box for at least ten days. An infection in his left arm and a bad cold will keep him out of the ring.

King Lavinsky's understudy, Jackie Schwartz, and Walter Jerz, Lawndale middleweight, meet Friday at Merry Garden arena, Sheffield and Belmont avenues, in one of the outstanding bouts of this week's boxing card. Schwartz defeated Jerz last Friday.

Willie Oster of Boston and Roy Williams of Chicago are the latest entrants in the National Boxing association's light heavyweight tournament, which starts at Chicago Stadium on Dec. 11.

Haakon Hansen of Norway, who is training here, has been matched with Harry Slaughter by Promoter Bud Taylor at Terre Haute, Ind., Dec. 10. Slaughter boasts a one round knockout of Gary Leach.

Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg middleweight, has agreed to box for Mique Malloy at the White City arena next Monday night. His opponent will be selected from one of the leading middleweights in the midwest territory.

Cliff Dunnette, Davenport, Ia., lightweight, will meet Donald Coker in the main event of Promoter Charley Levine's amateur boxing show Wednesday night at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. Coker is handled by West Side Jack O'Keefe, Tuffy Griffiths' manager.

The double windup for the weekly boxing show at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace, tonight will bring together Hank Kastman of Logan Square and Robbin Shrosbree, and Charley Nelgoe of Milwaukee and Oscie Jefferson. A special match has also been closed between George Shrosbree and Nate Hassen.

Mills Lose in Memphis Mud, 8 to 0

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The Memphis Tigers defeated the Mills team of Chicago, 8 to 0, today, and gained some measure of revenge for a scoreless tie with Mills played two weeks ago, the only blot on the Tigers' otherwise victorious record. The game was played in the mud.

The Tigers got two breaks. They converted one into a safety and one into a touchdown.

The safety can be charged to a muddy ball. Larry Foley, called out of the line to punt from behind his own goal line in the second quarter, could not hold the ball and Tiger linemen broke through to smother him.

The touchdown was mainly the result of a pass. Ted Connelly of the Mills let one of Garland Beavers' punts slip from his hands in the third quarter and Whitey Shelton slid into the ball on the Mills' 14-yard line. The Tigers couldn't gain on three running plays, so Beavers tried to pass. Larry Marks got his hands on the ball and held it, running to the three-yard line. Beavers went sliding over his own right tackle for the touchdown. Beavers' attempted placement was blocked.

Nineteen fumbles were made, divided as follows: Twelve by the Tigers, of which seven were recovered by Mills; seven by Mills, with the Tigers recovering six of them. Lineup:

JOLIET SECTION NAMES CATHOLIC CHAMPS TONIGHT

Winners Enter Finals at Stadium Friday.

The wind-up of the qualifying bouts in the Catholic Youth organization's amateur boxing tournament will be held tonight. The finals will be fought in the Chicago stadium Friday.

Twenty-four finalists already have been chosen as representatives of the north, south and west district teams, and south county sections will select theirs at the De La Salle gymnasium at Joliet tonight. Twenty-nine boys are on tonight's card.

Sylvano in Finals.

Among the outstanding contenders are James Smith, a lightweight from St. Patrick's parish in Joliet; and Allen and Harold McConnell of Ascension parish in Harvey. The McConnell brothers appear in the 126 and 135-pound classes, respectively, and have weathered several qualifying preliminaries. Another Joliet youth rated as a potential finalist is Joseph Roman, 126-pounder who has three knockouts to his credit.

Scotty Sylvano, inter-city Golden Gloves champion, representing St. Leonard's parish of Berwyn, and fighting at 147 pounds, will be one of the outstanding team members, representing the west district at the stadium finals. Scotty got a decision over James Fontana in the third round.

Anderson Is Favorite.

Another west district team member who will be a stadium contender in the 118-pound division is John Anderson of Holy Trinity parish, Westmont, Ill. In Friday night's quarter-finals at St. Mel's, he knocked out Johnny Carroll in the second round and wound up the evening by getting a fourth round decision over William Lee, A. E. F. champion of the 33d division. Anderson is rated as one of the foremost in the 118-pound class, although he is comparatively a newcomer.

This same district will send Johnny Persche of St. Leonard's parish, Berwyn, to the stadium in the 175-pound class. The boys who have qualified to date for the finals in the north, west and south districts are as follows:

BUCKNELL ONLY UNBEATEN GRID TEAM IN EAST

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The best eastern record during the past season was compiled by Bucknell university, which won six games and tied three to wind up its campaign as the only undefeated eleven in the section.

Pittsburgh and Colgate, winning eight games out of nine, hung up the next best record, while Temple won eight games, tied one and lost one.

Davis and Elkins was far ahead in scoring with 345 points in 11 games. Pitt ranked second with 220, Army third with 279, Springfield fourth with 251, and Massachusetts State and West Liberty fifth with 250. Hobart gave up 276 points to nine rivals to lead all others for that doubtful honor.

APPROVE TRYOUT SITES FOR 1932 OLYMPIC GAMES

Harmony Rules Meeting in New York.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Final plans for the participation of the United States in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles, including the dates and sites for final tryouts in 25 of the 27 events on the program were completed here today by the American Olympic committee.

Eighty delegates from every section of the country attended. Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the Olympic committee, presided. The meeting was marked by a distinct note of optimism and absence of friction.

Promise Financial Support.

George W. Graves, Olympic treasurer from Detroit, reported that in the last two months the 60 sports governing bodies of the country have organized enthusiastically to raise funds to assure proper representation of the United States in the games, which will be held over a 16 day period from July 30 to Aug. 14.

The Olympic winter games, comprising seven sports, will be held at Lake Placid Feb. 4 to 12.

The track and field program for men, it was announced, will embrace 21 individual events and the 400 and 1,600 meter relays. Preliminary or sectional tryouts for this country's team will be held as follows: Eastern, at Harvard university, Cambridge, Mass.; midwestern, at University of Iowa; Pacific northwest, Pacific southwest, Rocky mountain, central, southeastern, and southern district tryouts at sites yet to be selected. The army and navy championships also will be regarded as a preliminary tryouts. Open tryouts will be conducted at Chicago for the east and at Long Beach, Cal., for the west. Final tryouts will be held at Stanford stadium, Palo Alto, Cal., July 15 and 16. A fund of $7,000 has been appropriated to cover the expenses of the athletes qualifying in the semi-final tryouts at Chicago and Palo Alto.

Robertson Again Named Coach.

Lawson Robertson, veteran coach of America's Olympic athletes, again was named head coach of this country's forces, with Joseph T. England as manager. The committee did not recommend any assistant coaches.

Three official marathon tryouts were designated, at Boston, Baltimore, and Los Angeles, the three winners to make up the team.

Final tryouts in the women's track and field program will be held in connection with the National A. A. U. championships at Chicago, July 15 and 16, with the team not to exceed 18 members. George Vreeland of Newark, N. J., was named coach of the women's team, with Mrs. Allen of Pasadena assistant coach and chaperon.

CARPENTERS TIE OLYMPIC SOCCER TEAM, 2 TO 2

The Carpenter and Olympia soccer teams fought to a 2 to 2 tie in the second qualifying round of the national cup competition at Olympia Park yesterday. All of the goals were made in the first half. Darkness prevented extra periods.

In an interleague exhibition match the Norwegian-Americans defeated Sparta, 3 to 2, at Sparta field. Ike Walker led the Norsemen to victory, although he didn't score any of the goals.

Blackhawks Whipped by Rangers, 5-0

again the Rangers tired of the applause for the Hawks and with a bit of fancy passing, which utterly deceived our earnest but confused heroes, rammed home Goal No. 4 in the last minute of the period. Bill Cook did it in 19:10 on a pass from F. Boucher.

Rangers on Defense.

The Rangers were content to play a defensive game until Murdoch drew a penalty when the Hawks sent five men down the ice, but were unable to score. Soon after Murdoch returned, Brennan drew a penalty and again five Hawks ganged on the Ranger goal and were only stopped when Roach trapped the puck in front of the net.

The Hawk offense ended temporarily when Ripley drew a penalty for tripping and the Rangers attacked the Hawk goal. Before Ripley returned to the ice, Adams drew a penalty leaving the Hawks two men short.

One More Score.

The Rangers were unable to score before the Hawks regained full strength and the Hawks again took the offensive. First Romnes, then Gottselig took the puck down to the Ranger net, but Roach was equal to the occasion and stopped their shots.

With three minutes to go, Coach Iverson sent in five forwards who kept the play in Ranger territory, until with one minute to go, Frank Boucher suddenly took a free puck and with the Hawk defense zone undefended, passed to Will Cook, who scored goal No. 5 for the Rangers. The game ended soon after the face-off.

CHOCOLATE TO FIGHT SINGER AT GARDEN DEC. 11

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Jimmy Johnston, in charge of boxing at Madison Square Garden, today announced that Kid Chocolate, Cuban lightweight, and Al Singer, former champion of the 135 pounders, had come to terms for a bout in the Garden Dec. 11.

Formal signing for the bout will take place tomorrow when it also will be decided whether the match shall be 12 or 15 rounds.

Which Team Is Best of Big 10 Champions?

its place at the wailing wall. The unbeaten Mustangs' record was smeared in the mud Saturday when Texas Christian held them to a scoreless tie. The no decision game, however, reserved first place in the southwestern conference exclusively for Southern Methodist. Texas Christian previously had been defeated and finished second. But S. M. U., which has a game with St. Mary's remaining on its schedule, yields to Tulane in the matter of consecutive victories.

Tulane won from Louisiana State university Saturday, 34 to 7. By that victory it has first place in the Southern conference, but more important, it now boasts of ten victories. Tulane is the only major eleven in the country undefeated and untied. While Tulane's schedule was sectional in scope, it defeated Vanderbilt and Georgia, the latter game being the only set back for the Southern Bulldogs. Tulane's record follows:

Tulane, 46; Spring Hill, 6.
Tulane, 19; Vanderbilt, 0.
Tulane, 33; Georgia Tech, 0.
Tulane, 50; Mississippi Aggies, 7.
Tulane, 27; Auburn, 0.
Tulane, 20; Georgia, 7.
Tulane, 40; Sewanee, 0.
Tulane, 34; L. S. U., 7.

Tulane plays Washington State at New Orleans next Saturday. If victorious it undoubtedly will oppose Southern California in the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena New Year's day.

Stanford Surprises Dartmouth.

Stanford, which heads the second division of Pacific coast teams, surprised the east and particularly Dartmouth Saturday by winning 32 to 6. A year ago on the coast Stanford won 14 to 7, but the consensus was Dartmouth would gain revenge. None suspected a victory for Stanford by such a decisive margin.

Detroit won its intersectional battle with Georgetown, 6 to 0. Yale overwhelmed Princeton, 51 to 14, for the most conclusive triumph in 55 years of competition between the universities. Temple romped over Missouri, 38 to 6, the second blow of the week to Big Six football, for Nebraska had been swamped Thanksgiving day by Pittsburgh, 40 to 0.

Sing Sing Back in Form; Beats Judge's Team, 18-6

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Without the aid of its far-famed star, Capt. Alabama Pitts, Sing Sing's varsity football team came back today. The big house eleven electrified its cheering section of 2,300 inmates by scoring a touchdown after a 36 yard pass and revived hopes of gridiron fame once more by defeating the Poughkeepsie All-Stars, 18 to 6.

The Poughkeepsie team confided it had been coached by a county judge, Judge J. Gordon Flannery, former Syracuse star. That was all that Sing Sing, smarting under the recent criticism of Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakeley, needed.

Jumbo Morano, its full back, threw a 36 yard pass to Quarter Back Prince, who carried the ball within two yards of the Poughkeepsie goal. Prince plunged the line a few seconds later for a touchdown, while the stands roared and the cheer leaders ran amuck. Joey Hayes, left half, added another six to the score soon afterward, battering through center on the fourth down with three to go.

Football was back to stay at Sing Sing. Although Fred Zimmer, the visiters' full back, made a 55 yard run for touchdown, Happy Nelson responded to the pleadings from the stands and plunged the line for the third touchdown.

Up Captures Los Angeles Purse at Agua Caliente

Agua Caliente, Mex., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Up brilliant three year old in the James N. The spectacular apprentice boy, Harry Mills gave Up a brilliant ride to win by half a length. The winner paid $3.60, $2.20 and $2.20 in the mutuels. The time was 1:27.

Notre Dame Is Overtrained Against Army

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Notre Dame was obviously overtrained for yesterday's game with Army, in which the Cadets won, 12 to 0, in the opinion of New York writers and football authorities who witnessed the contest.

The general opinion was that Notre Dame, like Northwestern, which lost to Purdue yesterday, pointed for their Oct. 10 game, came along too fast and was unable to maintain the terrific pace necessitated by its schedule. To substantiate this, the experts pointed out that the Irish were better in nearly all their early games than they were in the two previous seasons. They defeated Indiana 25 to 0, two touchdowns more than the 1929 national champions scored in the opener and as many as last year's team scored at the peak of its form.

They defeated Pittsburgh, whose record shows it to be the outstanding team in the east, by a comfortable margin, 25 to 12. They took Pennsylvania 49 to 0, a nine-point greater margin than in 1930, when the score was 40 to 20.

Their third game with Drake saw them pile up a 63 to 0 count, the worst in the history in this series. They defeated Carnegie Tech by a larger margin than in either of the last two seasons, 19 to 0.

But against Navy they started to slip. They played inspired ball against Southern California for three quarters and then cracked, to lose, 18 to 14, in the last period.

They were simply stale against Army and could not rise up to strike as they had all through the earlier part of the grueling season. It is evident to close observers that Army was fighting its heart out, keyed to the highest possible pitch, and that Notre Dame lacked the spark to set off its offense.

Purdue Returns Home with Its Share of Title

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Winners of a share of Big Ten championship honors by their 7 to 0 victory over Northwestern at Soldiers' field yesterday, the members of the Purdue football team were returned to Lafayette tonight to receive an enthusiastic welcome from the student body. Classwork will be resumed at the university tomorrow after a three days Thanksgiving vacation, the first in Purdue's history.

Tuesday evening the annual banquet in honor of the team will be held at the Memorial Union building at Purdue with the Kiwanis club of Lafayette as host again. Major and minor letters will be awarded and the most valuable player selected by members of the team.

The consensus of opinion is that the honor will go to either Capt. Ogie Miller, star center who repeatedly smothered Olson and Rentner of the Wildcat eleven in their attempts to crash the Purdue line; Moss, the end whose punting and other performances in the game were regarded as an important factor in the victory; Purvis, who made the only touchdown Saturday, or Hecker, whose 65 yard run after intercepting a pass made possible the touchdown.

WESTERN SKATING ASSOCIATION TO MEET TONIGHT

The Illinois-Western Skating Association will meet tonight at the Norwegian American A. A. clubhouse, 3435 Wabansia avenue, tonight to grant sanctions for a series of ice skating Derbies.

Last season the merged Illinois-Western body granted permits for 18 meets, 16 of which were completed.

Classes Today Instead of Grid Celebration.

Northwestern's football team, along with the rest of the student body, will march back to the classrooms today, terminating one of the most disappointing Thanksgiving vacations in the history of the school.

Where forty-eight hours ago the Wildcats were being acclaimed Big Ten champions and holding the spotlight as one of the few undefeated teams in the country, now they must be content to share a triple tie for the title along with Purdue and Michigan.

There'll Be Classes as Usual.

An ironical note crept into the scene on the Purple campus when the big victory celebration scheduled for today was abandoned, largely because nobody felt in the mood to make whoopee following Saturday's setback by Purdue. In the event of a victory over the Boilermakers it had been planned to dismiss classes for the day and spend the time in merrymaking.

The Wildcats had their heart set on an undisputed title, the first in the history of the school, and celebrating anything less than that, even though it be a tie appeared too anti-climactic for the student body.

Drop Rose Bowl Deal.

Athletic Director K. L. Wilson announced that all negotiations towards sending the football team to the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena had been abandoned. It was generally accepted in the Wildcat camp that the team would have made the trip had Purdue been defeated.

The Northwestern players are scheduled to attend several banquets in their honor this week. These affairs will be topped off by the annual football dinner given by the Northwestern club of Chicago at the Stevens hotel Saturday night. At that time the football captain for next year will be elected and letters and gold footballs awarded.

STOCK MARKET GAIN IS AWAITED IN GRAIN PITS

Seen as Only Hope for Price Advance.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders expressed the belief at the close of the week that there will be no decided and well held upturn until the stock market shows signs of ending its most drastic and long drawn out liquidating movement that the trade has known.

It will require serious damage to the Australian and Argentine wheat crop now being harvested and an export demand of unusual proportions that will absorb the surplus in all countries to bring outsiders and the trade in general into the market, with sufficient confidence to advance prices for grain and hold them at a level much above the present.

Traders have had a most unsatisfactory experience in wheat of late, with an advance on May wheat from 65¾c, starting Oct. 5, and ending four weeks later at 73c, followed by a decline in a little over two weeks to 64⅝c, a break of 13¼c from the top. At the close of the week May was 65⅝@65¾c. Net declines on wheat futures at Chicago for the week were 4⅝@7¼c, December being 52¾@53⅝c; March, 54¼c, and July, 54¼@54¾c. Winnipeg lost 4⅝@6¼c, May leading the break, with the close at 6c, and December, 57¼@57⅝c. Liverpool was off 3¼@8¾c, with May closing at 55¼c, and December, 52¾c.

All grains were under the pressure of liquidators, with corn off 4¼@4½c; oats, 2⅝@3½c, and rye, 7⅛@8¼c, compared with a week ago.

Trade Gets Farm Board Figures.

For more than a year wheat traders have waited for a showdown on the part of the Grain Stabilization corporation and the Farmers National company, which are backed by the federal farm board. Now that they have received the figures they are being considered both ways. Their holdings of cash wheat is 187,000,000 bu and of futures, 73,000,000 bu, most of the latter being held in Minneapolis.

The farm board has a good line of hedges against its cash wheat, but its holdings of 162,000,000 bu are not taken as seriously bearish by the trade as they had figured on there being around 190,000,000 bu. There are 344,000,000 bu in commercial stocks in the United States, and 23,000,000 bu of American wheat held in Canada, a total of 367,000,000 bu. The government's wheat is being disposed of at a good rate, with millers the best buyers. There is comparatively little free wheat to be had in the United States other than that held by the farm board interests. Wheat is being sold at good premiums as millers have been forced to go to the government for supplies, owing to a small movement from the country.

U. S. Holdings to Go.

It is believed by most people that the government held wheat will gradually be disposed of and that by July 1, 1932, its holdings will be very small. Its holdings of futures, had they been given out at the same time that the figures on the cash grain appeared, it is said, it would have made the trade feel very much easier. The main criticism of the farm board at present is that the Farmers National company with a capital of around $75,000 was able to borrow $10,000,000, as private interests have never been so fortunate.

Argentine's and Australia's harvest is under way, and southern hemisphere wheat is being offered at low prices in foreign markets, particularly Liverpool, which depressed the latter sharply, which, in turn, was reflected by the heavy decline in Chicago. A drastic break in foreign exchanges was also a depressing influence.

Russian news was given only a little attention during the week, while that from Argentina, especially where extreme high temperatures, injurious to the wheat crop in its present stage, had a strengthening influence on American markets at the close of the week.

The open interest in wheat at the close of 125,117,000 bu, compared with 128,416,000 bu a week ago. Sales for the week of 231,120,000 bu were cut down over 73,000,000 bu, compared

Luther Explains Germany's Position on Credit Payments

(Editor's Note: Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, was asked by the Associated Press to outline Germany's position regarding the forthcoming examination of her financial condition, particularly with regard to her capacity to pay reparations, by an advisory committee of the Bank for International Settlements. He replied with the following statement.)

BY DR. HANS LUTHER.

(Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 29.—The reichsbank's sale of gold and foreign bills during recent weeks has attracted unusual attention both in Germany and abroad.

The opinion is widespread that Germany, under the standstill agreement and in view of her active trade balance, ought even to be able to replenish her supply of gold and foreign exchange.

However, this so-called standstill agreement contains so many exceptions and gaps that the unfavorable development of gold and foreign exchange reserves of the reichsbank is in the largest measure explained by it.

Influence Exchange Balance.

Figures published some time ago by the reichsbank show that repayments of credits exercise a determining influence upon the foreign exchange balance. These repayments have amounted from July 21—the day when the standstill agreement became effective—until the middle of November to more than one billion reichsmarks.

[The reichsmark is equivalent to approximately 23.8 cents at the current rate of exchange, so that 1,000,000 marks represent about $236,000 and 1,000,000,000 marks are worth approximately $236,000,000.]

Of the reichsbank sale of foreign bills during the period from Sept. 1 to Nov. 15, totaling 1,920,000,000 reichsmarks [in round figures], only 900,000,000 were needed for trade in commodities, while 1,020,000,000 went into the movement of capital. Of these 1,020,000,000 reichsmarks, 720,000,000 constitute repayment of credit.

Without these repayments of credit, the reichsbank would have been able to show, instead of a loss of foreign exchange amounting to 510,000,000 reichsmarks, an increase of 210,000,000. This demonstrates clearly that Germany at present is going beyond her strength in her endeavor to do the utmost to fulfill her obligations in the way of debts and especially the obligations assumed in the standstill agreement.

Germany's good will alone can not solve the problem.

Flight of Capital.

As these figures hitherto for the most part have been unknown to the public, the false assumption has been made in some quarters that the unsatisfactory position of Germany's supply of foreign exchange is essentially influenced by a flight of capital and failure to surrender foreign exchange.

In opposing this view, I do not desire to place decisive weight upon the fact that government-controlled economy measures can never be 100 per cent successful. For such control must never advance to a point where it will hamper normal and healthy operations of trade in an unbearable manner.

Control of Exchange.

Approximately the following can be said as to the efficacy of control of foreign exchange in Germany:

If—which in itself is quite impossible—the excess of exports over imports during the period from Sept. 1 to Nov. 15 had in its entirety become converted into foreign exchange, even then such receipt of foreign exchange would not have been sufficient to cover payments on movements of capital totaling 1,020,000,000 reichsmarks.

For the excess of exports over imports would, in that hypothetical case, have amounted to about 920,000,000 reichsmarks [September and October together, 750,000,000, plus an estimated 170,000,000 for half of November]. Hence, even then the sum would still have fallen short by 100,000,000 marks.

No influx of foreign exchange, no matter how favorable, could therefore in the long run have made repayment of credits possible at the present pace.

ILLINOIS BANK IS GRANTED AID BY CREDIT POOL

Members of the loan committee of the Chicago district of the National Credit corporation held a meeting yesterday in the corporation's headquarters in the Federal Reserve bank. Officers of the committee are: Chairman, Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; vice chairman, James R. Leavell, president of the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, and secretary-treasurer, Clarence A. Beutel, president of the Phillips State Bank and Trust company.

News of the meeting became current downtown and led to rumors that the bankers were preparing to deal with some critical financial situation in Chicago. It transpired that the meeting was called to authorize a loan to a bank outside the Chicago metropolitan area.

"The rumor exemplifies the stories which become current with no apparent provocation," Mr. Traylor said. "Our meeting was held to assist a downstate bank. The bank needed help. We authorized the loan. That's all there was to it."

Reading Improvements Costing Line $4,000,000

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Immediate expenditure of more than $4,000,000 for equipment and construction work was announced today by Agnew T. Dice, president of the Reading railroad. The placing of contracts, he said, will provide employment for several thousand men during the winter. "The management believes this to be the opportune time to place large contracts as a stimulus to industry and to provide employment," Dice said.

New York Central October Net Income Is $1,868,245

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The New York Central Railroad company and its leased lines, in its report to the interstate commerce commission, showed for the month of October net operating income of $1,868,245, a decrease of $3,785,402 from the $5,653,647 reported for the corresponding month of 1930. Net operating income for the first ten months this year aggregated $26,515,974 against $52,293,392 for the corresponding period of 1930.

INVESTMENT BANKERS HAVE WORD OF PRAISE FOR UTILITY CONCERNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—No business has more successfully withstood the violence of the economic storm or deserves more confidence than that of the well managed electric light and power companies, in the opinion of the public service securities committee of the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

These companies, the committee says, are making a demonstration of values and earning capacity that deserves wide recognition. The explanation of this strength, it adds, lies in the diversity of the service and its essential character.

With the curtailment of output of the large producing plants, the wholesale business of the power companies has suffered proportionately, the committee finds, while, on the other hand, the demands of small commercial business have gained slightly and the demands of domestic consumption have steadily and persistently increased.

The result has been that total kilowatt hours sold the country over have fallen off but moderately and aggregate net earnings of operating properties not at all, the investment bankers say. It has meant in addition to persistent efforts to increase business, the most careful revision and curtailment of operating costs at every possible point. Though some of the properties have done better than others, the general proposition must remain unrefuted, the committee avers.

Municipalities Offer Only Three Major Bond Issues

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Only three bond offerings of major size are included in the $9,806,540 of new financing scheduled by 49 municipalities this week, the Daily Bond Buyer reported. The weekly average for the year to date is $32,929,004. Bergen county, N. J., has scheduled an offering of $1,296,000 4½ per cent public improvement bonds Monday. Fort Wayne, Ind., is offering $1,000,000 water works bonds on Tuesday, and Kearny, N. J., will receive bids Wednesday for a block of $1,500,000 water supply bonds.

SPURT REPORTED IN PRE-HOLIDAY PURCHASES HERE

An unexpected spurt in pre-holiday buying in the department stores, some significantly optimistic news from the printing industry and better buying of steel for future delivery marked the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

A sharp drop in the mercury almost coincident with the release by the banks of their annual Christmas saving hoards gave the retailers that improvement they have been waiting for for almost a month. Buying was fairly well divided between gifts and winter necessities.

In the wholesale field, jobbers of toys and other similar Christmas wares reported orders from all over the middle west. Manufacturers, who specialize in the gift by-products of prohibition, also appear well satisfied with the demands for their output.

In the steel industry, there appears to be some feeling that, with automobile manufacturers more optimistic, tonnage will show a pickup in the near future. In the Chicago steel district, the last week saw this viewpoint reflected in increased commitments over preceding weeks.

Hungarian Bonds Called for Payment After Jan. 1

Speyer & Co. announced that $173,500 bonds of the Hungarian consolidated municipal 7½ per cent loan of 1925 and $96,500 bonds of the 7 per cent loan of 1926 have been drawn for the sinking fund and will be payable on and after Jan. 1, 1932, at par. Out of an original issue of $10,000,000 bonds of the 7½ per cent loan of 1925 and $6,000,000 bonds of the 7 per cent loan of 1926, there will remain outstanding $8,174,000 and $5,168,000, respectively.

Price Trend of New York Bank Stocks Again Down

The trend of New York City Bank and Trust company stocks was again downward during the last week, as indicated by the dollar index figures compiled by Holt, Rose and Troster. Sixteen issues as of Nov. 28 yielded an average of 7.13 per cent, compared with 6.59 per cent Nov. 21. Based on the Nov. 28 figures, the sixteen issues are selling at 13.1 times known current earnings, against 14.2 times Nov. 21.

Demand for Electrical Appliances Proves Better

Demand for electrical household appliances improved slightly during the past week. The general movement of goods for immediate and holiday sale, however, is still far behind last year's average, producers said. Low-end coffee percolators, bread toasters and waffle irons were the most active items of the week.

Ups and Downs Are Noted in News of Trade World

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Money flowed a little more freely over the retail counters for necessities during the last week, electric power was used more liberally and in certain parts of the country, notably the south, there was considerable quickening of activity in textile mills.

These gains were the most cheerful contributions of the week to business news. Otherwise there was little change except for renewed weakness of important commodities. Wheat closed the week having lost about two-thirds of its maximum gain during the recent sharp upswing. Cotton had lost practically all of its less spectacular gain.

Steel Output Sags.

Steel production fell off to 29 per cent of ingot capacity, but this was a normal seasonal development. From Detroit came reports that the automobile industry is putting more men back to work and in December a gain in production is expected.

The larger industrial centers reported there had been a substantial number of buyers making inquiries. Purchases, however, were confined largely to hand to mouth requirements. Inventories were still low in practically all lines of activity, from manufacture of steel to the retailing of men's apparel. Manufacturers again expressed a conviction that only a moderate quickening of buying would accelerate manufacturing activity.

Good news came to the copper industry when announcement was made that Belgian owned mines in Africa had finally come under the healthful influence of production curtailment. Immediate response was felt in the market for copper metal, which earlier in the week went to a record new low price of 6¼ cents a pound.

Double Output.

Emphatic gains in textile production were recorded in the south, where employment increased. Some mills have more than doubled their output this month. While sales of electrical appliances lagged, housewives again showed interest in showings of new rugs, furniture, and ornaments. There was a significant gain in sale of household furnishings.

Unseasonable weather has played an important part in holding down retail sales. In eastern states, warm weather slowed down the purchase of winter articles. Sales of men's wear were at low ebb, but some stimulus was noted in certain articles of women's wear, notably stockings. Price reductions in hosiery have increased sales less than seasonally. Pennsylvania mills have employed "additional workers. Christmas goods are moving a little more rapidly at retail owing to concerted efforts to have Christmas shopping done early.

Southwest Looks Up.

The southwest is looking up. Reports indicate that confidence has replaced fear in the eastern half of the south, road building and other construction work has also helped. On the Pacific coast, lumber is still in the depths, but recent rains and snows have broken a long drought.

Sharp decline of sterling caused some unsettlement in foreign buying, but this downswing was apparently nothing more serious than a combination of natural needs which came at the same time and speeded sterling on its way down. Imposition of the new British tariff caused English buyers to engage in a last minute import rush. Selling of sterling to pay for these goods is still under way.

Movement of freight traffic continued at a subnormal pace, but the week's decline of 26,663 cars in loadings was about seasonal. Further falling off is entirely possible, just as further contraction in steel activity is likely because of usual December lull.

PRICES OF MEAT REPORTED MUCH LOWER THAN 1930

A fairly strong consumer demand for all meat products featured the meat trade during the month just closing, according to a review of the live stock and meat situation issued by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

Wholesale prices of pork products are now substantially lower than a year ago. For example, fresh hams are now about 45 per cent lower than a year ago; some grades of bacon are 40 per cent lower; smoked hams, 28 to 38 per cent lower; fresh loins from 25 to 30 per cent lower; fresh shoulders, 31 per cent lower.

Demand for the better grades of dressed beef was in good ratio to the supply, and trade in top grades was active.

FALLING PRICES ACT TO BECLOUD FINANCIAL MIND

1931 Seen Antithesis of Year 1929.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—The past week of falling prices, both for securities and commodities, has had its effect on the financial mind. As in the closing weeks of 1931, when a similar decline occurred in industrial production, this renewed fall in commodity prices and on the stock exchange is again causing an atmosphere of discouragement.

When the usual postmortems on the financial year come due at the end of December, practical financiers will be readier with diagnoses of 1931 than with prophecy of 1932. Most financiers have already classified this present year as in one sense a very extraordinary antithesis, in another and equally extraordinary analogy, to 1929. This has been true in many highly interesting particulars affecting in both years the whole conception of values by the markets. It has lately been of particular interest in regard to one curious financial paradox.

Tradition Disregarded.

Two and a half years ago, it was well enough understood that dear money and overstrained credit pointed traditionally to flight of capital from stocks, and Wall street was paying 20 to 20 per cent for money, with "brokers' loans" rising $2,000,000,000 in four months. Nevertheless buying orders continued to rush in, the stock market rose, and the occasional rather violent reactions were only a prelude to renewed advances.

Today it is quite as well understood that very low money rates and superabundant credit point, in the light of past tradition, to investment of capital in fixed revenue securities, on a rising scale of prices. The perfectly reasonable record of preceding periods of financial reaction showed that bonds advanced steadily in price during 1931 and recovered rapidly in 1908; also that, even with the long list of railway receiverships after the panic of 1893, the next year's 1 per cent call money rate caused a rise in 1894 of 4 to 7 points in bonds even of the weaker companies.

Yet in 1931, with Wall street quoting 1½ per cent money, brokers' loans reduced 90 per cent from 1929 and stocks entirely discredited, today's bond market "averages" stand 17 per cent below the highest of 1931 and 28 per cent below 1929.

Savings Bank Requirement.

For this year's singular paradox there are several reasons. First

Illinois Ships Corn to Iowa.

Iowa's corn crop this year, while the largest of the country, has a shortage in some sections, and Cedar Rapids, which is situated in one of the largest corn sections of Iowa, had corn shipped there from Illinois within the last few weeks. Feeding demand in the west is absorbing coarse grain at an unusual rate and drawing grain from outside states, while usually it has a surplus to sell. Chicago is also shipping corn to a number of northern Wisconsin points where grain is scarce. Farmers in the middle west are not selling corn freely, although they are through with the greater part of their husking.

Private reports on the corn crop are due within the next few days and it would be no surprise to see previous production figures reduced. Speculatively, the trade inclined to the bull side early in the week but became bearish later with the break in wheat. It is claimed that May corn at 12½c under May wheat is relatively too high and it invites short selling.

Cash premiums at the last weakened, although there was a fair shipping demand from the east. At the close December corn was 37¾@38c; March, 40⅝c; May, 42⅝@42¾c, and July, 44¼@44½c. Prices for the week follow:

U. S. Oats to Cuba.

Oat traders were given a little surprise in the sale of 30,000 bu of No. 3 white oats to be shipped from Akron, O., to Havana, Cuba, made here about midweek. The price was below the market and attracted especial attention. As a speculative feature, however, it had practically no influence. Holders of oat futures liquidated in sympathy with the break in other grains, their offerings being absorbed by cash interests.

HOGS AND PRODUCE LOWER

Large supplies of hogs, with lower prices for grains, cotton and securities, brought liquidation, hedging, and short selling, which carried prices for lard down and made the close at the lowest prices of the week, off 2½@ 2¾c, the latter on November. This is the period of accumulation of supplies, as the run of hogs is usually liberal. Consumption of pork product has declined in favor of poultry which is the usual custom at this season.

Lumber Orders Reported 19 Per Cent Above Output

Due largely to low production, the ratio of lumber orders to the cut for the week ended Nov. 21 showed a substantially favorable excess of new business, telegraphic reports from 823 leading hardwood and softwood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers' association indicate. These reports showed orders 19 per cent above and shipments 22 per cent above a combined production of 140,049,000 feet. A week earlier 836 mills reported orders 24 per cent above and shipments 18 per cent above a cut of 136,899,000 feet.

Reports Electric Output in Southwest as Gaining

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 29.—James C. Kennedy, president, Central and South West Utilities company, announced today that output of electric energy to all types of customers by subsidiaries of his company for the nine week period from Sept. 20 to Nov. 21 was running approximately 7 per cent ahead of output for the same period in 1930. Total output for the 1931 period was 167,623,000 kilowatt hours, against 164,005,000 kilowatt hours for the corresponding period last year.

Weekly Board of Trade Stocks

Losses were general throughout the entire list of securities on the Chicago Board of Trade last week. At the close Electric Bond and Share was off 1¾ points net; Corn Products, 4; Chicago Great Western preferred, 2; Standard of Indiana, 1¼, and Commonwealth Edison, 1¾ points. Gains, at the extreme lows, except for a rally of ½ in Electric Bond and Share. Total sales were 21,800 shares.

STEEL TRADE IS HOPEFUL DESPITE INGOT DECLINE

Copper Mart Irregular; Prices Are Lower.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Although the steel trade is hopeful that orders from automobile manufacturers for December rolling may broaden, awards mended only moderately and failed to offset end of the year declines in other specifications placed.

As a result, ingot production declined slightly to about 29 per cent of capacity, according to trade estimates. Business pending or placed for structural shapes, plates and tubular goods is irregular in different sections, but mostly light. Demand for miscellaneous products is fairly steady, reflecting pressing requirements, but buyers were cautious. Prices hold steady. Pig iron is dull at unchanged prices.

Copper Prices Decline.

Irregularity developed in copper under the influence of conflicting factors. The market eased and buyers withdrew when a large producer announced its intention to withdraw from Copper Exporters, Inc., with electrolytic declining to a new record low at 6¾ cents. Later announcement that Belgian interests had accepted the copper producers' curtailment plan had a stabilizing effect on export demand.

The easier in sympathy with sharp declines in sterling exchange. Consuming demand remains stagnant despite reports that international producers will make a further reduction of 15,000 tons in annual output in 1932. Tin mill operations are irregular.

Attract Some Buying.

Recent reductions in lead have attracted moderate consuming purchases, although interest has not extended beyond the current year. Battery makers have been the best buyers.

The zinc market declined under moderate selling pressure although some producers have withdrawn. Demand remains quiet. Antimony eased under fewer cable offerings promoted partly by declines in silver. Buyers show little interest.

Middle West Utilities October Output Higher

Middle West Utilities system's electric power output was 416,912,000 kilowatt hours in October this year, compared with 381,929,000 in October, 1930. Excluding companies acquired during the past year, October output was 407,372,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 4.7 per cent over the same month of 1930. Output for the first ten months of 1930 was 3,810,415,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 6 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Reo Motor Car.

Enclosed you will find stamped, self-addressed envelope. Please give me your opinion of Reo common stock. What is the financial condition of the company. Thank you in advance.—W. C. B.

Reo Motor Car company, incorporated in 1904, is one of the oldest automobile manufacturers. It is one of the smaller units in the industry. In 1930 about 41 per cent of production was trucks and 59 per cent pleasure vehicles.

In times of peak earnings the company has been conservative in the distribution of dividends, plowing back a large part of earnings. As a result it has been able to maintain an unbroken dividend record since 1911.

Curtailed demand, depreciation chargeoffs, and charges for the development of new models were factors responsible for the loss of $1,989,148 in 1930, the first deficit in the history of the company.

Sales for 1930 were $29,671,006, against $48,011,458 in 1929. Net income for 1929 was $1,423,524, or 71 cents per share. Sales for 1928 were $59,757,806 and net income was $5,083,588, or $2.54 per share. The drop in earnings from 1928 to 1929 was ascribed to increased competition from lower priced cars.

Sales for the first nine months of 1931 were $14,913,939, about 66 per cent of sales of $21,392,932 for the first nine months of 1930.

That the company has succeeded in placing operations on a more economical basis is indicated by the fact that net loss for the first nine months of 1931 of $1,343,628 was only slightly more than net loss of $1,305,885 for the corresponding 1930 period in the face of reduced sales.

On Sept. 30, 1931, current assets were $14,872,173, and current liabilities were $1,313,729. Cash and marketable securities alone were more than $7,000,000. Working capital was $13,558,444, against $17,456,213 the year before. Earned surplus was $4,893,142, against $7,906,453 on Sept. 30, 1930.

The company's plants are modern and efficient. Expenditures of more than $1,000,000 were made for new equipment in 1930.

There are outstanding 1,332,900 shares of capital stock (par $10). The stock is on an annual dividend basis of 40 cents per share, which has been in effect since the payment of April 1, 1931. It had previously been on an annual 80 cent basis, with extras, since the third quarter of 1925.

Until such time as earnings show an improvement to a basis comparable with earlier years of the company's history, its stock should be regarded as speculative.
